EXPLANATION

For indicating the different individuals, in these family records, we have endeavored to formulate a plan, that would be easily understood, and readily followed.

The children of the common ancestor are designated by the letters of the alphabet, A, B, C, etc. These represent the different branches of the family. By associating these letters with the names of the different members of the first family given, it is easy to keep in mind the different branches of the family, and to tell at a glance, to which branch of the family an individual belongs.

The names of children are indented towards the right, and first given in a list, together, in order of age. Then, as the head of a family, their names again appear, in turn, near the margin.

The descendants of each are followed through, before another is taken up.

The children of A., are A.1., A.2., etc. The children of A.1., are A.1.1., A.1.2., etc. Each number added represents another generation. The number nearest the name, indicates the place, in order of age, of that child, in the family. We may easily trace relationship, back or forward.

If we wish to know, for example, who C.3.1.3. is, we trace back in regular order to C.3.1., the parent; C.3., the grand-parent; C., the great grand-parent, the third child of the common ancestor.

PREFACE

The historical matter, in this volume, has been gleaned from various sources. Much has been quoted from "The Covenanter, Cavalier, and Puritan," by Temple, "The Scotch-Irish in America," by Hanna, "Waddell's Annals of Augusta County, Virginia," and from other sources, not now remembered. All statements, in regard to the different families, and individuals, have been furnished by the families, themselves, or obtained from public records. Authenticity has been the keynote of this work; and whenever there has been a doubt as to this, it is so stated.

When the author of this volume began the research for data, for the larger volume, (the history of our own family to be published shortly), including several allied families, of Rockbridge county, Virginia, a Rockbridge branch of Ochiltrees, one of the allied families, was supposed by the author, and by this branch of the family themselves, to embrace all of the name in America.

But, in a determined and persistent effort, against many and varied apparently unsurmountable obstacles, to have the records of all the families included in the history, as full, complete and authentic as possible, others of the name Ochiltree were discovered, who knew not this Rockbridge branch of Ochiltrees.

Finally, six different branches were found, with still others, unclassified, neither group knowing aught of the others, except in one instance; each supposing those of the name in America to be limited to their branch of the family. A member of one branch said, "We are few in number and I feared the name was soon to die out."

Much new and unexpected data of the Ochiltrees, as well as of some of the other families, having come to light recently, making too much for even a large volume, it was decided to publish "The Ochiltrees" and allied families, in a separate volume.

The idea of publishing a family history, at all, was one of gradual growth, resulting from an accumulation of data, the result of an effort to simply know more of direct ancestors, a lack of which knowledge is all too common among the American people.

Thus it has, all unforeseen, come about that one, not an Ochiltree descendant, although connected by ties of life-long friendship, and several inter-marriages, with one of the Rockbridge branches, and marriages at a very early date with another branch, publishes this volume.

It would be impossible for anyone, not having had the experience, in all its varied details, to conceive the most remote idea of the enormity of the task of compiling and publishing a work of this character, and scope.

Among those who have been deeply interested in this history of their family, and have gladly aided, in every possible way, especial credit should be given to W. E. Ochiltree, Esq., Attorney at Law, Connersville, Indiana, for his unfailing interest, and his unselfish, untiring efforts. We bespeak for him the lasting gratitude of all the Ochiltrees.

Others, to whom much is due, for their assistance in rescuing from oblivion, the history of their ancestors, and placing in permanent form, the record of the descendants of those ancestors, especial mention should be made of Dr. H. M. Ochiltree, Haddam, Kansas, T. J. Ochiltree, Esq., Morning Sun, Iowa, Mrs. McClung, "A. A. Ochiltree," Tipton, Iowa, Maxwell Ochiltree, Esq., Chester, Pa., Miss Ruth Ochiltree, Philadelphia, Pa., Miss Elizabeth Hoopes, Philadelphia, Pa., Miss Mabel Ochiltree, Homer Ill., Mrs. Hattie Wilson Shinn, Fort Scott, Kansas, whose services have been invaluable, also, Mrs. Elizabeth Copeland, Mt. Washington, Ohio, Dr. H. C. Young, Bloomfield, Iowa, and others, whose interest and ready assistance will continue to be held in the highest appreciation by the author.

As for ourselves, we have given of our most faithful efforts, and of our time and means, to bring to a successful issue, a work, into which we seem to have been drawn, rather than to have undertaken. It is our sincere desire, that it may meet the reasonable expectations, of all interested in it. As with any other project which has to do with human nature, which is alike the world over, we have had, among the most encouraging, and the most pleasant experiences, some that were not so encouraging, nor so pleasant, that have called for unbounded patience and unlimited forbearance.

To those who appreciate the result of our labors, we would say we appreciate your appreciation. To those lacking in appreciation, and disposed to criticize, if any such there be, we would say, let such of those, who could have or would have undertaken such a history, endured to the end, and excelled this one, however faulty, "cast the first stone"—make the first criticism.

This history, like the larger one of our own family, traces the family back, to the nobility of Scotland; in the case of one, to Bruce; of the other, to Wallace; still farther back, to the Norman knights, followers of King David I., into Scotland, on his accession to the throne, in 1124; with a blending, down the lines, of Norman, Saxon, Dane and Celt. But, adapting the lines of Tennyson,

"Saxon or Dane or Norman we,
Teuton or Celt, whatever we be,
We are all—Americans."

And all, I trust, journeying to that "Better Land."

The Author.

FOREWORD

The name Ochiltree has been spelled in various ways, such as Ockeltree, Okiltree, Okletree, Ogletree, Oughiltree, Augletree, Uchilrie, and Ocheltree; in some instances, now, pronounced with the long sound of "o". A member of one branch of the family, that spells it "Ocheltree," states that his father had told him that it was originally spelled "Ochiltree." We find it spelled thus in Scottish history and by the larger portion of the family. As it would not be practicable to follow out the various methods of spelling, we adhere throughout this history, to the one standard spelling.

The word Ochil, in Scotch, Uchil, in Welch, means high; and the original signification of the name Ochiltree is said to have been the place of high trees, or, as one tradition in the family has it, a very high tree, that was a landmark, and could be seen for miles around. We read also of the Ochil hills in Scotland. There is a town of the name in Ayrshire, Scotland, and also one in Kansas, and one in Texas. Another account of the origin of the name is given farther on.

That the family name was Stewart, and that the Ochiltrees, in America, are descended from Andrew Stewart, Lord of Ochiltree, of Scotland, of the Royal House of Stewart, has been handed down, in all branches of the family; not as a tradition, but as a fact, of which those who emigrated to America were well aware. Just where the American families branch from the Family Tree, there is not now even a tradition; but there is a suggestion, which should not be overlooked. Henry Miller Ochiltree, Sr., deceased many years ago, grandson of James Ochiltree, who was born about 1740, and emigrated to America when grown, told his son Thomas, now living, that the name Thomas had come down in the family, in honor of Lord Ochiltree. It is interesting to note that the name Thomas first appears, in the line, in the name Andrew Thomas Stewart, Lord of Castlestewart, County of Tyrone, Ireland, a descendant of the third Lord Ochiltree of Scotland, who was one of the three most prominent colonizers of Ulster, in 1610; and was created Lord Castlestewart, in the Peerage of Ireland. About the time of the emigration of the Ochiltrees to America, he claimed and was granted, the right to vote at an election of Scottish peers; and later, claimed the title and lands of Ochiltree, in Scotland; but this claim was not allowed, by the House of Lords.

The partial record has been received, of the North Carolina branch, which was represented, in Texas, by Judge William B. Ochiltree and his son, Thomas P. Ochiltree, whose ancestors came to America, in 1739. This record begins with, "Lord Ochiltree, Island of Jura, Scotland." History tells us that Lord Ochiltree was, in 1608, made the King's Lieutenant, over the Western Isles. The Island of Jura is off the west coast of Scotland. The given names of the members of this family, who came to America were David, Duncan, Malcolm, Hugh, Archibald, Murdock, etc., representative Stewart names.

The letter of Robert G. Ochiltree, of Tipton, Iowa, gives the tradition of his branch of the family, in regard to the family descent, and the family name of Stewart.

Mrs. Hattie Wilson Shinn, a descendant of Michael Ochiltree, who came from Armagh County, Ireland, adjoining Tyrone, in 1792, says, "My grandmother, Nancy (Ochiltree) Lowry, born in Armagh in 1775, was a good woman, very much of a lady in manner, very proud of her descent from Royalty, and of the family name of Stewart."

Miss A. B. Ochiltree Ferguson, of Glasgow, Scotland, and James H. Ochiltree, whose letters are herein given, members of the family in Australia—the Ochiltrees, wherever found—have preserved this tradition.

Mrs. McClung, "A. A. Ochiltree," a descendant of Alexander Ochiltree, writes, "It is among my earliest recollections that I was told that the family name was Stewart, and that we were descended from Lord Ochiltree. But whether or not, we are Stewarts, with the well-defined Stewart peculiarities—a love of the beautiful, of music, of the dance, an ability to please, generous, determined, with great powers of endurance, prolific, ardent, self-willed—what a heterogeneous collection—all these, and more, go to make up the modern Ochiltrees, of whom I am proud to be one. I do not believe there is a snob in our line, nor one to whom it matters a whit, whether, or not, we are descended from remote Lords of the Realm. We know that our immediate ancestors were men—gentlemen, in every sense of the word—honest, truthful, faithful, chivalrous, too proud to care from whence they came. Their manners were of the old school—dignified, but courteous; their morals, unimpeachable; their language, couched in pure English; their hospitality, boundless; their religion, a thing to be lived not talked of; strict in discipline, generous in praise of merit, they were ideal wives and mothers, husbands and fathers. Their opportunities for scholastic attainments, were limited, as they were always pioneers; but they were well informed and cultured. Our line can boast of no great authors, artists, actors, inventors or soldiers; but it can boast of scores of men and women, who have made the world better, and life more worth living to those around them, by their personal purity and truth. We may not bear the fess and cheque on our shield, in this "land of the free and home of the brave," but we may take as our motto, "Maximus in minimis, and fare bravely forth."

Although nothing, perhaps, has been found to fully establish the point of connection, with any particular branch of the European line, or descent from the first, second, or third Lord Ochiltree in Scotland, or in Ireland, enough has been given for a starting point for research in those countries. The original home of the Ochiltrees, was in Ayrshire in the Highlands of Scotland. We are told that by the Highlands, we are not to understand that the northern part of Scotland, exclusively, is meant, but the high country, inland from the coast.

There were many instances, in the unsettled and turbulent condition of affairs, during and subsequent to the Reformation, of families being forced to leave Scotland, and, for greater security, to change their names.

At a very early period, a branch of the Tod family fled to England, changed their name to Fox, the Scotch name for which is tod. On coming to America they resumed the name of Tod, spelling it Todd.

In the case of the Ochiltrees, the name as a surname, it would seem, distinguished the Protestant branch of the Stewart family. It was, also, a protest against the conditions, the combating of which, eventually, caused the loss of title and lands of Ochiltree, in Scotland. The adoption of the name of their ancestral lands, forever designates their ancestry and origin and their firm stand against the existing evils of those times.

Doubtless, an extended research, of the archives, of Ireland and Scotland, might bring to light definite information, connecting the American, with the European line. But no such research has been attempted, as it was not the original purpose of this history to go beyond the records of Rockbridge County, Virginia. But subsequent research, and data since accumulated, has not been, by any means, confined to that county or that state.

It is to be hoped, that when peace is restored in Europe, there may be some one, sufficiently interested, and able financially, to cross the Atlantic, and, even after the lapse of one hundred and fifty or more years, definitely, connect the line in America, with that in Europe; with County Armaugh or, perhaps, Castlestewart, in County Tyrone, as a starting point.

As the American branches were strongly Protestant and Presbyterian, it would certainly seem that they had descended from the Protestant and Presbyterian branch of the family, in Europe.

INTRODUCTION

"The early history of Scotland is wrapped in obscurity. Tradition, and the first definite information regarding its people, dates from the time, 78-84 A. D., when Britain was occupied by the Romans, under Julius Caesar. The country became known to the Romans, by the name of Caledonia, now the poetical name of Scotland. The Roman writer, Tacitus, tells us of the defeat of the Caledonians, on the Grampian Hills, 84 A. D. The early inhabitants closely resembled the Iberian, or early inhabitants of Spain. The descendants of these inhabitants were called Picts.

The Scoti, or Scots, from Ireland, invaded the country and formed settlements, in the northern part of England and the southern part of Scotland. In the latter part of the fifth century, clashes arose between the two dominant classes. The Picts and Scots were re-united into one kingdom, under Kenneth McAlphin, a Scottish ruler, of Pictish descent, in the ninth century, and soon the country became known as the Scot's land, or Scotland. Thirty-eight Pictish kings reigned, previous to that time; but the Scots became the predominating influence, and slowly united the independent chiefs in the north of Scotland, to their dominion.

The Norsemen had founded colonies in the north, and the Saxons, from the south of Germany, on the south; and a long period of wars, waged by these, and the Britians against the Scots, ensued.

Kenneth's son Constantine, and Malcolm I., were the kings of Scotland 943-964. The three succeeding kings were Malcolm II., Duncan and Macbeth; names familiar to all readers of Shakespeare. Malcolm Canmore, as Malcolm III., became king in 1057, after defeating the usurper, Macbeth; and now began a social and political revolution in Scotland. He married the English princess Margaret, and then the English language and customs were introduced.

In 1066, occurred the Conquest of England, by William, Duke of Normandy, now styled William, the Conqueror. In 1072, he invaded Scotland, and serious troubles took place, between Malcolm and the Norman invaders. Malcolm made two invasions of England; but William again invaded Scotland, and took some of her territory. Malcolm and his son were slain. He was succeeded by his three sons, Edgar, Alexander and David. Of these, David I. reigned 1124-53. He devoted himself to the improvement of the country, and the spread of Christianity; founded schools, a system of written language, a representative legislature, and established the manners and language of the English race. He was succeeded by his son Henry, and he, by his son Malcolm IV., whose successor, William, the Lion, was taken prisoner, in 1175, while attempting to regain Northumberland, and Scotland was declared dependant on England. Scottish independence was declared in 1189, by Richard I. But Edward I., of England, tried to make Scotland a part of his kingdom, as he had Wales.

Balliol, Bruce and Hastings struggled long for the crown of Scotland, which Balliol received, at Seone, in 1292. Edward, of England, invaded Scotland and took possession. William Wallace, and Robert Bruce, raised large armies, and the Scots, under Bruce, defeated the English, at the battle of Bannockburn, in 1314, and Bruce reigned, with remarkable success, until his death, in 1329.

The line of descent of the Ochiltrees is as follows:

Kenneth McAlpin united the Scots and Picts under his sway and was succeeded by his son, Constantine. He had another son, Hugh, whose son, Doir, was made Thane of Lochaber. Doir's son, Murdock, had a son Ferquhand and he had a son Kenneth, who married the daughter of his kinsman, King Kenneth II. Their son, Banquo, and three of his sons, were murdered by enemies. A fourth son, Ffance, or, as he was called in Scotland, Flahald, escaped to Wales, (inhabited by a Celtic kindred people), was hospitably received, by Griffith ap Llewellyn, whose daughter he married. He was murdered, at the instigation of some of the Welch nobles. Walter, the son of Ffance, revenged his father's death, and had to flee from Wales, Llewellyn being dead. He found shelter at the Saxon Court of Edward, the Confessor, quarreled with a courtier, who belittled the Welch, and had to flee to Brittany in France, also inhabited by a branch of the Celtic race, where he married a daughter of Alan, Earl of Brittany, who joined William of Normandy, in his invasion of England, in 1066, Walter accompanying him. After the overthrow of the English, at the battle of Hastings, and the establishment of the Normans in England, Walter received a grant of land, in Shropshire, on the border of Wales. He fell out with the Normans, however, and went north, to his father's country, where he was well received by the king, his distant kinsman, Malcolm III, who granted him the lands of Renfrew and Kyle, in Ayrshire, in lieu of Lochaber, the former possession of his house. Walter left a son, Alan, and Alan, a son Walter, who as a Norman knight, accompanied King David I, on his march to the Clyde, the most northern boundary of his possessions, on his accession to the throne of Scotland, in 1124. He was granted the greater part of Renfrew, Immerwick, Hassandean and large estates in Teviotdale and Lauderdale, and was made the first High Steward of Scotland. This office became hereditary in this family, which, for several generations, were the High Stewards of Scotland. They were 1. Walter; 2. ~~Alan~~ 3. Walter; 4. Alexander; 5. James; 6. Walter. Before the era of fixed surnames, they were known by the name of their office. When they complied with the fashion of armorial bearings, which did not prevail until two generations after their settlement in Scotland, they adopted the fess cheque, used for computing, before the introduction of Arabic numerals, in allusion to their office, at the exchequer table. Walter, the sixth, High Steward, so distinguished himself in the fierce fighting against the English, for the independence of Scotland, that he gained the favor of King Robert, the Bruce, Robert I, of Scotland. He married his daughter, Marjorie.

Their second son, Robert, was the first of the Stewart kings, the family of the greatest opulence and power in Scotland. His wife was Elizabeth Mure, daughter of Sir William Mure. He ascended the throne, as Robert II., on the death of his uncle, his mother's brother, King David II. Their second son, Robert III., whose wife was Countess Margaret of Monteith, had a son Murdock, whose wife was Mariella, daughter of Sir William Keith. They were the parents of James, the Gross, who had a son, Alexander Stewart, who became the first Lord of Avondale, whose nephew, Andrew Stewart, the second Lord of Avondale, fell at the battle of Flodden, Solway Moss, in 1513, fighting against the ancient enemy of his country, England. There was scarcely a family, of any note, in Scotland, which had not to mourn some one lost on Flodden Moor.

Andrew Stewart, son of the second Lord of Avondale, or Avandale, exchanged his barony, with his kinsman, Sir James Hamilton, of the Stewart line, for that of Ochiltree, in Ayrshire, and was ordained, by act of Parliament, March 13, 1512, to be called "Lord Stewart of Ochiltree." His son Andrew Stewart, the second Lord Ochiltree, was called the "Good Lord Ochiltree." He was an active promoter of the Reformed faith, and a zealous supporter of John Knox, and was one of the Lords of the Congregation. He was wounded at the battle of Langside, fighting against Mary Stuart, Queen of Scots. Of his five sons, William was slain by the Earl of Bothwell, and James, created Earl of Arran, was the father of Sir James Stewart of Killeith, who became fourth Lord Ochiltree in 1615. Margaret, second daughter of the second Lord Ochiltree, married John Knox. His brother, Henry Stewart, married Margaret Tudor, widow of James IV, and was created Baron Methven; another brother, Sir James Stewart of Beath, was ancestor of the Stewart Earls of Moray, through his son James, Lord Doune.

King James I., son of Robert III., by the advice of the Romish prelates, determined to take from the nobles, all their power in the state. They had assumed almost regal power and authority, but were now deprived of many of their ancient privileges, and a number of the most influential, stripped of honors, wealth and political influence; some driven into exile. These men were not made of the stuff tamely to submit to this degradation. Their social power, based on clan spirit, and affection of the people, remained. Their retainers sided with them and joined in the Reformation. Enraged at the ecclesiastical influence over the king, they were soon in the midst of a deadly contest, between the Scottish aristocracy, and the Scottish church, which lasted for thirty-two years, and finally concluded with the triumph of the nobles, who, in 1560, completely overthrew the Romish church in Scotland, and destroyed the Scottish hierarchy.

In 1559, on the invitation of the nobility, John Knox had arrived in Scotland, from Geneva. The nobility prepared to defend him, and the Protestant religion, with arms. It was said of Knox, "He never feared the face of mortal man." He inspired his followers with his own great courage. He could blow nothing but a bugle blast. He blew his blast, and the whole Papal edifice came tumbling down, in ruins. Lord Ochiltree was one of the twelve hundred mounted men, with as many more on foot, who hastened to the assistance of the Reformers, during the riot at Perth, which ended with the destruction of the monasteries, and religious houses of the kingdom, with their altars, images and monuments, nine days after the arrival of Knox in Scotland. The French army was driven out of Scotland. In July 1560, every vestige of Papacy, except the name of Bishop, was abolished. Parliament assembled, and enacted measures, abolishing the jurisdiction of the Pope, in Scotland, prohibited the mass, and adopted a Confession of Faith, for the Reformed church.

On a tablet, in the wall, in the house of John Knox, is this inscription, "John Knox married Margaret Stewart, daughter of Lord Ochiltree, in 1564." She was the third daughter of Andrew Stewart, Lord of Ochiltree, and was Knox's second wife. Lord Ochiltree's youngest son, an unworthy favorite of King James, was created Earl of Arran in 1581.

King James II., son of James I., was crowned, at Holyrood, March 25, 1437. In 1460, he was accidentally killed, while witnessing the firing of one of the large cannon, used in the siege, against the English, of Roxburgh Castle, at Berwick.

He was succeeded by his son, James III., a prince of cultured tastes, but feeble character. He shrank from the rude society of his peers, and surrounded himself with artists of humble origin, whose influence and accomplishments, excited the scorn and animosity of the illiterate nobles; many of the king's favorites were murdered, and he, himself, imprisoned, for a time, in Edinburg Castle. His son James, a youth of sixteen years, was encouraged to rise in rebellion against his father; the forces of father and son met in battle. The king fled. His horse stumbled, throwing him, and some of the rebels came up and killed him.

A few days after, the son was crowned at Scone, as James IV., in 1488. He married, in 1503, Margaret Tudor, daughter of Henry VII., of England, and sister of Henry VIII., hastening the union of the two kingdoms, of Scotland and England. He formed an alliance with France, invaded England, but met with defeat and death at Flodden field, in 1513. Round the gallant, but unfortunate king, the Scottish nobles (among whom was the father of the first Lord Ochiltree) gathered, when they saw that all was lost, save honor, and in the words of the poet,

"One by one, they fell around him,
As the archers laid them low;
Grimly turning, still unconquered;
Dying, faces to the foe."

In October 1513, James IV., was crowned, under the title of James V. The reins of government now passed into the hands of the church; and this, although not the real and controlling cause, was, undoubtedly, the proximate cause of the establishment of Protestantism in Scotland.

James V., was succeeded by his daughter, Mary, whose reign is famous for the Reformation, and for discussions, regarding the union of Scotland and England. Mary Stuart, Queen of Scots, daughter of James V., and his second wife, Mary, daughter of the Duke of Guise, was seven days old, at the time of her father's death. She was reared and educated by her relatives, at the French Court. As there is no "w" in the French alphabet, her name was spelled "Stuart," which spelling she insisted upon, on her return to Scotland. On the marriage of Margaret Stewart, daughter of Lord Ochiltree, to John Knox, she expressed great disapproval, that one of the Royal House of Stewart, should form an alliance, with one of the common people. Queen Mary was forced to abdicate, recovered the throne, escaped to England, was kept a prisoner for eighteen years, by Elizabeth, and, in 1587, beheaded, in Frothingay Castle.

The last meeting of the Scottish Parliament was held in 1706, when articles, for the first union of England and Scotland, were drawn up. Among the conditions, was one, that the name of the country should be Great Britain; that the Presbyterian church of Scotland should be maintained. The Gaelic, or Celtic, language was spoken, in northern and western Scotland, down to the fifteenth century; and, in the center and eastern part, English prevailed. Peculiar characteristics still prevail, that mark, with local dialects, the language spoken, in different parts of the country. But there has been a constant tendency to make the language conform to the form spoken in Northern England. During the reign of William and Mary in Scotland, a statute was passed, by the Scotch Parliament, for the establishment of common schools, in every parish. It began to be evident, that the common people of Scotland were superior in intelligence, to the common people of any other country of Europe. In mental cultivation, the Scotch had an indisputable superiority.

Who and what was the Norman? It has been said that the Norman was the Dane, who had staid a little time in Gaul to put on a slight French varnish. The Dane who came straight from Denmark had put on no such varnish.

Another writer has said, "The Scotch-Irish are Scoti, or Scots, who settled in the north of Ireland, known now as the province of Ulster, before the third century. In Ireland, they came under the influence of the Cross; and, about the sixth century, emigrated to North Britian, where they subjugated and were merged with the Pictish tribes, and then, what had been Caledonia, became Scotland.

In 1610, King James fell out with certain Irish nobles, who possessed Ulster, and, confiscating their lands, colonized them with Scots. Thus, after one thousand years, the Scot, who became in Scotland, the Irish Scot, returned to the home of his fathers, and thereafter was known as Scotch-Irish. In the intervening centuries, infusion of new blood had gone on, adding traits of manhood, lacking in the original stock. The intermingling of the intellectual Irish, with the physical robust Scotch, had made a strong race. But the Scot became the audacious Norman, toned by the conservative Saxon, with a spirit of adventurous enterprise.

The clan system in Scotland, came to an end, in 1746. The clan was a set of men, all bearing the same surname, and believing themselves to be related, one to the other, and to be descended from the same stock, bound together, not only by the feudal, but patriarchal bond. While the individuals were vassals or tenants of their own hereditary chiefs, they were, also, descended from his family, and could count, exactly, the degree of that descent. The right of primogeniture, together with the weakness of the law to reach inaccessible countries, had, in the revolution of centuries, converted these natural principles of connection, between the chief and his people, into the most sacred ties of human life. The castle of the chief was a kind of palace, to which every man of his clan was welcome, and where he was entertained, according to his station, in time of peace, and to which all flocked at the sound of war; thus, the meanest of the clan, believing himself to be as well-born as the head of it, revered his chief, and respected himself. The clansmen did not look upon their chiefs, merely as their landlords, but as their representatives, of the old patriarchs or fathers of the clan; for they held the same authority, after having lost their estates; and the members of the clan felt themselves as much bound, for the chief's support, as when he was in full possession of his rights. For such loyalty, the chief was bound to protect his followers, even against the laws; and he was held accountable to the law, for depredations or violence, committed by any member of the clan.

After the clan system came to an end, in 1746, the chiefs accepted crown charters, for what were known as clan lands. This, and the Repressive Act, of 1747, depriving Highlanders of their arms and their picturesque dress, so disgusted them, that many of them left their native land, and sought homes beyond the Atlantic. This act remained in force until 1782, when it was repealed through the influence of the Duke of Montrose; but it stamped out the Highland dress, and all but put an end to the manufacture of tartan, or the various colored cloth, worn by the several Highland clans. Many clans had from one to four various tartans; the chief's tartan, worn only by himself, and heir; the dress tartan, and the hunting tartan. Ignorance of this fact leads to many disputes, as to the correctness of a particular tartan; it being generally supposed that a clan had but one. Each clan had, also, their own war cry, or slogan, to which every clansman responded. It served as a watchword, in cases of sudden alarm, in the confusion of battle, or in the darkness of the night. The clans were, also, distinguished by badges, usually an evergreen plant, easily procurable in the clan country, worn in the "bonnet." The native tongue was called Gaelic; the people Gaels. Prior to 1600, the dress of the Gaels was a saffron colored, large and full shirt, and an over garment of thick wool, hanging to the knees. About the beginning of the seventeenth century, this saffron shirt ceased to be a part of the Highland dress; and the belted plaid, or little kilt, took its place.

In the times when Highlanders went armed, to kirk or market, the gentlemen took their sword-bearer with them. Even the clergymen armed themselves, in compliance with the national custom. A minister, who lived about the nineteenth century, remembered his great grandfather, also a clergyman, going to church, with his two-handed sword; and his servant, who walked behind him, with his bow and case of arrows. When Presbyterianism became the established form of church government, a minister, who refused to conform, was deposed, by the synod, in 1697. But, being very popular with his congregation, and maintaining his hold on them, it required a person of no ordinary intrepidity, to declare the pulpit vacant. Such a one having volunteered, he was met at the door of the "Kirk" and angrily denied admittance. But, dressed in a kilt, and armed with a sword in one hand, and a cocked pistol in the other, he set his back against the wall, and resolutely defied the audience, delivered his message, and got out, none the worse for his adventure.

Ulster, is the most northern province of Ireland. It is composed of the nine counties, Antrim, Armagh, Cavan, Donigal, Down, Fermanagh, Loudonderry, Monaghan and Tyrone.

In consequence of rebellions in Ireland, during the latter years of the reign of Queen Elizabeth, large portions of the land held by the titled proprietors, were confiscated by the English crown, and new settlers introduced from England. With the exception of a few fortified cities, the towns and villages were destroyed. Scarcely any buildings remained, except the castles of the English conquerors, or the wretched cabins of the natives.

Early in the reign of James I., several of the leading landed proprietors in Ulster, conspired to dethrone the king. Their lands were confiscated by the English crown, and were parceled out to favorites of the King, Scotch and English; the natives were relegated to the rugged and more barren parts of the country.

Andrew Stewart, third Lord of Ochiltree, grandson of the second Lord Ochiltree, in 1584, finding his affairs involved, and that he could not pay his debts, with the consent of his wife, and sons, and their wives, sold the barony of Ochiltree to his cousin, Sir James Stewart of Killeith, Earl of Arran, who obtained the title, also, from the king, the vendor having resigned it into the king's hands. His son William, fifth Lord Ochiltree, dying without issue, the title became extinct in 1675.

Andrew, third Lord of Ochiltree, took part in the feuds, which led to the murder of the Earl of Moray, February 7, 1591. Ochiltree Castle, on the banks of the Lugar, about three miles distant from Ochiltree House, shown on another page, was burned, in a quarrel with the Boyds. Then this house was built, which the family left, on going to Ireland.

Lord Ochiltree had been made the King's Lieutenant, over the Western Isles, in 1608. In 1610, he settled as an "undertaker" or colonizer, on escheated lands in Ulster, County Tyrone, North Ireland, granted him by King James. Among the allotments made were: "County of Tyrone, precinct of Mountjoy; 3,000 acres to Andrew Stewart, Lord of Ochiltree, Galway; 1,000 acres to Robert Stewart, Gent. of Highton, Edinburg, transferred to Andrew Stewart, Jr., before 1620. Andrew Stewart, Lord Ochiltree received one of the three largest grants, made by the king. He was among the best of Ulster undertakers; for, while his straightened means led him to seek fortune in Ireland, his social position enabled him to draw good colonists, from his own district, and so fulfill the terms of the plantation contract. In the Carew manuscripts, 1603 to 1624, published by the British government, may be found a series of reports made by commissioners, who were appointed by the king at different periods, to visit the various landlords in Ulster, to whom allotments had been made, and take account of their progress.

The first one to make such an inspection was the Lord Deputy for Ireland, Sir Arthur Chichester, who had, himself, been allotted the district now occupied by the city of Belfast. This visit was made on September 22, 1611. The report referring to Andrew Stewart, Lord of Ochiltree, and his son, is as follows:

Precinct of Mountjoy, County of Tyrone: The Lord Uchiltrie (Ochiltree) 3,000 acres; being stayed by contrary winds in Scotland, arrived in Ireland (at the time of our being in Armagh upon our return home) accompanied with thirty-three followers; gent of sort, a minister, some tenants, freeholders, and artificers, unto whom he hath passed estates; and hath built for his present use, three houses of oak timber; one of fifty foot long and twenty-two wide; and two of forty foot long within an old fort; about which he is building a bawn. He has sundry men at work, providing materials; and there are in readiness two hundred and forty great trees felled, and some squared; and is preparing stone, brick, and lime, for building a castle, which he means to finish, next spring. There are two plows going on his demesne, with some fifty cows, three score young heifers, landed at Island Magy (Magee) in Claudeboy, which are coming, to his proportion, and some twelve working mares; and he intends to begin residence upon his land the next spring, as he informeth us.

In 1618, Captain Nicholas Pinnar was appointed to visit all the "undertakers" (those who undertook to found a colony) and report the nature and extent of improvements and provisions for defense against an uprising of the native Irish. This he did in 1619 and we find the following:

County of Tyrone, Precinct of Mountjoy, 3,500 acres Andrew Stewart; Castle thatched; seven freeholders, twelve lessees; able to produce with their under-tenants, eighty men with arms. (In 1628 portions were sold to Gilbert Kennedy and John Collis. Christopher Harrison was the first purchaser from the landlord.)

Ochiltree House

1,000 acres Andrew Stewart, Jr. (transferred from Robert Stewart) building bawn and castle; two free-holders, eight lessees; able to produce thirty-two men with arms. The most of these settlers were from Scotland. The English settled in the southern part of the province; while the Scotch occupied the Northern parts; the native Irish were driven to the woods, mountains and bogs, or to the southern part of Ireland. (A bawn was an enclosure, in which were the house and other buildings, in which the stock was kept, secure from raiders of the native Irish).

Among these Scotch settlers, at first, were so many, who left their country, for their country's good, that it became a proverb, regarding anyone, not doing well, that his latter end would be "Ireland." In Scotland, going to Ireland was regarded as the token of a disreputable person. Many who accepted these grants, failed to make the improvements or fulfill their contracts; many sold to others and went elsewhere. But, as one account says, "Amongst those whom Divine Providence did send to Ireland, were several eminent for birth, education and parts. The security and thriving of religion was little seen to; and the preachers, generally, were of the same complexion as the people." But, in the course of time, a number of pious and zealous ministers came over from Scotland, and several from England, of like spirit; and, through the efforts of these good men, a great religious reformation took place.

The Scotch ministers were Josiah Welch, grandson of John Knox; and the celebrated preacher and scholar, John Livingston. This reformation took place about 1625; and from that time, the religious character of the people dates. This revival attracted great attention, both in Scotland and England, and has often been referred to as one of the most remarkable events, since the days of the Apostles.

On November 7, 1619, Andrew Stewart (Lord Ochiltree), was created Lord Stewart of Castlestewart, in the Peerage of Ireland. His seat was near Lough Neagh, in the eastern part of County Tyrone. His wife was Margaret Kennedy, daughter of Sir John Kennedy, of Blairquhan. He died in January 1628. He had five children. 1. Andrew Stewart, Jr., the second Lord Castlestewart. He was educated in France, under Mr. Welch, John Knox's brother-in-law, brother of his first wife. He married Ann, fourth daughter of John Stewart, fifth Earl of Athol; was created a Baronet in 1618; died 1639. 2. John Stewart, third Lord Castlestewart. 3. Robert Stewart, fourth Lord Castlestewart. 4. Margaret Stewart, who had a gift of escheat of James Douglas of Thorthowald in 1596, married George Crawford of Liefnoris. 5. Maria, married (contract dated June 17, 1615) to James Kennedy, of Blairquhan.

William Stewart, fourth Lord Castlestewart, was a very promising young man, but died at the age of sixteen years, February 12, 1675, while at the University of Edinburgh; was buried the next day in the Abbey Kirk of Holyrood House. After his death, the title was dormant; although the right to vote, at an election of the Scottish Peers, was claimed in 1768, by Andrew Thomas Stewart, second Lord Castlestewart, who, in 1774, established his claim to the title of Baron Castlestewart, in the Irish House of Lords. Though his vote was disallowed, it was allowed at an election in 1790; also, his claim was made, and strongly urged, to the title and lands of Ochiltree, in Scotland. It was heard 1791-92, and the Lords of Committee on June 6, 1793, resolved that the petitioner had no right to the title and lands of Ochiltree, in Scotland. But in that year, he was created Viscount Castlestewart; and Earl of Castlestewart in 1800. This line continues to the present day. The head of the family, Henry James Stewart-Richardson, Earl of Castlestewart, Stewartstown, died in 1914. He left no sons and a cousin was heir-presumptive. The Earl of Castlestewart's mother, the Countess Dowager, and her unmarried daughters, have named their residence in Torguay in the South of England, "Ochiltree," for the lands their family lost in 1584.

From a Correspondent in Ayr Scotland

"There are the names of but four bearers of the surname Ochiltree in the Ayr Directory for the current year. (1915) As a family name, the surmane Ochiltree is not frequently met with; and with the exception of those named above, I cannot recall any others. It is, as you probably know, the name of one of the inland parishes, of the county of Ayr, and, in its turn; gave his title, that of Lord Ochiltree, to one of the old Scottish Lords or Barons. The Earls of Dundonald, whose family surname is "Cochran, bear also the title of "Baron Cochran, of Paisley and Ochiltree." Although holding the two Ayrshire titles, of Dundonald and Ochiltree, this noble family have now practically ceased to have any real connection with the County of Ayr; no part of their possessions remaining to them in that county, or, indeed in Scotland, except an acre or two, on which stands the ruined castle of Dundonald, the cradle of the Stewart line of kings."

Mr. George Madison Ochiltree,

My Dear Sir:

Yours of the 7th ulto. came to hand, in due time. Many thanks for the same. I am happy to find that you take an interest in the antecedents of the Ochiltree family.

I am not in possession of much of our history, and the more important dates are lacking. As much as I can remember is as follows: "The family name was Stewart, and the title of the head of the same, was Lord Ochiltree, whose estates were in the counties of Ayr, Lanark and Perth, Scotland. During the reign of Mary, Queen of Scots, among others to lose land and title were our ancestors. A portion of the family took the name of their ancestral house, which we still bear; others, to gain favor with those in power, retained the name of Stewart. My great grandfather, Matthew Ochiltree, purchased a large tract of land in the County of Armagh, Ireland, when yet a young man, and occupied the same. His family consisted of three sons and one daughter, named Matthew, Michael, Robert and Mary. Matthew emigrated to America, and, after a few years, ceased to communicate with his relatives and was heard of no more. Michael and Mary died without children. Robert married a lady named Sarah Mary Henry and to them were born five children, Matthew, Robert, James Henry, Michael and Sarah Mary. Mathew married and raised a family of three boys and two girls; William, Bertrand and Thomas Edward are in Australia; the remainder are living in Scotland, where one uncle died a few years since. Robert and Sarah Mary died young; James Henry married and had a family of one son and two daughters; the latter are married and living in the County of Down, Ireland. Michael, my father, has a family of whom one now tries to give you all the information in his power. The other, my sister, lives with father on a portion of the property purchased, as before mentioned. The good old man is now seventy-eight years old, and living as becomes the family from whence he came. Now for something of myself. I was born January 1, 1840; came to Canada in 1857, and to St. Louis, Mo., in 1860. This was just before the beginning of the trouble in the United States; so I caught the war fever early in '61, enlisted in Company B, Twenty-second Illinois Volunteers; served three years and was mustered out at Springfield, Illinois, in '64. A few weeks found me again at the front in Company B, Fortieth Missouri Volunteers from St. Louis. I got my share of hard times, being in the hospital, wounded, taken prisoner, sent to Richmond, starved in Libby and other places, but came out all right in the end. After the war closed, I went into the regular army, and was discharged in Texas, in '69, went from there to Canada, and after a short stay went back to the old country to see my father and sister; stayed with them until '72, and came back and re-enlisted, and have been in the service since that time. So you see I have always been a rolling stone; doing little good for myself and less harm to anyone else. My father spared no expense in order to make me equal to the rest of the family but could not. I make a pretty good soldier and would make nothing else. However, as my bed has been of my own making, I will be content with my lot. It is a pleasure for me to know that you are a Republican; although a soldier should never express himself as in favor of any party, yet one will have an opinion; and were I ever to cast a vote, it would be in favor of the side on which I fought.

Yours truly,

James H. Ochiltree,
Lieut. Co. H, 18th Infantry."

We find on investigation that James Ochiltree, the only one of his immediate family that left Ireland, died at Tampa, Florida, July 30, 1908; that his widow, Sophia Ochiltree, notified the War Department, August 1, 1908, of his death. Her residence at that time was 1305 Florida Avenue, Tampa; but letters to that address show that she had moved and left no address. James H. Ochiltree's name is on the rolls as sergeant.

Copy of Letter From Miss Ferguson to W. E. Ochiltree

"The Sycamores,
Grove Park,
Lenzie,
Glasgow, Scotland,
October 17, 1915.

Dear Mr. Ochiltree:

Your letter of 3, September, gave me very great surprise and has interested me very much. Genealogy has always had a great attraction for me, and of course that of my own family specially so. For years, I searched and searched for information concerning the origin of the Ochiltree family, and in one way or another gathered together a certain amount; but finding that none of the Ochiltrees with whom I am acquainted had any real interest in the matter, and thinking that there would be no one after me to care anything about the subject, I concluded I was some sort of a freak in the family, and put aside my papers and took to other things. However, I am all the more pleased now to have your letter, and to know that you are interested in the family history, and I shall be only too glad to give you all the information I possess on the subject, only please do not expect too much. Perhaps my uncle Mr. T. E. Ochiltree, has fancied I know more than I do. I can give you the stem of the Ochiltree family, back to the beginning of historic time, and I mean to write it out for you in my spare moments. Unfortunately, I have not many of these, as my mother, I greatly regret to say, is up in years and very much of an invalid, and I am the only one to attend on her. Still if you will excuse delay, I hope to manage it. But the thing I have never been able to find out is, just where our different families branch off. There seem to have been several younger sons and it must have been from some of them; but as yet I have not been able to trace their descendants. Thus, I am sorry that I cannot tell you anything of your branch in America, except that my mother's people always knew that it existed. She remembers, when a child, her father telling her about some relatives in the States writing him a letter all in verse, two lines of which she can still recall, in which the relative told of some change in his residence as follows:

'Richmond City I disown,
Rocky Mills is now my home.'

"I think from your letter that you do not know that the Ochiltrees are a branch of that perhaps most romantic of all historic families—the Royal Stuarts of Scotland. Their name is really Stewart or Stuart (the spelling does not matter). Ochiltree is only the name of the lands they once held. Ochiltree is in Ayrshire, Scotland, and it is a habit in Scotland (and perhaps in other countries, for all I know) to designate people by their lands. Their history is really a most interesting one, and the name, Ochiltree, represents an ancient, and honorable, race. It is no wonder that their descendants, scattered as they are, over the world, have always retained some tradition of their importance.

In looking over my papers, I find I have an old will, dated 21st day of March, 1810, signed by Matthew Ochiltree, of Ballindaragh, County Armagh, Ireland; in which he leaves certain possessions to his son, Matthew, "if he returns from America." From another source, I learn he never did return. Would this be the Matthew you mentioned as settling in Maryland? But who Michael, Alexander, and James were, I have no idea. This old will mentions two other sons, Michael, and Robert, (my great-grandfather), and one daughter. They never went abroad. I have never heard anything of what my uncle in Australia told you, about his great-grandfather being one of seven sons, born in Ayrshire, Scotland, going to Ireland, towards the middle of the eighteenth century. My mother has never heard of it, and, I doubt, he has made some mistake. I don't think there was any such recent emigration, of any of the name, to Ireland. I believe the family all went in 1611. You say your ancestor, James Ochiltree, probably settled in America, about 1776. That is a very probable date. Thousands of the Presbyterians, settlers in the north of Ireland, went across the Atlantic at that period, unable to endure the tyranny of English rule, towards their religion, just as the south and west Catholics fled to France and Spain. And in America, these Scotch-Irish Presbyterians paid back their debt to England, during the war of independence, just as the Catholic Celts did, in the armies of France, Spain, and Austria, on the battlefields, on the Continent of Europe.

"In conclusion, I wish to thank you, for your good wishes, for this country, in its present great struggle. It is, indeed, an appalling war, and we do not know what lies before us. But our men are very brave, and determined; and no one seems in the least doubt, but that we shall win through. One of my own brothers, settled for four years, in New Zealand, is at present on his way back, to join the fighting, we think at the Dardanelles, but he must not say where. Another brother's son, just 21, expects to be going to the front immediately.

Believe me, very sincerely yours,

A. B. Ochiltree Ferguson."

"Deep River, Iowa,

Dear Sir:

In reply to yours of recent date, will state that three brothers, Matthew, Michael, and Alexander, came to this country, from Ireland, having gone from Scotland to Ireland, on account of religious persecution, having changed their names from Stewart to Ochiltree. On reaching this country, they retained the name, Ochiltree. My grandfather was Alexander Ochiltree. He was not married, when he came to America, but settled and married, in Greenbrier County, Va. On the farm on which he settled my father and I, myself, were born, and reared. Grandfather was killed by the Indians. My grandfather's daughters were, Elizabeth and Mary, who married men by the names of Blake, and Patton. The boys, were, James, (my father), John, and Alexander. John moved to Ohio, and died there. He had a family of seven girls and one boy. Alexander, Jr., had sons, Andrew, James, John, Sampson, Garland, and two daughters, Patience, and Margaret. Uncle Alexander lived and died near my father's home. His family moved to Lewis County, in the northwest part of the state, and I have lost all trace of them. Sampson was still in Greenbrier, when I left there. Of course, it is mostly tradition, but my mother told me, that an old Aunt of her's, had told her about the change of name, from Stewart, to Ochiltree. She knew, because her family came over in the same ship, with the Ochiltrees.

Yours truly,

R. G. Ochiltree."

W. E. Ochiltree,

October 11, 1916

Dear Sir:

My mother has let me have your letter, to my brother William. I was only a little more than five years old, when father died. My father's name was William John Ochiltree, and he came from County Armagh, Ireland. The name of my father's father, (my grandfather), was James Henry Ochiltree. He had one son, William John, (my father), and two daughters. My grandfather married a girl that did not suit his family, and I suppose that there was constant trouble. Anyway, when my father was about five years old, my grandfather left home and came to America. He communicated with home, until his wife, (my grandmother) died, and that was the last they heard of him. My mother often heard my father speak of Uncle Michael. Uncle Michael wanted to adopt my father, in fact, my father did go and live with him, for a while, but ran away to sea, to try and find his father. My father was away from home, for seven years, before they heard from him, and they had given him up as lost at sea; but, at last, he did come back, and told his sisters that he could not find his father, and they came to the conclusion that he was dead. My father often spoke of his two cousins, William Bertrand and Thomas Edmund; and often said that if he had been wise, he would have gone and stayed in Australia with them. I was named for Thomas Edmund. From the letter that you quote, from James H. Ochiltree, I am sure that he was my father's full cousin; that my grandfather, James H. Ochiltree, was a brother of his father.

Yours truly,

Thomas Edmund Ochiltree,

Dear Sir:

Your letter, dated July 14, addressed to Andrew Ochiltree, 249, Morrison Street, Edinburg, has come into my hands; and, altho' connected with the subject matter, I regret not being able to give you much information. There are many points in your letter, which convince me of our relationship; but many of the names are mixed. We have only one way of spelling our surname, and that is, "Ochiltree." The Christian names, being the same, through different generations, for the greater part, are difficult to follow. We are of Scotch descent. My great-grandfather was one of seven sons, born in Co. Ayr, Scotland. He emigrated to the north of Ireland and purchased an estate. My grandfather succeeded to it, residing thereon, until his death. He had three sons, and one daughter, Matthew, Michael, and James H. Of this latter name, I am not certain, as he went to America. His last letter was dated from Ohio; then all traces of him were lost. Matthew, my father, lived in Markethill, County Armagh, had three sons and two daughters, namely: William Bertram, Robert Henry, and myself, (Tho's. Edmund). My sisters, Mary J., and Anna; the former, married, is now residing near Glasgow; the latter died, there, some years since. My brother, W. B., died here sixteen years ago. Robert Henry went to America about sixty years since. Uncle Michael succeeded to my grandfather's estate, in the parish of Mullabrack, County of Armagh, and there resided, when I left home, as a lad; and, if still living, should be about 95 years of age. As you are in quest of ancient family history, I would refer you to my sister's daughter, who went in for, and procured, much valuable information, and spoke of publishing a book on the subject.—Miss Ferguson, Lenzie, Glasgow.

Yours truly,

T. E. Ochiltree.

Your letter reached me through my son, J. L. Ochiltree, Perth, West Australia."

. . . . William J. Ochiltree, whom I met in New York City, proved to be a very fine fellow. He lives in Jersey City, and is Assistant Treasurer of Blair County, an old, and prominent, Banking and Brokerage firm, on Broad street, just off Wall street, in New York City. His grandfather came to America, from North Ireland, and the family never heard of him again. When his parents came, I am not sure. His mother is still living in New Jersey. He had never heard of any other members of the Ochiltree family, in America; and was much interested. He says he will take the matter of family history up with his mother, and write me.

"I am to take lunch with W. J. Ochiltree. I saw his name in the telephone directory, and called him up. He lives in Jersey City. His office is in New York. He says his family always lived north, and were Scotch. He spells his name with an "e", but pronounces the "O" long."

"Rahway, New Jersey,

October 28, 1915.

. . . . "I am in receipt of your letter, and thank you for it, especially, the part concerning my grandfather, James H. Ochiltree, son of Robert, and Sarah Mary (Henry) Ochiltree. I would like, very much, to trace from where my grandfather was last heard from, in Ohio, and find out, if possible, his last resting place, and know if he is sleeping his last sleep, as an Ochiltree should. My father had two sisters, Sarah Mary, and Anna Elizabeth. The latter died, in 1884, the year I was born, and left no family. Sarah Mary died in March, this year, and left two children, a son and a daughter. Both are living at present, in County Down, Ireland. My father and mother had twelve children, seven of whom died before I was born. The other five are still living, namely: Margaret, Sarah, James H., William J., and myself, all married, except James H., my oldest brother. He lives with mother. My sister, Sarah, has written to my cousin, in Ireland, asking her if she can give us any information, concerning my father's ancestors, and if her mother, (my father's sister), left any papers, or told her anything concerning the family. I spoke to my mother about Andrew Ochiltree, of Edinburg, Scotland. She does not seem to be able to place him. Perhaps my cousin can. There is no doubt, we are related. I intend to write to Thomas Edmund, or his son.

Yours Truly,

Thomas E. Ochiltree."

W. E. Ochiltree, Attorney-at-Law,
Connersville, Indiana.

18th September, 1914.

Dear Sir:

The nam Ochiltree is one of the oldest Scotch nams on record. There was a man from the ragister's house at our house some years ago, asking what the crest of the Ochiltrees was. I was not at home, and my wife sad she did not know; neither do I know. He sad it was one of the oldest Scotch names. My father, and my grandfather, belonged to the parish of Curry, Mid Lothian. But I don't know whar they cam from. My oldest brother, James, went to Australia, fifty-eight years ago, and settled in Victoria-Ramsay, Victoria. His family are still there. My second oldest brother, Alexander, went after James. He was unmarried. He died a good few years ago. My son, James, went to western Australia, three years ago. He has six of a family, three sons and three daughters. The oldest son, Andrew Ochiltree, and James Oliver, and Edward, daughters, Isabella Sutherland, Mary Graham, and Hannah, live in 517, Murray St., Perth, Western Australia. There are some families, Ochiltrees, in East Lothian. I think, myself, that the Ochiltrees, at one time, belonged from Ayrshire to the Ochil Hills. I don't know of any place of the nam Ochiltree from Ayrshire, till you cam to West Lothian, then Ochiltree, Ochiltree Castle, Ochiltree Mill, Little Ochiltree, Big, or Muckle Ochiltree, and it is all into the Earl of Haflin's estat. Now, than, the Ochil Hills are on a sticht line, across the Firth of Forth. Robert Ochiltree, at Cumley Bank, is a nephew of mine. There was six sons, in our family. The three oldest are dead. I cannot find anybody that can give me any information on the nam of Ochiltree, but I don't think it had anything to do with the nam Stewart. I got more light on the nam from you than I ever knew before. There was another family, in Currie, the nam of Ochiltree. They went abroad long ago. That is about all I can tell you about the nam Ochiltree.

Yours Faithfully,

Andrew Ochiltree."

The following humerous account, of the name Ochiltree, is given by a member of the family:

"My father once concluded he would like to know whence the name Ochiltree; and to whom should he go for information, but to one who had but recently, come from the land of the Ochiltrees. Jamie Curry talked broad Scotch, and strutted like a peacock. He was born in Scotland, and had soldiered in Ireland. My father said to him, 'Jamie, I am looking for some one, who can tell me the origin of the name, Ochiltree.' 'Mr. Okeltra,' he said, 'I can tell ye all aboot it, meself. There was a mon aboot to be hung, for sheep stalin'. When he looked at the tree on which he was to hang, he exclaimed, 'Och tha tree!' By some means, his life was spared; but 'Och tha tree,' stuck to him, as a name."

The Different Branches of Ochiltrees Who Emigrated to America At An Early Date

The North Carolina branch of Ochiltrees, came to America in 1739. They are thought to have been the first, of the name, to cross the Atlantic. Descendants of these, settled in New Jersey, Georgia, Texas, and California.

Three brothers, Matthew, Michael, and Alexander Ochiltree, came from County Armagh, Ireland, in the province of Ulster.

Matthew lived for a time in Maryland, but married, and settled, in New Castle County, Delaware.

Michael came from Delaware, to Rockbridge Co., Va., between 1794, and 1797, where he married Betsey Finley. He died the following year.

Alexander, unmarried, came to Va., settled in Greenbrier Co., where he married, about 1769, and was killed by the Indians, in 1778.

James Ochiltree bought land in Rockbridge Co., Va., in 1783. Whether he was a fourth brother, and came from Ireland, to America, with the other three, in 1760, living for some years in Pennsylvania, before going to Virginia, or whether he came direct from Scotland, or whether he was a brother of Michael, mentioned below, the most diligent research, among his descendants, and the public records of Pennsylvania and Virginia, utterly refuse to disclose.

Michael Ochiltree married Mary Elliott, and came from Ireland, to Augusta county, Virginia in 1793.

There are some families of Ochiltrees, comparatively recent arrivals, in America, from Armagh and Down Counties, Ireland, as will be seen, from the letters given. Although they are, probably, from the same Armagh ancestry as the earlier emigrants, it has not been possible to connect them.

Over the grave of William Ogletree, a Revolutionary soldier, buried near Coggans, the Piedmont, Continental Chapter, D. A. R., of Atlanta, has unveiled, during the present year, (date not given) a handsome marker. Impressive exercises were held, in connection with the unveiling, at which time, a large number of the old hero's lineal descendants gathered, with the Daughters of the Revolution, to honor the memory of a revered ancestor. The James Monroe Chapter, of Forsyth, was also present, by special invitation. Mr. John Mott made a brief speech, introducing Mrs. Richard R. Brooks, Regent of the Piedmont Continental Chapter, who made a fine address. She was followed by the orator of the occasion, Prof. J. P. Mott, of Brunswick. Mrs. J. O. Dander of Forsyth, Regent of the James Monroe Chapter, made a short address, on behalf of her chapter; after which the exercises were concluded with a few eloquent remarks, by C. O. Goodwine, of Forsyth. Four great, great, granddaughters, of the old soldier, unveiled the marker—Misses Ora Evans, Christine Goodwine, Nellie Goodwine, and Louie Suttin, of Monroe.

Some Extracts From "The Bench and Bar of Texas,"

by James Lynch, 1885

William B. Ochiltree, was born in Cumberland, County, North Carolina, October 18, 1811. His educational advantages were slender, and he removed, when quite young, to the Territory of Florida, thence to Alabama, where he was admitted to the bar. In 1840, he removed to Texas, and settled at Nacogdoches, where he soon acquired a large practice. The bar of Nacogdoches was, at that time, noted for its legal ability, and justly regarded as one of the most distinguished, in the Southwest. But, Mr. Ochiltree was equal to the requirements of success, and to the severe test, which a claim to eminence demanded; he was soon recognized as one of the most skillful and logical, as well as one of the most learned, advocates of the bar. While he was deficient in general learning, his vigorous mind grasped and embraced the subtleties of law, with an alacrity and comprehension, which placed him in the first rank of the profession. His popularity was great. He received the familiar sobriquet of "Buffalo Head," which was given, in consequence of the peculiar formation of his head, which was remarkably large, indicating intellectual powers, of the highest order. In 1855, he removed to the town of Marshall. In 1863, his health declined, and being aware of the fatal character of his decline, he devoted his time to setting his house in order. He became a member of the Episcopal church, and died in the faith of Christianity, at Jefferson, December 27, 1867, aged 56 years.

Judge Ochiltree had seen Texas, as an independent sovereign nation; as a prosperous state in the Union; as a gallant member of the Confederacy; and as a conquered province, by military rule; and it is a pity that he did not live to see her rise, like Thebes, from the smouldering ashes, clad in the robes of a new prosperity. During a period of thirty years, his name was closely connected with the history of Texas, and she will preserve it, as of one of her truest and most useful citizens. In social life, he was generous and kind; courteous and affable in his demeanor to all classes, and attracted the regard of all who approached him. He was greatly beloved by his family, esteemed by his neighbors, and universally revered by his fellow citizens.

OCHILTREE

Red-Headed Apostle of "How To Live On Nothing."

(Philadelphia Times)

Col. Thomas P. Ochiltree, is, at last, on the high road to recovery. This will, doubtless, be gratifying news, to the friends of the Colonel, which class, by the way, constitutes about everybody who has ever known this original and unique Texan. One of the Colonel's friends once described him, as "the red-headed apostle of "How To Live On Nothing a Year." Whether this characterization was just, or not, the fact remains, that few men have ever enjoyed more of the good things of this world, than the Colonel has; and, apparently, they come to him, without effort on his part. He is a lawyer, by profession, but as the boy said, of his father's religion, he has never practiced it much. When he first entered the profession, he did so, as the junior partner of his father, Judge William B. Ochiltree, in Galveston. The old man, upon taking his son into business, hung out their shingle, with the legend, "W. B. Ochiltree and Son," inscribed thereon, and then went away to attend court, leaving junior in charge. When he returned, his amazement was great, to find the modest shingle removed, and in its place a sign, reaching clear across the sidewalk, and inscribed thereon, in letters a foot high, "Thomas P. Ochiltree and Father." That was characteristic of the man. He was not a student of books; but, perhaps, few people have ever lived, who knew human nature better than the Colonel; and that, together with his fine humor, originality, and native kindness, made him a Republican Congressman, from a Democratic district, and the welcome guest of the Royalty, of Europe. Utterly lacking in a fixity of purpose, apparently without ambition, and living today for the fun that the morrow holds forth, this jolly raconteur has passed through life, at least thus far, sipping the sweets denied to common mortals, who have made the most strenuous exertions for a taste of them. Yet it were impossible to envy this minion of fortune, if you know him, for, somehow or other, his very personality impresses you with the idea that he is, of all men, the one fittest to have that crown of many good things, which an apparently capricious, fate, sometimes presses upon a brow, never bent to receive it.

W. B. Ochiltree, Portrait.

Austin, Texas, May 24, 1897.

Following are the remarks of the Hon. John H. Reagan, made today, in presenting, to the Supreme Court, the portrait of the Hon. William B. Ochiltree:

"To the Honorable, the Justices of the Supreme Court: May it please this honorable court, pursuant to a request made by Major Thomas P. Ochiltree, I present to the Supreme Court, of the State of Texas, a portrait of his distinguished father, the late Hon. William B. Ochiltree, who, in former years, was one of the justices of the Supreme Court, of the late Republic of Texas. I knew Judge Ochiltree, from the time he came to Texas, in 1840. He was appointed one of the judges of the District Court, of the Republic of Texas, in 1842. At that time, the judges of the District Court were assembled in banc, annually, in the capacity of a Supreme Court. In 1844, he was appointed Secretary of the Treasury, of the Republic, by President Anson Jones, and was transferred to the office of Attorney-General, in 1845. In that year, he was elected from the county of Nacogdoches, as a member of the convention, which framed the first constitution of the state of Texas, as a colleague of Gen. Thomas J. Rusk, and Gen. Joseph L. Hogg. In that convention, he was associated with the most distinguished galaxy of men, considering intellectual capacity, and character, probably, which ever assembled in Texas. It embraced such men as Thos. J. Rusk, John Hemphill, Abner S. Lipscomb, R. E. B. Baylor, J. B. Miller, Isaac Van Zandt, James S. Mayfield, and J. Pinkney Henderson, Volney B. Howard, Joseph L. Hogg, George W. Smith, George P. Wood, Lemuel D. Evans, G. A. Evarts, and a number of others, scarcely less distinguished.

In 1846, he was appointed one of the judges of the District Court of Texas, by Governor J. Pimkney Henderson; which position he resigned, in 1847. In 1855, and 1856, he was a leading member of the House of Representatives, of the Texas legislature. In 1861, he was elected a member of the state constitutional convention sometimes called the "Secession Convention," and he was, by that convention, elected a member of the provisional Congress, of the Confederate States of America; with Senators, Hemphill, and Wigfall, Representative Reagan, General Waul, and Judge Gregg, as his colleagues.

At the close of his service, in the provisional Congress of the Confederacy, he raised an infantry regiment, and went into the military service, of the Confederacy, as Colonel, which position he resigned, on account of his ill health, in 1863. In all of these highly responsible official positions, he acquitted himself with ability and honor, and to the satisfaction of the public.

He gave himself to the successful practice of the law, when not withdrawn from it, by his public official duties. As indicative at his character and standing, with the people of Texas, his friends brought him before the public, at one time, as a candidate for the office of governor of the state; and at another time, as a candidate for a seat in Congress; and he took an active interest in everything which related to the growth, improvement and welfare, of the state.

John W. Ochiltree

William Leon Way

A Group of Pennsylvania Ochiltrees

As indicated by his name, he was of Scotch descent. He was a splendid specimen of a man, both physically and intellectually; of an ardent temperament, and generous disposition.

He died in December 1867, at the age of 56 years, as he had lived; without a stain on his good name, honored, and respected, by all who knew him.

It is fitting, and proper, that his portrait shall adorn the room of the Supreme Court, of the state he loved and served so well.

In behalf of the Court, Chief-Justice Gains responded: "Judge Ochiltree came to the Republic of Texas after its independence was established; but before the foundation of it's jurisprudence was laid. Upon the foundation, subsequently laid, the structure of our judicial system has been reared, and enlarged, and, has been adapted to the wants of our increased population, and wealth, and to the complicated conditions of modern civilization. It cannot be said that it is without defects; but its excellence has been attested, by the fact that it has been, substantially, adopted by most of the states of the union, and by the, comparatively, recent establishment of a similar system, by the most conservative nation, from whom we borrowed the common law.

Among the pioneers of the Republic, were many of the most remarkable men, and jurists, whom this country has produced. Among these, Judge Ochiltree was a prominent figure. As a sound lawyer, and as an advocate, unsurpassed for force, and brilliancy, he stood in the foremost rank. Having been one of the District Judges, and, as such, ex-officio, a judge of the Supreme Court of the Republic, and having been, also, a member of the convention that framed the first constitution of the state, it is proper that his portrait should have a place among those of other eminent jurists, whose labors have reflected credit on our judiciary.

The gift, now tendered, is, therefore, accepted; and it is ordered that it be given an appropriate place, upon the walls of the rooms, of this court.

A.

Matthew Ochiltree came to America, from Co. Armagh, North Ireland, in the province of Ulster, about 1760. He settled in Delaware; although he is said, by descendants, to have first lived, for a time, in Maryland. He married, in 1761, Mary Maxwell, daughter of James Maxwell, of Scotch descent, but thought to have been born in America. James Maxwell owned, lived on, and died on a farm in Mill Creek Hundred, New Castle Co., Delaware. His daughter, Sarah, married Dr. Robert Bines. Elizabeth, a third daughter, married Samuel Houston. Of her, we have no further record. Robert Bines was an Irishman, a physician and surgeon, in the Continental army, during the Revolutionary war; and for his services, at that time, the government, afterwards, gave him a patent for a large tract of land, in the military district, in Ohio. Neither he nor his descendants ever received anything, in any way, from it; although at several different times, the matter was talked over by his children. A son-in-law, Andrew Moore, went out into this district, to look it up, but, at that time, it was occupied and claimed, by squatters, who had been in possession of it, for so long, that it was difficult to do anything to dispossess them; and all effort in that direction, ceased, as far back as 1835. James Maxwell, and, no doubt, his wife, of whom we have no record, Matthew Ochiltree, Dr. Robert Bines and Sarah Maxwell Bines, his wife, and James and Margaret (Bines) Ochiltree, all died on the old Maxwell place, and were buried in the old, McKennan church-yard; or, more properly, Red Clay Creek Presbyterian church-yard, about a mile north of the old homestead. Matthew Ochiltree, at one time, lived and kept a store, at Hockessin, Del.; and it is thought that his wife died there, and was buried there, and that he went to live with his son, James, on the old Maxwell place, and there died, and was buried. "That old place, now the property of the heirs of Maxwell Bines Ochiltree, has remained in the family, for five generations. First, James Maxwell owned it; then Dr. Robert Bines; James Ochiltree, Maxwell Bines Ochiltree, and now, (1888), the heirs of Maxwell Bines Ochiltree." William Kerns, son of Simon and Elizabeth (Ochiltree) Kerns, in a record of the family, made in 1888, says: "Around that old place, and the old Red Clay Creek Presbyterian church, and burying ground, there clusters the memory of the ancestors of my dear mother, who was born and reared in the same old house, where her mother, and both of her grandmothers were born; for James and Margaret (Bines) Ochiltree were first cousins; children of the two sisters, Mary (Maxwell) Ochiltree, and Sarah (Maxwell) Bines. Matthew Ochiltree died May 14, 1798. His son-in-law, Robert M. Waugh, was appointed administrator of his estate. Matthew and Mary (Maxwell) Ochiltree were the parents of six children.

- A.1. Elizabeth Ochiltree; b. 1761; m. Robert M. Waugh; he died prior to 1804.
- A.2. James Ochiltree; b. 1762; m. his cousin Margaret Bines.
- A.3. John Ochiltree; b. 1764; m. Elizabeth Waugh.
- A.4. Margaret Ochiltree; d. July 18, 1794; no further record.
- A.5. Matthew Ochiltree, Jr.; m. Catherine ———.
- A.6. Thomas Ochiltree; supposed to have died previous to 1799, and left no heirs, as no mention is made of him, in the bill Ochiltree vs. Ochiltree.

A.1. Elizabeth Ochiltree; b. 1761; m. Robert Waugh. It is found from old records that she was his widow and administratrix in Nov. 1804; no further record.

A.2. James Ochiltree; b. Nov. 22, 1762; m. his first cousin, Margaret Bines, b. Feb. 22, 1762; Margaret (Bines) Ochiltree was born in Mill Creek Hundred, on the old Maxwell homestead, reared her family there, and died there, June 18, 1845, at the age of 83 years. Her mother lived with her, after the death of Dr. Bines. The record, left by William Kerns, says, "My grandmother told me, in 1841, when she was 79 years old, that she was never away from the home place, except on visits for a few days at a time, but once, and that was in 1777, when her mother took her children to New London Cross Roads, to avoid contact with the British army, at the time of the Battle of Brandywine, and remained away for three months. She was then 15 years of age. A few years before her death, her son, Maxwell Bines Ochiltree, built a new house on the old place, when she left the old house, much to her regret. James Ochiltree died Oct. 9, 1839, aged 77 yrs.

Margaret Ochiltree died July 18, 1845, aged 83 yrs. Both are buried in the Old Clay Creek Presbyterian church cemetery. 7 children.

- A.2.1. Mary Ochiltree; b. Oct. 25, 1789; (called Aunt Polly) never married; d. Oct. 31, 1871, aged 82 yrs, at the home of her niece, Elizabeth Guthrie.
- A.2.2. Sarah Ochiltree; b. July 14, 1791; m. John Dixon.
- A.2.3. John Ochiltree; b. Dec. 4, 1793; m. Elizabeth Donnell.
- A.2.4. Elizabeth Ochiltree; b. Jan. 1, 1797; m. Simon Kerns.
- A.2.5. Margaret Ochiltree; (twin); b. Feb. 19, 1799; m. Thomas Dixon, of Baltimore, Md. No further record could be obtained of this family.
- A.2.6. Ann Ochiltree; (twin); b. February 19, 1799; m. Alexander Guthrie; his first wife; 2nd. Mrs. Durnell; 3rd. ———.
- A.2.7. Maxwell Bines Ochiltree; b. May 3, 1802; m. Elizabeth Evans Lindsey.

A.2.2. Sarah Ochiltree; b. July 14, 1791; m. John Dixon; b. July 14, 1791 on a New Castle Co., Del., farm; "He was of a delicate constitution, and would not work on the farm. In those days, every one was supposed to be strong, and able to work. He was called lazy. He attended school, more than the other brothers and sisters, and when grown, taught school. After he was married, his income, as a teacher, was not sufficient to maintain his family; so he took a country inn, where he accommodated "man, and beast." He died, while his children were all young."

- A.2.2.1. James Maxwell Dixon; m. Rebecca Moran; 9 children.
- A.2.2.2. Thomas Dixon, Jr.; m. Lydia Simmons.
- A.2.2.3. Mary Ann Dixon; b. Jan. 20, 1821; never m.; lived all her life with her brother Thomas; d. Feb. 26, 1889.
- A.2.2.4. John Dixon; b. Feb. 14, 1823; never m.; lived with his brother, Thomas; d. Nov. 10, 1880.
- A.2.2.5. Margaret Dixon; b. Aug. 5, 1825; d. in infancy.
- A.2.2.6. Sarah Ely Dixon; b. Dec. 15, 1828; d. Sept. 8, 1854.
- A.2.2.7. Harriett Dixon; b. July 4, 1832; d. in infancy.

A.2.2.1. James Maxwell Dixon; b. Dec. 5, 1816, in New Castle Co., Del.; m. July 13, 1843, Rebeca Moran; died in Mt. Washington, Md., Feb. 19, 1863. Their children were:

- A.2.2.1.1. Maxwell Bines Dixon; b. 1844; never m.; architect; d. 1913.
- A.2.2.1.2. Charles Herbert Dixon; b. Feb. 24, 1846; carpenter; m. Rebecca Weir, Dec. 17, 1895, in Wilmington, Del.; no children.
- A.2.2.1.3. John Dixon, (twin); b. 1848; d. 1849.
- A.2.2.1.4. Anna Dixon, (twin); b. 1848; d. 1849.
- A.2.2.1.5. George W. Dixon; b. 1850; d. 1857.
- The above all born in Wilmington.

James Brice et al, executors of will of John Somonson, dec'd, to Matthew Ochiltree, of Washington, Pa., conveys four lots in the original plan of Washington, fronting on Chestnut street; date of deed Apr. 4, 1810.

Matthew Ochiltree and Kitty, his wife, convey to Hugh Wilson, four lots in Washington, Pa.; Jan. 1, 1814.

Matthew Ochiltree and Catharine, his wife, of the town of Somerset, Somerset Co., Pa., convey to Manuel Quinn, one lot in Washington, Sept. 20, 1815.

Matthew Ochiltree and Catharine, his wife, of town of Somerset, Somerset Co., Pa., convey one lot in Washington, to James Blaine, September 24, 1816.

History of Washington Co., Pa., 1882, by Boyd Crumline, under the heading, "Early Taverns"; "Matthew Ochiltree was licensed in Feb. 1807, and opened a Tavern, at the old stand, formerly kept by James Wilson, where Smith's store now stands. He remained at this place, until April, 1812. The James Wilson tavern was located on the Smith lot, at the north-west corner of Main and Beau streets." This is believed to have been Matthew Ochiltree, son of Matthew, senior, and Mary Maxwell Ochiltree of New Castle Co., Del.; and who went to Va., with power of attorney from his brothers, to claim the estate, or money, left them, by Michael Ochiltree, their uncle. The following record is authentic, except the name Matthew, which has not been fully proven, but of which, it seems, there can be no reasonable doubt. Dr. John D. Ochiltree was born in Washington Co., Pa., in 1810. His mother's name was Catharine. It is believed that the above named Matthew was his father and was the son of Matthew and Mary (Maxwell) Ochiltree, who is mentioned in the bill, Ochiltree vs. Ochiltree, as going to Va., with power of attorney from his brothers; and that he afterward settled in Somerset Co.; and later, in Washington Co., Pa. With this explanation, we give the following as the line of descent of Dr. John D. Ochiltree, long a practicing physician in Cincinnati.

- A.5. Matthew Ochiltree; third son of Matthew, Sr., and Mary (Maxwell) Ochiltree, of New Castle Co., Del.; m. Catharine ———.
- A.5.1. Isaac Ochiltree; no record.
 - A.5.2. A son; settled in Iowa; no further record.

- A.5.3.1.3. Margaret Bell; m. Arthur Woods Knox; both deceased; one child.
- A.5.3.1.3.1. Virginia Merion Knox; m. Stanton Greene Prentiss, of Columbus, Ohio; 2 children.
 - A.5.3.1.3.1.1. Frederick William Prentiss, II.
 - A.5.3.1.3.1.2. Margaret Prentiss.
- A.5.3.2. Mary Eliza Ochiltree, daughter of James and Martha (Brooke) Ochiltree; m. Mr. Kennedy; one daughter.
- A.5.3.2.1. Grace Bell Kennedy; m. L. Boyd Wilson; Newark, Ohio.
- A.5.4. Dr. John D. Ochiltree; fourth child and fourth son of Matthew and Catharine ——— Ochiltree; b. in Washington Co., Pa., in 1810; practiced medicine in Cincinnati, Ohio, for many years. He married Hannah Hunt Churchill, who died many years before his death. He spent the latter years of his life at the home of his son, William A. Ochiltree, at Olathe, Kansas, who died about four years before his father's death; 5 children.
- A.5.4.1. William A. Ochiltree; m. Ellen Neal.
 - A.5.4.2. Alonzo Ochiltree.
 - A.5.4.3. Caroline Ochiltree.
 - A.5.4.4. Catharine L. Ochiltree; m. George Hafer.
 - A.5.4.5. John Ochiltree; no further record.

- A.5.4.1. William A. Ochiltree; b. in Cincinnati, O., June 14, 1834; m. Ellen Neal; located in Olathe, Kansas, where he d. Feb. 14, 1891. Mrs. Ochiltree resides in Olathe; 3 children.
- A.5.4.1.1. Ella Ochiltree; m. Henry Keefer.
- A.5.4.1.2. Anna Ochiltree; a business woman, in Kansas City, Mo.
- A.5.4.1.3. John Ochiltree; d. in infancy.
- A.5.4.4. Catharine L. Ochiltree was b. in 1845, in Cincinnati; she was a small child when her mother died; she was adopted by Mr. and Mrs. William Mann, relatives, and was known as Kate Mann. She married in 1864, George Hafer; residence, Toledo, Ohio.
- A.5.4.4.1. William Hafer; b. and d. in 1865.
- A.5.4.4.2. George Hafer, Jr., b. 1866; m. 1897, Florence Degginger.
- A.5.4.4.2.1. Jean Stewart Hafer; b. 1898.
- A.5.4.4.3. Frank Hafer; b. 1868; m. 1893, Elizabeth Baumgardner.
- A.5.4.4.3.1. Constance E. Hafer; born 1900.
- A.5.4.4.4. Edward Hafer; born, 1870.
- A.5.4.4.5. Caroline M. Hafer; b. 1874; m. 1893 to Ralph Sheldon, born 1870, d. 1897; Mrs. Sheldon was m. in 1900, to Walter Folger Brown; residence, Toledo, Ohio.

- B. Michael Ochiltree, evidently, according to deposition, in the case, Ochiltree vs. Ochiltree, went from New Castle Co., Del., to Rockbridge Co., Va., between 1794 or '95 and 1797, as the deponent knew him in New Castle Co., four or five years before his death, in 1799, and he bought land in Rockbridge Co., Va., in 1797. On Sept. 20, 1798, he married, evidently late in life in Rockbridge Co., Betsey Findley. Rev. William Baldridge officiating minister. He died in Botetourt Co., adjoining Rockbridge Co., in May 1799. He left half of his estate to his wife, and one half to his brothers and sisters; in case of their death to their heirs. It is evident, from this, that Matthew, Michael and Alexander Ochiltree had sisters, although the nephews were not aware of the fact. His brother, Alexander, was killed by the Indians in Greenbrier Co., Va., in 1778, and his brother Matthew had died, in New Castle Co., Del., the year previous to his death. He may have had other brothers in Ireland. Whether his sisters were in America, or in the old country, or living, at the time the will was made, does not appear. In those days, of life in the wilderness, with no railroads, telegraph, mail routes, or, even, wagon roads, when families separated, we are told, it was for life. They did not expect, ever to return, or to see, or, except by a chance messenger, to hear from, each other, again. It was very natural, that Michael Ochiltree should not know whether his brothers or sisters were living or not; and that the nephews should not know of the existence of either. We have endeavored, without success, to learn the result of the suit. This might have yielded more, important data. As James Ochiltree was living, in Rockbridge Co., at the time the will was made, it would seem that he could not have been a brother, or he would have been mentioned, by name, in the will. However, this is not proof, positive, that he was not. Michael Ochiltree received from George Warren Parker, deed, dated October 30, 1797, for 120 acres of land, on Elk Creek, described as in Rockbridge County, and the grantee as of Botetourt Co. Sept. 6, 1802, William Findley, executor, sold a part of this land, to William Ramsey, 60 acres, lying on east side of Elk Creek; and, later, conveyed to John Alexander, the remaining 60 acres. Martha (Ochiltree) Ramsey, and Jenet (Ochiltree) Alexander, were sisters, daughters of James Ochiltree, Sr., (D.), June 4, 1804, William and Martha (Ochiltree) Ramsey conveyed, to one John Bagley, land in Rockbridge Co., Va., on waters of Elk and Stony Creek, branches of James River; a part of which at least, was this same land.

On Sept. 22, 1801, Elizabeth Ochiltree was married, in Rockbridge Co., by Rev. William Baldrige, to James Agnew. This was, no doubt, the widow of Michael Ochiltree. There is a tradition, in a branch of the descendants of Alexander, of an estate left, in which they were entitled to a share; but their claim was not urged. It was, possibly, the estate of Michael Ochiltree.

WILL OF MICHAEL OCHILTREE

Who Came From Delaware to Virginia

I, Michael Ochiltree, of Botetourt Co., and state of Virginia, sensible of the uncertainty of this mortal life, and being of sound mind and memory, do make this my last will and Testament, in manner and form following: and first, that my remains be decently interred; and secondly, that the tract of land on which I now live, containing 600 acres, more or less, be sold; the one half of its value, when sold, a young sorrel mare, together with one bed, and its furniture, and cupboard furniture, I give and bequeath to my beloved wife, Elizabeth Ochiltree. Thirdly, that entails (tracts) adjoining the above mentioned tract, together with a small tract in the Valley, Rockbridge Co., with all my personal estate, be sold; after twenty pounds, given to the Rev. William Baldrige, all my lawful debts paid, the balance to be equally divided, between my brothers and sisters; or in case of death, their heirs.

And further, I appoint William Finley and John Robinson, of Rockbridge Co., to be the sole executors, of this, my last will; revoking all former wills.

In witness whereof, I have, hereunto, set my hand and seal, this eleventh day of May, in the year of our Lord, one thousand, seven hundred and ninety-nine. Michael Okletree.

Signed, sealed and delivered, in presence of,

William Crop,
James Hewitt,
James Stone,

At Botetourt, June Court, 1799.

The Last Will and Testament, of Michael Ochiltree, deceased, was exhibited in Court and proved, by the oath of James Hewitt, James Stone, and the affirmation of William Crop, witnesses thereto; subscribed and ordered to be recorded:

Depositions. File 36.

Okletree vs. Okletree,
New Castle County,
State of Delaware.

Personally appeared before me, the subscribed, one of the Justices, assigned to keep the peace, for said county, Edward Armstrong, of the village of Newark, in White Clay Creek Hundred, and county aforesaid; who, having been solemnly sworn, and interrogated, deposeth and saith; that he knew Matthew Okletree, now deceased, for upwards of twenty years, before his death; and that he also, was well acquainted with Michael Okletree, (now said to be dead, in the state of Virginia), for four or five years, before his death, as he believes, and that said Michael Okletree was brother of Matthew Okletree, above named; that said Matthew Okletree, at the time of his death, left five children, named as follows: Elizabeth, James, John, Matthew and Thomas; all of which are yet living, as he believes, except John, the third above named child, who died last December, and left a widow, named Elizabeth, to whom he was intermarried, some years before his death; that she is the person who now has executed a power of attorney, to her brother-in-law, Matthew Okletree, Jr., the above named fourth child of his father, Matthew Okletree, Sr., and nephew of Michael Okletree, above named, deceased; and that the said widow, Elizabeth Okletree, is one of the administrators of her husband, John Okletree's, estate; and resides in New Castle Co., and place aforesaid; that the said John, at the time of his death, left six children (one born after his decease), all of which are now living); and further this deponent sayeth not.

Sworn and subscribed, May the twenty-third, one thousand, eight hundred, and three.

Before William M. Mechen.

State of Delaware,
New Castle County, SS.

The above is certified to by Evan Thomas, Recorder.

Okletree vs. Okletree,

To the Honorable, the Judge of the Chancery Court, holden at Staunton, for the western district.

Your orator, Matthew Okletree, in his own right, and as attorney-in-fact, for James Okletree, and Elizabeth Okletree, widow and administratrix, and Robert Waugh, administrator of John Okletree, deceased, humbly represents that said John Okletree deceased, James Okletree aforesaid, and your orator, are sons and representatives of Matthew Okletree, Sr., who is now dead; that the said Matthew had but two other children; Elizabeth and Thomas, your orator further represents, that the said Matthew is only brother to Michael Okletree, deceased, the testator of the defendants; and that the said Michael had no sisters, within the knowledge of your orator. Your orator further represents that the said Michael Okletree departed this life on the — day of —, having first made his last will and testament, dated the 11th day of May, 1799; which will and testament is here produced, and prayed to be taken as part of this bill, in which amongst other things, he bequeathed that the land on which he then lived, containing 600 acres, two entrays, (tracts), adjoining the same, a small tract of land in the valley, Rockbridge Co., and all his personal property, except one young sorrel mare, one bed, and furniture, and one cupboard, and furniture., should be sold; and that the monies, arriving from the sales thereof, should be disposed of in the following manner, to-wit: (Here follows statement of bequests as given in will). Your orator further states, that William Finley, and John Robinson, were appointed executors to said will; that they have sold the property aforesaid; and refuse to pay to your orator, three-fifths of the said balance, to which he is entitled, in his own right, and as attorney-in-fact as aforesaid; all of which actings and doings are contrary to equity, and good conscience; and tend to the wrong, injury, and oppression, of your orator; in tender consideration, whereof, and, for as much as your orator is remedyless, by the strict rules of Common Law; and only and properly relievable in a Court of Chancery, Whereupon, your orator prays that the said Finley and Robinson, who have qualified and acted under the will, aforesaid, be made defendants to this bill; and compelled, on oath, true and perfect answer to make, to all and singular, the allegations herein contained: Whether Michael Okletree, deceased, as aforesaid, their testator, had any sisters, and where they are; whether Matthew Okletree, deceased, as aforesaid, was not the only brother to said Michael the testator; whether the said Matthew is not dead, as before stated; whether he did not leave five children; whether your orator, the aforesaid John, deceased, and James, are not three of said children; whether said Michael, their testator, did not make the will, aforesaid; whether it does not contain the bequest, aforesaid; whether they have not taken probate thereof, qualified and acted under the same; whether they, or either of them, have sold the lands, entrays and personal property, aforesaid; for how much, and what are they worth, let them set forth, and discover; whether they have paid the debts, and to what amount, let them say; whether they have paid three-fifths of the aforesaid balance to your orator, in his own right, and as attorney-in-fact, as aforesaid, three-fifths of the aforesaid balance, together with interest, thereon, from such time as the monies arising, on the sales aforesaid, become due, and payable, to the defendants, as executors, aforesaid, and such other and further relief, as may be thought right and equitable. And your orator further prays: that should there be any sisters, to Michael, the testator, or their representatives, that Your Honor will decree such part of the balance aforesaid, together with interest thereon, as aforesaid, to your orator in his own right, and as attorney-in-fact as aforesaid, as under the will aforesaid in equity and good conscience he is entitled to, etc.

The following excellent record and history of descendants of Alexander Ochiltree, Sr., with the exception of the line of his son, John Ochiltree, was, for the most part, furnished by Mrs. McClung, "A. A. Ochiltree," of Tipton, Iowa.

Alexander Ochiltree, b. about 1742, came from Armagh, Ireland, with his brothers, Matthew and Michael; landing in Pa., going on, after a time, to Augusta Co., Va., and in 1769, to "the Greenbrier Country", now Greenbrier Co., West Va. He married there, in the same year, Elizabeth McCoy. They were among the first permanent settlers; the first white settlement being exterminated by the Indians, headed by Chief Cornstalk, who then passed on to Kerr's Creek, in Rockbridge Co., where many families, among them the Gilmores, were massacred and taken prisoners. The settlement, in 1769, was made by a company of young men; but a number of families soon followed. The following is taken from a local history of Greenbrier Co. "In May, 1778, the Indians attacked Donnelly's Fort, which was ten miles north of the present town of Lewisburg. The settlers had been warned by two scouts, with the exception of Alexander Ochiltree, and his family, and a family by the name of Burns. The attack had begun, when these families started to the fort. The two men were killed, Burns instantly. Ochiltree ran about three hundred yards, across a wheat field, but fell, pierced by seven bullets." An item found in the Rockbridge Co., records states, "In settlement of John McClanachan's estate, report of executor, date Sept. 30, 1776; Received Alexander Ochiltree's account." Alexander Ochiltree left five children:

- C.1. Elizabeth Ochiltree; m. Mr. Patton; no further record.
- C.2. Mary Ochiltree; m. Mr. Blake; no further record.
- C.3. James Ochiltree; m. Elinor Fullerton.
- C.4. John Ochiltree; m. Elinor Wilson.
- C.5. Alexander Ochiltree; m. name of wife not given.

- C.3. James Ochiltree, son of Alexander and Elizabeth (McCoy) Ochiltree, was b. in 1772, on the farm on which his father settled, in Greenbrier Co., West Va. He married there, in 1793, Elinor Fullerton, whose parents had emigrated from Ireland. Her father was killed by the Indians, in Greenbrier Co. Her sister, Margaret, died on the voyage, across the Atlantic. Her other sisters and brothers were: Jane, William, Blanche, John and James. Elinor was the sixth child. "When all of the children of James and Elinor (Fullerton) Ochiltree, had married, and left the old home, James Copenhaver, their son-in-law, and their youngest son, Robert Gilland Ochiltree, returned to Virginia, and brought the aged couple to Ohio, where they made their home, with their son-in-law and daughter, James and Elizabeth Copenhaver, until their death. Mrs. Ochiltree lost her sight some years before her death. Of their ten children, but three failed to reach three score and ten. The others exceeded this age, many years. A perfect physique, inherited from clean, robust, parents, much outdoor life, and the plain wholesome fare of the pioneer, tended to longevity. One trait, common to all the children of James and Elinor (Fullerton) Ochiltree, was their love for their native state. Virginia was the spot best loved, though Ohio had been kind, Illinois as well, and Iowa kinder still, their thoughts were ever turning backward. The stories told about the hearth, of a cold winter evening, when the wind whistled about the log walls, and roared down the broad chimneys, were all centered in Virginia's hills, and mountains, and valley's. The deer, the bear, the catamount, the speckled trout of the mountain brooks, the beechwoods, the mountain laurel, the big brown chestnuts, the ox-heart cherries, the hams from mast-fed hogs, the bread from white corn-meal, such as can not be found north of the Mason and Dixon line, were they not all as familiar to us as though we, too, had been so fortunate as to be born in Virginia. One longed to view it in the flesh, so alluring was it to the mental vision." The children of James and Elinor Ochiltree were:

- C.3.1. Alexander Ochiltree, III.; m. his cousin Elizabeth Blake.
- C.3.2. Jean Ochiltree; m. David Williams.

"He was an estimable man, a cheerful, delightful companion, with but two hates, that rankled in his heart; i.e. Mrs. Stowe's book, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," and the North, that he considered had desecrated the soil of his loved Virginia. Mrs. Stowe, he described as "a meddlesome Yankee woman, who wrote on a subject, of which she knew, absolutely, nothing." Coming home, one day, and finding his son, Joseph, reading the obnoxious volume, loaned by a neighbor, he so far forgot the rights of property, as to open the stove, and add fuel to the flames, in a literal sense, as the sight of the book had already done, figuratively. In common with his other brothers, he never admitted that there was a West Virginia; as they considered the division of the state "a high-handed outrage." In 1855, with his five younger children, he came to Iowa, to join the brothers, who had preceded him. He died at the home of his brother, Morris, near Tipton, Cedar Co., Ia., March 5, 1873. He married, in 1833, his first cousin, Mary Blake. To them were born seven children. In 1836, he removed to Ohio, locating in Champaign County. Receiving glowing accounts of the fertile prairies of Iowa, from a brother, who had preceded him, to the, then, new state, he made the journey from Virginia by wagon, being a month on the way, and in 1845, reached "the promised land." Here Mrs. Ochiltree died, Sept. 10, 1855. In 1857, Mr. Ochiltree married Mrs. Rebecca Edminston Jones, of Pochahontis County, Virginia, who died in Cedar County, Nov. 23, 1876, leaving five children. William Ochiltree was a man of fixed beliefs and indomitable will. With all of his brothers, he sided with the South in the troubled times of the Civil war, and asserted his right as a free-born American citizen, to express his opinion, at any and all times that suited his pleasure; consequently, he was, more than once, threatened with hanging. Being asked to vote for a man, whom he knew and esteemed, who had affiliated with the Republican party, he answered, "Very sorry, gentleman, but I could not vote for my own brother, if his name was on that ticket." After the death of his wife, Rebecca Ochiltree, he made his home with his eldest living daughter, Mrs. C. C. Edminston, and died at her home in Cedar County, in 1895, aged 91 years. He had 12 children, 51 grandchildren, and more than 90 great grandchildren.

- C.3.6. Morris Ochiltree; son of James and Elinor (Fullerton) Ochiltree, (C.3.); was born in Greenbrier County, Virginia, now in West Virginia, May 12, 1809. In 1834, when a young man of twenty-five years of age, he went to Champaign County, Ohio, where he married Francina McFerren. After the birth of three children, in 1841, they removed to Cedar County, Iowa, where their remaining three children were born. Mrs. Ochiltree died Aug. 31, 1848. Mr. Ochiltree married, Nov. 2, 1852, Mrs. Margaret (Hagerman) Breyfogel. To them were born four children. Mrs. Margaret Ochiltree died Nov. 4, 1879. Mr. Ochiltree remained in the old home, cared for by his daughter, Anna, and his step-daughter, Margaret, until his death on April 4, 1884. "A true Christian gentleman in the fullest sense of the word." He wronged no one by word or deed. His daughter, being asked what epitaph should be graven on his monument, replied, "Father's life is his epitaph; it is written in our hearts; he would desire no other." His daughter, Anna, also writes, "I speak of my own father as being more familiar to me; but the same applies to one and all of the children of James and Elinor (Fullerton) Ochiltree. Into the cold north, they brought the warm-hearted, open-handed hospitality of the South-land. My father had but three months' work in a school-room, in his life; yet he had a fund of general information, which I have never found equalled. Seldom did I propound a question that he could not answer—of the birds, the flowers, the trees, in my childhood days, and, as I grew older, of people, politics, history—he was the same unfailing source of information. Through the winter, our home seemed more a hotel, than a home, in that there were always guests coming and going. The bonds of 'clan' were not worn so loosely then as now, and it was not only relatives and friends who crossed the threshold; no one was turned from the door in those days. When I was a child, there was a constant stream of emigrants. It seemed to me a prairie schooner was always in sight. My father, having a large family, there were few bed-rooms for the passing guest. But they were given the freedom of the floor in the kitchen, which was a very large, long room, with an immense fireplace, and the dining room was theirs. Once when my father and mother had gone into another county to visit my mother's grandmother (who died in her hundredth year), my uncle Alexander was left, as head of the home. Being in the drive-way one evening, he saw a prairie schooner, drawn by weary horses, approaching, through the dusk. Instantly the gate was thrown open with a hearty, "drive in stranger," to emphasize the action. They did so and prepared their evening repast, in the large barnyard. But the evening was chilly and the young wife indisposed; so they were brought in, and installed in my parents' room. They remained members of our household for a month, or more; and, whereas, four members formed the family, when it entered our gates, there were five at the going forth. When my father came to Iowa, the deer bounded past his dwelling, and the Indian camped in his woodland. They were very friendly, and one night, as he passed their camp-fire, proffered their hospitality. They had a big feast, "skunk; heap good;" but father declined with his unvarying courtesy. The settlers, in the neighborhood where my father settled, were mostly Virginians; the woodland near being called "Virginia Grove." There were no schools, and few books; so a resident governess had to be engaged the first few years, to teach the children. My father's little store of books was loaned far and wide; and often they failed to return. One book, a telling temperance story, when last heard from, was in an adjacent county and still moving northward. The ten children of Morris Ochiltree were:

They lived a year in Iowa Co., Ia., then returned to Cedar Co., and took up their abode on a farm that formed part of the family holdings; after the death of his father, he sold the farm and purchased another near Pringhar, Ia., where they lived until most of their children were well grown; when he "went west", to get more land. They purchased a section in Miner Co., South Dakota, where they lived for several years; then made their home in Mitchell, S. D., that their children might attend Wesleyan College at that place. Town life palling, they purchased another farm near Mitchell where they reside. He is a farmer and breeder of Duroc Jersey swine and Clydesdale horses. Both Mr. and Mrs. Ochiltree are indefatigable in church work and assist with voice and purse, and have given liberally to the M. E. hospital at Mitchell.

- C.3.6.9. Anna Amanda Ochiltree; second daughter and third child of Morris and Margaret Hagerman (Breyfogel) Ochiltree; was born at "Virginia Lodge," her father's home, near Tipton, Iowa, Dec. 6, 1859. Her whole life has been spent on this place, which she now owns, save when her profession has called her away. She was educated in the Tipton H. S. and the N. U. S. A. at Wilton, Ia. Also completed the course at the Cedar Co., Normal school. Occupation, teacher, and farmer, rhymster for amusement. Has pursued the profession of teaching for twenty-five years. She says, "When I began to read books, at about the age of six years, we had remaining, (aside from technical works) "Livingston's Travels," "Life of Marion," "A Reply to Paine," "History of the World," in two large volumes, "History of America," "Life of Daniel Boone," and a number of treatises on Theology and doctrinal points, that were too deep for me. but I remember happy hours spent curled up in the attic bed-room, threading the jungles with Livingston, hiding from pursuit in the marshes with Marion, and feasting my eyes on the beautiful scenes of the blue grass country with Boone. The histories were too cumbersome for my childish hands, but laid on the floor, I poured over them, my head propped on my hands, and learned more foreign history than I ever learned in school. Even then, unbiased by the opinions of older heads, I loved the Stewart, wept over "Bonnie Prince Charlie," hated Cromwell, the butcher, and detested Napoleon as an upstart. Does this prove the Stuart, or Stewart, blood?" Anna A. Ochiltree was married in June 1910, to Edwin S. McClung of Greenbrier Co., Virginia, but retains her maiden name. Res. Tipton, Ia.
- C.3.6.10. Robert Kyle Ochiltree; youngest son and child of Morris and Margaret B. Ochiltree; b. at "Virginia Lodge," near Tipton, Ia., Aug. 12, 1862. Mr. Ochiltree married Apr. 20, 1854, at Williamsburg, West Va., Elizabeth Jeffries. John Ray Ochiltree was another example of the remarkable stamina of the offspring of James and Eleanor Ochiltree. Though past 97 when he died, he had been able to oversee his farm, walking or driving about it until about one year before his death; when he received injuries from a fall from which he never recovered. His mental faculties were unimpaired to the last. Like all of James Ochiltree's children, he was a Christian and his passing was calm and peaceful. In 1855, they had come to Cedar Co., Ia., where they lived until 1868, removing to Guthrie Co., where they purchased land and made their permanent home. Here Mrs. Ochiltree died, March 31, 1898, leaving 7 children.

C.3.10. Robert Gilland Ochiltree; tenth and youngest child, and seventh son, of James and Eleanor (Fullerton) Ochiltree; was born in Greenbrier Co., Va., now West Va., Sept. 15, 1820, on the farm on which his father was born, and on which his grandfather settled about 1769. Robert Ochiltree married, in Virginia, Jemima McCoy, a sister to Sarah McCoy, his brother Ray's wife. To them were born two children; Mrs. Ochiltree died Jan. 8, 1846; Mr. Ochiltree remained in Va., until the Autumn of 1847, when he went to Champaign Co., Ohio, leaving Virginia, at 27 years of age. In Jan. 1849, he married, in Ohio, Rebecca Wade Thomas. They were the parents of 8 children. They removed from Logan Co., Ohio, to Dewitt Co., Ill., in 1859 to Ogle Co., and in Oct. 1864, to Deep River, Powsheik Co., Ia., where Rebecca Ochiltree died June 9, 1869. March 29, 1871, Mr. Ochiltree married Mrs. Sarah C. Case, widowed sister of his wife, Rebecca Thomas Ochiltree. To them were born 2 children. In 1882, Mr. Ochiltree removed to his farm and there remained for 2 years; purchased property in Deep River which was his home until his death in June, 1912, in the 92nd year of his age. Robert G. Ochiltree, in particular of all the family, doted on Virginia. How often he said, "I must see dear old Virginia again before I die." But the years rolled by; the propitious time never came; and the summons 'Come up higher' found the longing unassuaged. And this longing impelled the following lines:

"An old man sat at a window,
And gazed at the starlit sky;
And the long, long years that he had lived,
Like gray ghosts flitted by.

And he said, "Oh, the world is a beautiful place,
I have seen it from ocean to sea;
But in all the world there is just one spot
That is home sweet home to me.

I sigh for my loved Virginia;
Her valleys I fain would see;
Oh sore is my heart with the aching,
Their memory brings to me.

Her mountain peaks swathed in vapor,
Their sides with rhododendrons aglow,
Their crevices, nooks, and crannies,
Where ferns and violets grow.

I close my eyes to the starlit skies,
And backward memory slips,
To the sparkling waters of the spring,
That cooled my parching lips.

And pellucid brooklets flowing
Down from the parent spring,
Among the pebbles purling—
Oh, wondrous the songs they sing.

The murmur of those mountain brooks,
Steals to my listening ear;
And with it, sound of voices loved,
That now no more I hear.

Now the mountain peaks are fading;
The brook's song dies away;
Yet I know the trout are rising,
To some angler's hook today.

I see the arch of a deep blue sky,
And white clouds drifting free;
I dream and dream and memory strays,
To a child at his mother's knee.

But mother has gone with the vanished years;
It is long since she went away;
For the child that stood that night at her knee,
Is ninety and one today.

Ah! soon will the greetings with loved ones come;
My heart with sweet rapture thrills;
But over the ramparts of Heaven I'd lean,
To gaze on Virginia's hills."

The author deeply regrets that the above record, which was not given as requested, does such scant justice to this numerous branch of the family, in this, their family history; and indeed, to all branches, by withholding all information, even the place of residence of so many of their clan and kindred. Had there been sufficient time, the matter would assuredly have been remedied by the author.

The list of names as given, of this family, may not be altogether correct; they were given by Robert G. Ochiltree, in his 92nd year, who had heard nothing of them for over 60 years.

THE NATURAL BRIDGE

"The Natural Bridge is 14 miles southwest from Lexington, 172 miles from Richmond, and 213 miles from Washington. The mean height of the bridge, from the stream below to its upper surface, is 215 feet, 6 inches; its average width is 80 feet; its length 93 feet, and its thickness 56 feet.

The stupendous arch constituting the bridge, is of limestone rock, covered to the depth of from 4 to 6 feet, with alluvial and clayey earth, and based upon huge rocks, of the same geological character, the summits of which are 90 feet, and their bases 50 feet, asunder, and whose rugged sides form the wild and awful chasm, spanned by the bridge.

The bridge is guarded, as by design of nature, by a parapet of rocks, and by trees and shrubbery, firmly imbedded in the soil, so that a person traveling the stage road running over it, would, if not informed of the curiosity, pass it unnoticed.

It is, also, worthy of remark, that the location of the natural bridge at this place, has contributed, in a singular manner, to the convenience of man; inasmuch, as the deep ravine, over which it sweeps, and through which traverses the beautiful Cedar Creek, is not, otherwise, easily passed, for several miles, either above or below the bridge; and, consequently, the road running from north to south, with an acclivity of 35 degrees, presents the same appearance, in soil, growth of trees, and general character, as that of the neighboring scenery. The Natural Bridge is higher, by 55 feet, than the Niagara Falls."

The above is from "History of Rockbridge Co., Va." Library of Washington and Lee University. Author not given.

From the records of deeds in Augusta Co., Va., from which Rockbridge Co., was formed, in 1777, it is found that the Natural Bridge tract, containing the Natural Bridge, by estimation 157 acres, described by metes and bounds, was patented to (President) Thomas Jefferson, by Lieutenant Governor Dunmore, July 5, 1774; and was conveyed by the Jefferson heirs, to one Lochlan, Nov. 2, 1833.

As shown by deed, on records of Rockbridge Co., Thomas and Hannah Kinkead conveyed to James Ochiltree, sen., on Dec. 12, 1783, for the consideration of "Waggon and Hingars, and two mares, and one pound ten shillings in cash," the following lands, namely:

In Rockbridge Co., in the state of Virginia. . . . Containing 160 acres be the same more, or less; lying and being in the forks of James River, and bounded as followeth, to wit: Beginning at a red oak, white oak, and hickory. . . . crossing a run at two white oak saplings, near Cedar bridge. . . . to a white oak on the top of a hill. . . . to a hickory and white oak in a line with Hugh Barclay's land . . . to the beginning; all houses, buildings, orchards, ways, water courses, waters—etc.

Deed signed in presence of Hugh Bradford, Caleb Sisson, and William McElhiney, witnesses; and proven in Court for said county, by subscribing witnesses, May 2, 1784.

James Ochiltree was born, probably, between 1740 and 1745. While he may have been a fourth brother, with Matthew, Michael and Alexander Ochiltree, and have come to America, at the same time with them, in 1760, nothing can be found to establish this as a fact. He is said by descendants to have come to Virginia, soon after the Revolutionary War. The first definite information we have of him, is the record of his purchase of a tract of land, adjoining the Natural Bridge tract, in Rockbridge Co., in 1783, the year after the close of the war; when there was a general exodus, from the oldes states to the newer ones, and from the old country to the new. It is tho't by some, that he was a brother of Michael Ochiltree, who came to Virginia, from Armagh Co., Ireland, in 1793, and that both were born in Scotland. It seems evident that the family had lived for some years in Pa., before going to Va. There is a tradition which is admitted to be of the vaguest character, that James Ochiltree, son of James Ochiltree, sen., was born on the ocean, on the voyage to America. James Ochiltree's wife's name was Catharine. They were Scotch or Scotch-Irish Presbyterians. They brought with them to Rockbridge Co., their church certificate. This was, until recent years, in the possession of a great granddaughter, now living in Rockbridge Co., but became mislaid, cannot now, be found, and the contents are not fully remembered. It is thought the name of the place given in the certificate was Bedford; and was, probably, Bedford, Pa.; altho' the name Ochiltree cannot be found on the records of that Co. We have no record of the death of Catharine Ochiltree, but know that she was not living in 1800, the date of James Ochiltree's will.

Two oaken chests, brought by them across the ocean, are still in the family. Among other heirlooms are mentioned, "some silver spoons, and knee-buckles, a ruffled shirt or two, old letters and documents, and other articles.

- D.1. John Ochiltree; born about 1767; m. Catharine ———
- D.2. Nancy Ochiltree; m. Wm. Clancy.
- D.3. Martha Ochiltree; b. 1771; m. William Ramsey, Sen., (See the Ramseys A.)

- D.4. James Ochiltree; m. Jemima Caldwell.
 D.5. Thomas Ochiltree; b. 1775; m. Jean Miller.
 D.6. Jenet Ochiltree; born 1777, was married, by Rev. William Baldridge, Oct. 5, 1803, to John Alexander. We have been unable to find any further record of the Alexanders, except that it would seem, from the mention made of them in the letter from James Ochiltree, from Preble Co., Ohio, to Thomas Ochiltree, in Rockbridge Co., Va., in 1809, that they were still living in Rockbridge County, and that presumably Nancy Clancy was not, as she is not mentioned. John Alexander, subsequent to 1802, date not given, bought from William Findley, executor of the estate of Michael Ochiltrees (B), the remaining 60 acres of land, to which Michael Ochiltree received a deed, from Geo. Warren Parker, Oct. 30, 1797; and of which, William Ramsey, brother-in-law of John Alexander, bought the other 60 acres, from William Findley, Sept. 6, 1802. Further than the above, we have been unable to find a trace of the Alexanders and no clue, whatever, to the Clancys.

There will, necessarily, be mention of this, and another branch of the Ochiltrees, in the Crawford History, to be published following this one. Doubtless some member of the above mentioned families, or some one who may have, or come into possession of, some clue to their whereabouts, may read this volume. Will any such, communicate with the author, who will be pleased to rescue from oblivion, and put into permanent form, by including it in the Crawford History, all such or any other Ochiltree data not herein recorded.

- D.1. John Ochiltree was evidently the eldest child of James and Catharine Ochiltree. While we have not the exact date of his birth, we have that of other members of the family, which enables us to fix approximately the date of his birth, and of the fourth child also. John Ochiltree was evidently born about 1767. The name of his wife was Catharine. She was called "Aunt Katy." They were no doubt married in Rockbridge Co., Va.; removing to Ohio, and in 1809, settling in Knox Co., Ind. Mr. Ochiltree built a somewhat pretentious house, for that day, owned large tracts of land, and also engaged in the mercantile business in Vincennes. He was a Presbyterian "of the strictest sect." He was one of the founders of Greencastle College, endowed it, and had a permanent scholarship in it. Having no children, and his wife having died, he made generous bequests to numerous relatives, leaving the remainder of his estate to South Hanover, Ind., Theological Seminary, now merged in the McCormick Theological Seminary, of Chicago. A grandniece tells of "Uncle Johnny" visiting at her father's home, coming in his old family coach, with his negro driver, and on his return home, taking her older sisters with him, as far as he thought they could go, and return alone; and of his telling them, on one such occasion, that he feared they would not see their old uncle much oftener; and they never saw him again. He died at Vincennes, Knox Co., Ind., in 1840. Following is a copy of his will, made in that year.

State of Indiana,
Knox County.

Be it remembered that on the ninth day of May, 1840, the following last Will and Testament of John Ockiltree, late of Knox Co., Ind., deceased, was allowed and probated in the Knox Circuit Court of said Co., and state to wit:

In the name of God Amen.

I, John Ochiltree, of the County of Knox, and State of Indiana, being in perfect health, mind, and memory, thanks be given unto God, though knowing the mortality of my body, and that it is appointed for all men, once to die, do make and ordain this, my Last Will and Testament. That is to say, principally and first of all, I give and recommend my soul to the hand of Almighty God, that gave it; and my body to be buried in the earth, in a decent and Christian manner, at the discretion of my executors; nothing doubting but at the general resurrection, I shall receive the same again by the mighty Power of God; and touching such wordly estate, wherewith it has pleased God to bless me in this life, I give and bequeath in the following manner and form:

First: I give and bequeath unto George Madison Ochiltree, and Kitty Ann Perry, the sum of four hundred dollars each; to John Ockiltree, James Ockiltree, John Ockiltree Perry, Kitty Ann Caruthers, and John Ockiltree McClure, Seign., (of Sullivan Co., Ind.) one hundred dollars each. To Elizabeth Lillie, wife of John Lillie, William P. McClure, Margaret McClure, Samuel A. McClure, James Madison McClure, Icebee Thompson, James Ockiltree Caruthers, and John Ockiltree Watson, Fifty dollars each. To John Ockiltree McClure, son of William McClure, twenty-five dollars. Secondly: I give unto my executors the sum of sixty dollars, for the purpose, of procuring a head and foot stone for my grave, (similar to that at my wife's grave); with the proper inscription on them, and the balance of the sixty dollars, to place at interest, until the fence around the graveyard, where my wife is now buried, and where I expect to be buried, needs repairing; then to apply the amount to making a new fence, or to repair the old one.

Thirdly: After paying all the foregoing bequests, I give and bequeath unto the Theological seminary, at South Hanover, in the state of Indiana, all the remainder of my estate, to continue a permanent fund and the interest to be applied to the education of pious indigent youths, who are preparing themselves for the ministry of the Gospel; and those only who strictly adhere to the Westminster Confession of Faith, in its literal meaning. Fourthly: I hereby direct my executors to sell all my personal property, on a credit of twelve months, and that they proceed to collect my other debts at the same time that they collect the money due on the sale of my personal property, and pay the same over, as fast as collected, to those entitled to receive it. Fifthly: My Executors are directed to pay the money due to the minor legatees to their proper guardians; to be by them placed at interest until said minors become of age, all the individual legacies to be first paid. Sixthly: I hereby appoint, ordain, and make the Rev. Samuel Alexander, and Robert McCord, Executors of this my last Will and Testament; hereby revoking all former Wills by me made.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and seal, this 15th day of June, in the year One thousand, eight hundred and forty.

John Ockiltree, (Seal)

Signed, sealed, and published by the Testator in the presence of the undersigned witnesses.

William J. Heberd.

Samuel Judah.

This will was probated at a Court held at Vincennes, Knox Co., Ind., Nov. 9, 1840, before the Hon. George R. Gibson, Judge of the Probate Court, by William J. Heberd, and Samuel Judah.—William R. McCord, Clerk.

D.4.

James Ochiltree was born about 1773; son of James and Catharine Ochiltree, who settled in Rockbridge Co., in 1783. He married in 1806, in Rockbridge Co., Jemima Caldwell; removed, in the same year, to Preble Co., Ohio, and in 1814, to Vincennes, Ind. They removed to Mt. Carmel, Wabash Co., Ill., in 1830; where they made their home. The following is a letter written by James Ochiltree from Preble Co., Ohio, to his brother and sister-in-law, Thomas and Jean Miller Ochiltree, in Rockbridge Co., Va.

Preble Co., O., August the 20th, 1809.

Dear Brother and Sister,

These lines leave us in good health at present, blessed be God for His mercies. We hope they will find you in the same state of health.

We have two sons; one named John and the other not named yet. I will be glad if you would send my money out with Mr. Salmon, as I stand in great need of it. I had to borrow at 8 per cent interest to pay off on my land, and I am surprised at Mr. McClung thinking he had no right to pay interest because he had the note. I don't consider it lifted till the money is paid; you must pay yourself out of it, for your trouble. William Ranisey's family are all well. We desire to be remembered to John Alexander's family. Time will not admit me to write any more at present, but we remain your loving brother and sister until death

James and Jemima Ochiltree

to

Per favor of

Mr. Salmon

Thomas and Jean Ochiltree

The large sheet of paper, on which the above was written, was folded once across, bringing the top end of the sheet to within about an inch of the bottom. The sides were then folded over towards and almost to the center. The top then folded down to the fold an inch from the bottom, this bottom part an inch wide folded over the top, making five folds in all; the whole, now about the size of a small envelope, was sealed with red sealing wax, and addressed on the outside. The children of James and Jemima Caldwell Ochiltree were:

D.4.1. John Ochiltree; m. Diana Holmes.

D.4.2. James Ochiltree; b. 1809; bachelor; came to Clark Co., Mo., in 1848; m. late in life, in Washington Co., Mo.

D.4.3. George Madison Ochiltree; b. 1811; m. Mary Jane Ernison.

- D.4.1. John Ochiltree; son of James and Jemima Ochiltree; was born in Rockbridge Co., Va., in 1807; married probably in Illinois to Diana Holmes of Ontario, New York. He was a farmer and merchant, of Clay Co., Ill. They had one child, a daughter. Mrs. Ochiltree died and Mr. Ochiltree married Martha J. McCauley; 3 children lived to be grown.
- D.4.1.1. Jemima Ann Ochiltree; m. George J. McDaniel.
- D.4.1.2. Louisa Ochiltree; m. Luke Hildebrand; no children.
- D.4.1.3. Daniel Lacey Ochiltree; the only son who lived to manhood; never married.
- D.4.1.4. Lovisa Margaret Ochiltree; m. 1, High Mendenhall; 2, James R. Feurt.
- D.4.1.1. Jemima Ann Ochiltree; daughter of John and Diana Holmes Ochiltree; born June 17, 1830, in Wabash Co., Ill.; was married in Clark Co., Mo., Feb. 13, 1851, to George J. McDaniel. Her mother died a few months after her birth. She was taken into the home of her grandparents, James and Jemima Ochiltree, where she remained until she was taken by her guardian, her bachelor uncle, James Ochiltree, to Clark Co., Mo., in 1848. When her step-mother died, Mrs. McDaniel took her half-brother and sisters into her home, and Daniel and Margaret had a home with her until they were grown. Louisa lived with her uncle at Ashley, Mo. Mrs. McDaniel was a member of the Baptist church, at St. Francisville, Mo., for 50 years. She died there at the home of her daughter, May 15, 1904. George McDaniel was born Oct. 20, 1825, in Ky. He died in St. Francisville, Jan. 24, 1868. He was a merchant, post-master, and sheriff of the county at the time of his death.
- D.4.1.1.1. Samuel W. McDaniel; b. 1852; d. 1853.
- D.4.1.1.2. James Madison McDaniel; b. Oct. 3, 1858. He is a bachelor; a farmer; interested in the development of Eastern Colorado, Cheyenne Co.
- D.4.1.1.3. George W. McDaniel; b. 1855; d. 1860.
- D.4.1.1.4. Victor Bell McDaniel; b. 1857; d. 1858.

Letter to Thomas Ochiltree, Captain of Militia of Rockbridge Co., Va.

Lexington, Va., July 14, 1807.

Sir:

Information has been received, that one of our frigates, on our own coast, has been lately attacked by a British ship of war, of superior force, in which attack, the frigate lost a number of her men, killed and wounded; received material damage in her hull and rigging; and was finally, forced to surrender; that, then, a British officer went aboard, and took out four of her crew, (American born citizens). The frigate was then permitted to return into port, and the British vessel then rejoined Commodore Douglass, who now lies with his squadron, in the Chesapeake Bay, and by whose immediate order, this unexampled violence has been perpetrated. Regardless of the law of nations, this squadron continues to insult our Government, and has menaced the town of Norfolk, with destruction. This outrage, with a long list, of others, growing into a system of premeditated violence, and insult, no longer to be tolerated, has drawn from our fellow citizens, in different parts of the state, the public declaration, that they will support the Government of their country, with their lives, and fortunes, by repelling these insults and punishing the aggressors. We hope that the citizens of this county will not be less prompt in declaring their sentiments, on this important occasion; and, particularly, those who have borne a share in the Revolutionary war. The citizens of Lexington have convened, resolving that a meeting of the citizens of Rockbridge Co., for that purpose, be requested, on Wednesday, the 22 inst., at the Court House. We are authorized to advise you of this resolution; and to request you to communicate it, as extensively as possible. We are authorized, also, to say that the Col. of this regiment does solicit the militia officers to attend, at the same time, to act in concert with the citizens.

Capt. Thomas Ochiltree, third and youngest son of James, Sen., and Catharine Ochiltree, was born in 1775, presumably in Pennsylvania. He came to Rockbridge County, Virginia, with his father in 1783, living near the Natural Bridge. He married on Feb. 18, 1796, Jean Miller, Rev. Samuel Houston of Rural Valley Rockbridge County, officiating minister. Jean Miller's parents, Henry Miller, Sen., and Rebecca (Boggs) Miller, came from Londonderry, Ireland, to Pennsylvania, in 1757, and from Lancaster County, Pa., to Rockbridge Co., Va., in 1770. Jean Ochiltree was a good Christian woman and mother. She brought up her children in the way that they should go, and when they were old, they did not depart from it. Thomas and Jean Ochiltree lived on the home place near the Natural Bridge. Thomas Ochiltree was Captain of a company of militia for several years, which held itself in readiness before and during the war of 1812, to go at call. (See letter). He was taken sick and died at his home Apr. 28, 1812, aged 37 years, "A young, good-looking man." Mrs. Ochiltree was left with eight young children, the eldest fifteen years, and the youngest two weeks old. Mrs. Ochiltree was married Jan. 11, 1816, by Rev. Houston, to George Leyburn, a Scotchman, "fond of dress and proud of his ancestors." The children of Thomas and Jean Ochiltree were:

- D.5.1. James Ochiltree; m. Katharine Paxton.
- D.5.2. Rebecca Boggs Ochiltree; m. John Leech.
- D.5.3. William Shields Ochiltree; died young.
- D.5.4. Elizabeth Ochiltree; m. James Wilson.
- D.5.5. Keziah Ochiltree; m. Daniel Ginger.
- D.5.6. Thomas Ochiltree; m. Nancy Hamilton.
- D.5.7. Henry Miller Ochiltree; m. Margaret Bell.
- D.5.8. David Alexander Ochiltree; m. Jane Leech.

Aug. 11, 1836, Thomas Ochiltree, and Nancy, his wife, conveyed their interest in the land of James Ochiltree, deceased, to Henry and David Ochiltree "land adjoining lands of John Waskey, Job Remington, and the Natural Bridge tract, on which Thomas Ochiltree, deceased, formerly lived and which descended to his children of which the aforesaid Thomas in onc."

September 21, 1836, Henry M. Ochiltree conveyed to David A. Ochiltree, his interest in said land.

Henry Miller Ochiltree

Margaret (Bell) Ochiltree

Daniel and Keziah (Ochiltree) Ginger, of Preble Co., O., also gave a deed to David Ochiltree to their one seventh interest in said land, consideration \$100.00; lands lying in Rockbridge Co., on the waters of Cedar Creek, adjoining land of Joel Lachlan and others, containing by estimation 181 $\frac{3}{4}$ acres.

May 28, 1841, James and Elizabeth (Ochiltree) Wilson executed and acknowledged a deed before a Justice of the Peace in Wythe Co., Va., conveying their interest to David A. Ochiltree.

June 19, 1841, James and Catharine Ochiltree, of Rush Co., Ind., conveyed to David A. Ochiltree, their interest in land described as in deed from Kincaid to James Ochiltree; being an undivided one seventh; consideration $100.00.

June 4, 1842, John and Rebecca (Ochiltree) Leech convey to David A. Ochiltree, their interest, consideration $100.00.

September 15, 1859, David A. Ochiltree, and Jane, his wife, sold "the old tract," adjoining the Natural Bridge tract to Jesse Wooden, or Wooten.

From Mrs. Margaret Swartz, we have received, just in time to go in the History, the Oath of Allegiance, or naturalization papers, of James Ochiltree, Sen., which we give below verbatim. It is to be regretted that the name of the state is not given. The paper is yellow and almost crumbling with age, but the writing is perfectly distinct. The name is inserted in the blank, left for the purpose, in a regular written form, appearing, in its neatness and preciseness, almost as if engraved. This document, at least, proves that James Ochiltree was in America, in, or prior to, the year 1777, and seems to render more probable the theory that he may have been a fourth brother, and have come to America with, Matthew, Michael, and Alexander, in 1760; although this does not, necessarily, follow. Neither does it follow that he had but recently arrived in America; as this oath of allegiance, taken in the second year of the Revolutionary war, was, no doubt, in accordance with an act passed on account of the war, and the necessity of knowing who were loyal to the American cause.

I do hereby certify that J. Ockelltree hath taken and subscribed the Oath or Affirmation of Allegiance and Fidelity as Directed by an Act of General Assembly intituled an Act to oblige the free male inhabitants of this state above a certain age to give Assurance of Allegiance to the same and for other Purposes. In Colonial days, and for long after, there were scribes, often the neighborhood schoolmaster, who were called upon to draw up papers and documents, such as wills, and deeds, and to write letters, for the less gifted in that line, which included the majority of the people; the letters of even George Washington and other early Presidents of the United States, being very faulty, in both their orthography and chirography.

Another interesting old document is the survey and plat of 160 acres of land, made for William Greenlee, June 17, 1771, by John Trimble; granted to Thomas Kinkad, by patent, Apr. 10, 1791; re-granted to James Ochiltree, inclusively, with $21\frac{3}{4}$ acres more, under warrant, 14,274. To the southwest of this tract, is the tract, marked in the copy of the survey, "T. Jefferson, 157 acres surveyed by John Trimble." The patent is dated July 8, 1774.

It would be impossible to describe the shape of this survey, or tract of land, of James Ochiltree, as there are, by actual count, fifteen angles or corners in the boundary lines.

It was then the custom to run the lines from one sapling to another, or from one kind of a tree to another, or to a tree at the crossing of a stream, etc. A perusal of one of these old documents will often give one a fair idea of the different species of trees found in that locality. One wonders how the boundary lines were preserved.

As proof of the fact that Woman's Rights did not then hold the place in the scheme of things, that it occupies today, we note a receipt, given Aug. 10, 1811, by John Alexander, to Thomas Ochiltree, for 13 pounds, 13 shillings, in part of a legacy, "coming to me," from Thomas Ochiltree, executor for James Ochiltree, deceased. This was a part of Jenet (Ochiltree) Alexander's (his wife's) share of her father's estate, left to her in his will, made before her marriage.

Letter from Katharine (Paxton) Ochiltree from Ogden, Ind., to her late husband's mother and brother in Rockbridge Co., Va. The sheet was folded to form an envelope and sealed with wax. In one corner in lieu of a postage stamp was written "25 cts." This was the amount necessary for postage on a letter in those days.

Ogden, Indiana.

Dear Mother

I take this opportunity of informing you of our present circumstances and past afflictions and had it not been for the all-sustaining Grace of God bearing me up I must certainly have sunk under the weight of afflictions he has been pleased to send upon me But Blessed be His Holy Name forever, who supported me through six troubles and still promises to be the widow's Judge within his place of Holiness and has promised when we pass through the waters to be with us and to not let the floods drown us. My Beloved Husband after a short but severe illness billious remittent fever was called to try the realities of another world, on the 1st day of October 1841 and on the 6th of the same month our daughter Eliza with the same disease followed him to that land from whose bourne no traveller returns Samuel and little James were also very sick with the same disease but have recovered, and we who are alive are all at present in good health and have enough of the Bounties of Providence to satisfy our need. My trust for future support is in God who has promised to be a father to the fatherless and a husband to the widow. And I am determined through the sustaining Grace of God to endeavor to have my walk and conversation as becomes the Gospel looking forward to that happy period when we shall all meet to part no more, where Dear Mother I hope to meet you and all my friends. Oh let us be faithful unto death then happy thrice happy we will be to all eternity. Brother James is administrator of the estate. We had one Sale last Saturday, and sold all of the personal estate but $100.00 worth. There is not enough personal property to pay the debt so that part of the real estate will have to be sold. I think we can keep 30 acres of land after paying the debt which if properly managed will yield us a support. Thomas lives about 40 miles from us. He was at the sale. He and family are well. He has two children. The other children are all at home with me. The particulars I cannot now relate for want of room as I must bring my letter to a close. Farewell. From your loving daughter-in-law

Katharine Ochiltree

To David and Wife

Dear Brother and Sister you will see by the above letter our circumstances and prospects now what shall I write to you more than I have to your mother, except my respects and good wishes as regards both your temporal and eternal interests and let me exhort you to be diligent in the concerns of your soul, for remember that a few short weeks ago your brother James had as bright prospects for life as you possibly can have, and where is he now gone to meet his God and give an account of the deeds done in the Body and neither you nor I know when we shall be called let us live as we would wish we had done when we come to die Let the death of our friends admonish us to be ready and watching prepared to meet our God. Give our best wishes to all who inquire after our welfare and may God grant that we may all meet at last in his kingdom where Parting shall be no more. Farewell, write soon. Katharine Ochiltree.

John Calvin Ochiltree; son of Thomas and Elizabeth (Hamilton) Ochiltree, born in Union Co., Ind., M'ch 20, 1843; came, an infant, with his parents to Glenwood; taught in the Glenwood schools for a number of years. In the early 80's, he became part owner of the Connersville Times; later of the Indianapolis Herald; later still of the Hendricks County Republican, of Danville, Ind., the Marion Chronicle, of Marion, Ind., and following that, editor of the Dayton Press of Dayton, Ohio; remaining in this city until his death, Aug. 19, 1915. Mr. Ochiltree was a Republican in politics, and contributed much, through his newspaper activities, and editorial writings, in which he excelled, to the success of that party, in his own locality. In his editorial writings, he combined a forcefulness of expression, and brilliancy of style, with a high moral standard, in politics, and municipal and domestic affairs. He was also a contributor to other newspapers and magazines, of editorial matter and short stories and sketches. As an entertaining conversationalist, Mr. Ochiltree had few equals. As his general information embraced almost every known science, he could hold the attention, in any company. He was of a kindly, lovable disposition, in his family, and, among his associates, so much so, that he was sometimes imposed on by those who enjoyed his conversation. Yet he never complained, and when free to work, could do in a few hours, what would seem to take other men a whole day to accomplish. Mr. Ochiltree married, in Nov. 1875, Lydia Davis, of Glenwood, who died Aug. 1890, leaving 1 son. Mr. Ochiltree married, Apr. 1892, Nora Knight, of Marion, Ind. To them were born twin daughters. Their residence was in Dayton, Ohio. Mr. Ochiltree died, in Dayton, Aug. 19, 1915, but was buried at Rushville, Ind., near the place of his birth. He was loved and respected by all who knew him, and his memory is revered by his family, as of one whose life was filled with only kindness, and charity for all.

- D.5.6. Thomas Miller Ochiltree, sixth child and third son of Capt. Thomas and Jean (Miller) Ochiltree, was born in Rockbridge Co., Va., Jan. 5, 1807, near the Natural Bridge, which he crossed on his way to school. When nineteen years old, he started out in life for himself. At twenty-one years of age, in 1828, he married Nancy Hamilton, of Rockbridge county, born Dec. 5, 1805. With three children, they came, in 1838, to Missouri, settling at Ashley, Pike county, where Mr. Ochiltree engaged in farming and stock raising, and also owned and operated a flour mill for many years. They were a well-to-do and highly respected family of Ashley. They gave their children all a good common school education. Mrs. Ochiltree died Nov. 7, 1850, aged forty-five years. Mr. Ochiltree never married again. The oldest daughter, Harriett, seventeen years of age, was married soon after her mother's death, and assumed the care of her father's household, and her younger brothers and sisters. The oldest son ran away from home when a boy, going to Colorado. In 1859, Thomas Ochiltree, with his next oldest son, John, crossed the plains to Pike's Peak with an ox-team, the common mode of travel. The son being stricken with fever, they returned home. A bill-book belonging to Mr. Ochiltree, his name written on it, by himself, in 1830, is a prized possession of a member of the family; also a glass candlestick which has been in the family for seventy-five years, and was used when families made their own candles, before the discovery of coal-oil. Mr. Ochiltree always told his children that they were related to the Texas branch of Ochiltrees, and that the name Thomas had come down in the family. He always voted the Republican ticket. The original of the portrait herein given of Mr. Ochiltree, was taken during the Civil war while on a trip to St. Louis, for the purpose of selling some horses to the United States government. Mr. Ochiltree died at Ashley, Dec. 17, 1870. There were 5 children in this family.

D.5.7. Henry Miller Ochiltree, fourth son of Thomas and Jean Ochiltree, was born in Rockbridge County, Virginia, in 1809; was three years old at the time of his father's death. He married Jan. 4, 1838, in Preble Co., Ohio, Margaret Bell, daughter of William Bell, who came from South Carolina to Ohio in 1790. She was born Oct. 10, 1815, lived in Ohio until her marriage, at 22 years of age. Mr. and Mrs. Ochiltree emigrated to the Territory of Iowa, in the spring of 1838, settling in what is now Marshall township. He had large land holdings, in what is now Morning Sun township, to which they removed; and here they made their home, in Virginia Grove, about one mile from the present town of Morning Sun, in Louisa Co., in the Southeastern corner of the state, built a two-story log house, and a few years afterwards, a large modern farm residence. Mr. Ochiltree was a prosperous farmer, retiring from the farm in later years, and living in Morning Sun. He was one of the prominent pioneers of the county, an elder in the United Presbyterian church, of which he and Mrs. Ochiltree were charter members. He was for many years, a director in the B. and C. R. R. Co. That, and large farming interests, engaged his time and attention in the later years of his life. Mr. and Mrs. Ochiltree died at their home in Morning Sun. They, their two daughters, their son Frank, and one of his children, are buried, in Elmwood cemetery.

D.5.7.2. Thomas J. Ochiltree, was born June 1, 1842, in the Territory of Iowa, in what is now known as Marshall twp., in Louisa Co., southeastern Iowa. At the age of 2½ years, he came, with his parents, to the farm home in Virginia Grove, near the present site of Morning Sun. He received his education in the home school and Monmouth College, Monmouth, Ill., where his fellow students, from the fact that he resembled, somewhat, the portraits of Thomas Jefferson, added the name Jefferson to that of Thomas, and he has ever since been known as T. J. Ochiltree. He served three years in the Union Army, as 1st Sergeant, Co. M., 8th Iowa Cavalry; and Lieut. of Co. K, 136th U. S. Infantry. He was mustered out July 1, 1866, at Augusta, Georgia. He served five terms as Mayor of his town, Morning Sun; was a member of the Morning Sun School Board, for 29 consecutive years; and Pres. of the Board for 16 years. He was appointed Post-master at

Thomas J. Ochiltree

Elizabeth R. Ochiltree

Morning Sun, by Presidents Harrison, McKinley, Roosevelt and Taft; has served continuously since 1893, 23 years. His present term expires 1916. Has been in the grain business in Morning Sun for 40 years. He married June 9, 1870, Elizabeth Rebecca Brown, daughter of James Crawford, and Mary J. (McClure) Brown, of Morning Sun. Mr. Ochiltree is a fine looking man, hale and hearty, appearing many years younger than his 74 years. He is a member of the Loyal Legion of the U. S. A., the most exclusive military order in the United States. He and Mrs. Ochiltree are members of the Presbyterian church. Mrs. Ochiltree is a great, great granddaughter of James and Catharine (Howell) Crawford of Rockbridge County, Virginia, early settlers, together with, and no doubt friends and neighbors of, James and Catharine Ochiltree, of that County. "Lizzie" has always been noted for her kindness of heart, amiable disposition, and patience, through many trials, and long-continued ill health. They are the parents of 5 children.

D.5.7.2.1. Stanley O. Ochiltree; b. Feb. 29, 1872; bachelor; has served as assistant Post-master, with his father in the Morning Sun Post-office since 1907.

D.5.7.2.2.1. Thomas Pooley.

D.5.7.2.2.2. Infant.

D.5.7.2.3. William Paul Ochiltree; b. Dec. 19, 1875; was named for his maternal grandfather, William Paul Brown, born in Kentucky, pioneer settler at Virginia Grove, later Morning Sun, with the Ochiltrees. Will graduated from the Morning Sun High School; was in the Post-office for a time; enlisted in the U. S. Army for the Spanish-American war, in the 50th Iowa State Vols., on June 21, 1898, and was assigned to Co. C. of that Regiment and sent to Jacksonville, Florida; but, writing of it recently, he says, "I did not get to go to Cuba, much to my regret, at that time." He was mustered out with his regiment, at Des Moines, Ia., on Nov. 30, 1898, enlisting again on Dec. 11, 1897, at St. Louis, Mo., and was at once sent to the Phillipine Islands, where he served during the Phillipine Insurrection, a part of the time as Quartermaster's clerk, and in Co. D., 12th Infantry; returned to the U. S., to Fort Douglass, Utah, Apr. 27, 1902, discharged; again enlisted, was sent to Fort Logan, Colo., and assigned to Co. B., 18th Inf. and again went to the Phillipines, for 2 years; was then stationed at Ft. Leavenworth, Kansas; discharged in 1905, re-enlisted, was on recruiting duty in Louisville, Ky., until 1906; was sent to Ft. Porter, N. Y., discharged; re-enlisted, and was again sent to the Phillipines, serving until 1911; was dscharged; re-enlisted, and was assigned to recruiting duty at Nashville, Tennessee, where he has since been. He has obtained the various ranks from the grade of private, to Sergeant Major.

- D.5.7.2.4. Margaret Ochiltree was born July 1, 1879; graduated from the Morning Sun high school, at the same time with her brother Will, in 1897. She married Feb. 6, 1900, Albert Bowser, an enterprising young farmer, of Oakland twp., Louisa Co. Maggie was a bright girl; a student, and lover of good literature. She went with her husband to the farm, and became an interested and helpful farmer's wife. In 1905, she went to the Burlington hospital, and underwent an operation; was thought to be on the road to recovery. Her husband bade her farewell for, as he thought, a short time, to look after matters on the farm, but was recalled, Maggie having suddenly and unexpectedly passed away. It was a severe blow to the young husband, to her parents, brothers and sisters; to her relatives and friends, and the community, that one possessing, in such a degree, the abilities of a capable, intelligent home maker, and companion, should be taken so early in life. She left a little boy five years old, her little daughter having preceded her. A short time after Mr. Bowser had again married, he, too, was taken, and Albert was left to the care of his aunt in Burlington, Mrs. Lou Whittaker, his father's sister, who had taken him on the death of his mother.
- D.5.7.2.4.1. Albert Bowser; b. in Nov. 1900; graduated from the West Burlington Grammar School, in 1916, and entered High School in September. He is a bright, active, ambitious boy, giving promise of becoming a successful, useful man.
- D.5.7.2.5. Florence Ochiltree; b. Apr. 12, 1881; graduated from the Morning Sun High School; m. Peter Kline, who died a few years after their marriage, and in a short time, Florence died, leaving 2 children, Kathleen having been taken before her mother.
- D.5.7.2.5.1. John Kline.
- D.5.7.2.5.2. Kathleen Kline, died young.
- D.5.7.2.5.3. Alma Kline.
- D.5.7.3. John Ochiltree was born June 5, 1844; enlisted as a private in the 16th Iowa Infantry in the Civil War; was in the battles of Pittsburg Landing, and Corinth, Miss. Soon after the battle, while still stationed at Corinth he was stricken with, so called, camp diarrhoea, died and was buried on what was called the Whitfield farm, now a National Cemetery. He died in 1862. His father went to Corinth soon after his death, and had the body exhumed, for identification, but could not bring it home for burial, on account of the extreme danger, and difficulty, of transportation.
- D.5.7.4. Marshall Ochiltree; born Aug. 23, 1846, at Morning Sun, Ia.; m. at Morning Sun, Margaret Caroline McClurkin, born Nov. 29, 1848, daughter of Henry and Margaret (Logan) McClurkin. - D.5.7.5. Henry Miller Ochiltree, Jr., son of Henry Miller and Margaret (Bell) Ochiltree, was born at Morning Sun, Louisa Co., Ia., Aug. 29, 1849; was educated in the Morning Sun schools, and Monmouth College, Monmouth, Ill. When 16 years of age, he decided to become a physician, successfully carried out his purpose and graduated from Keokuk Medical College, at Keokuk, Ia., in Feb. 1872. On Mch. 7, 1872, he married Almira Johnson, of Morning Sun. He practiced medicine for a short time in Mediapolis, Ia., and in the fall of 1874, removed to Haddam, Kansas, and in Jan. 1877, to Grandview, Ia., and from there to Johnsonville, Ill., where he formed a partnership with Dr. William Johnson, which continued for two years. Three children were born, two of whom died in infancy. On Oct. 8, 1879, Dr. Ochiltree m. Emma S. Harlan, daughter of William and Miriam Harlan, at Wayne City, Ill. In Jan. 1880, they settled in Haddam, Kansas, which has since been their home, and where Dr. Ochiltree has practiced his profession. He is a registered pharmacist, passing the required examination, before the Kansas State Board of Pharmacy, certificate issued Mch. 8, 1894; was a member of the Kansas State Board of Health, under Gov. Merrill's administration; is a member of the Washington Co., and Kansas State Medical Societies, and served two years as Co. Coroner. As a pioneer physician, Dr. Ochiltree was thrown upon his own resources, on account of the distance from other physicians, and often successfully performed the major surgical operations, with only the assistance of inexperienced persons. He has always had a lucrative practice, and has one of the finest and best equipped offices in the state, outside of the larger towns. Soon after settling at Haddam, he, with his wife, united with the Methodist Episcopal church. He is a trustee of the church, at present, and was Superintendent of the Sunday school, for eight years; has been a member of the school board, city clerk, councilman, and mayor of Haddam, and has been instrumental in keeping pool and billiard halls, and joints, out of his town; served as U. S. Pension Examiner for 4 years, politically, has been a Republican, and endorsed prohibition, female suffrage, government ownership of all public utilities, and has had the pleasure of helping to place strict prohibition laws, guarantee of bank deposits, and female suffrage, in the Kansas statutes; organized the first Masonic Lodge in Haddam, became its first Master, serving several years; is a Royal Arch Mason, Knight of Pythias, Odd Fellow and Modern Woodman; uses no tobacco, or stimulants of any kind, and as a result of temperance in all things is a well preserved man, in his 67th year, taking an active part in church, political and civic affairs. Dr. and Mrs. Ochiltree are the parents of 4 daughters. Mrs. Ochiltree has trained her daughters to do general housework, and, as a result, all are efficient housekeepers, an accomplishment they rate above all others.

He is in the banking business, at Narka, Kansas, where both of these young people are very popular. Mrs. Yoder has a beautiful soprano voice; sings in the church where they reside, and is in demand for public and private entertainments; 1 child.

D.5.7.5.2.1. Cedric Harlan Yoder; b. May 5, 1907.

D.5.7.5.3. Blanche Madaline Ochiltree; born Nov. 24, 1881; graduated from the Haddam H. S., and from a four years' course in Baker University, in 1902, specializing in instrumental music. She has remained in the home of her parents, teaching music for a number of years. She is an accomplished musician, easily memorizes music, and can respond to a call for music, without having the music before her. She excels in housekeeping; is an artist in fancy work and sewing, making her own, and her mother's and sisters' clothing.

D.5.7.5.4. Ethel Harlan Ochiltree; b. Dec. 8, 1888, graduated from Haddam H. S., attended the Nebraska Wesleyan University, University Place, Nebr., for 4 years, receiving her A. B. degree in 1912. She taught German and English in Beemer, Nebr., for one year, after her graduation. "She was married at the family residence, in Haddam, on Christmas morning, 1913, at 8 o'clock, by Rev. D. M. Campbell of the M. E. church, at that place, to Earl S. Bishop of Lincoln, Nebraska. Just as the minister began the service, the rising sun shone brightly upon the young couple. The bride wore a dress of white brocaded satin, trimmed with pearl beads and duchess lace; her long veil, held in place by a wreath of lillies of the valley. She wore a lavalier necklace, set with pearls and diamonds, a gift of the groom." The following is from the Lincoln, Nebr., State Journal, of Dec. 14, 1913: "Earl S. Bishop has resigned his position, as assistant chemist of the experimental station, to accept a fellowship in the Mellen Institute of Industrial Research, and School of Specific Industry, at Pittsburgh, Pa. Mr. Bishop is but twenty-four years of age. After graduating from the High School at Imperial, Nebraska, he attended the Nebraska Wesleyan University, where he received the A. B. degree in 1909. During the time he was working for this degree he was an assistant in the Department of Chemistry, and did much work in the Department of Agricultural Chemistry at the University of Nebraska, in which department he was later made assistant. This place he held for two years, receiving a Master's degree in 1911, after which he resigned, to accept a fellowship at Queen's University, at Kingston, Ont. Here he did the work and completed the requirements, for the degree of Doctor of Science. Before leaving Queens, the Canadian Board of Grain Commissioners sought his services, as research chemist, but Mr. Bishop had no desire to give up his American citizenship, and accepted the position in Pittsburgh. Dr. Bishop's rise has been rapid." Of his ability, Leo F. Guttman, A. L. G. C., (London University), Ph. D., (Heidelberg), and Prof. of Physical and Industrial Chemistry and Chemical Engineering, says: "During more than ten years experience with research students, both on this continent and in Europe, I have never known a man of greater ability as a research chemist. His work is exact, and his ability to devise methods and apparatus will carry him through any problem. Mr. Bishop received this appointment without solicitation. He accepted it for two years, and for this time will receive $9,000. At the end of two years, several fields will be open to him, with a substantial increase of salary." Mr. and Mrs. Bishop left on the evening of their wedding day, for their future home, in Pittsburgh, Pa."

D.5.7.5.4.1. Blanche Harlan Bishop; so named in honor of her aunt and grandmother; was b. in Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 17, 1914.

D.5.7.5.5. Zola Holmes Ochiltree; b. Dec. 12, 1890, at Haddam, Kansas, graduated from the High School in her home town; also from Nebraska Wesleyan University, receiving the A. B. degree in June, 1913; since graduation has been engaged in teaching. Both she and her sister Ethel received several years instruction on the piano.

D.5.7.6. Sarah Jane Kathleen Ochiltree, (Kathleen), daughter of Henry Miller and Margaret (Bell) Ochiltree was born Oct. 17, 1851, on the old home place near Morning Sun. She lived and died in the early days of Morning Sun, but is still remembered by many friends, and schoolmates of those days for her kindly disposition. She attended the Morning Sun schools, and was a member of the United Presbyterian church, and Sabbath school. She died Sept. 11, 1871, and was buried in Elmwood Cemetery at Morning Sun.

D.5.7.7. Martha Elizabeth Ochiltree, (Mattie), was born June 5, 1854, at Morning Sun. She was left desolate by the death of her only sister. She was married to William Quigley, an attorney, of Davenport, Ia. She died Feb. 6, 1874, in her 20th year, leaving a little daughter; was buried in Elmwood Cemetery, Morning Sun.

D.5.7.7.1. Margaret Quigley, (Birdie), was cared for by her grandmother, Margaret Ochiltree, until the death of the latter; She has since made her home with her father, in Miami, Okla.

D.5.7.8. Francis (Frank) Ochiltree, was born at Morning Sun, Ia.; was a dentist; m. Emma Elliott, of Pa. He died in Morning Sun. Two children were born to them, one of whom died in infancy. Mrs. Ochiltree, with her young son, returned to Pa. She was married to W. B. Means. Res. Brockton, New Jersey.

D.5.7.8.1. William H. Ochiltree, was born Aug. 21, 1881; served in the U. S. Navy 1896-1901; was an apprentice in the Electrical Department, and had an appointment as electrician, at the time of his discharge; has been engaged in the electrical contracting business, since 1902; married, May 17, 1905, Bessie Thomas. Res. Pittsburgh, Pa.

D.5.7.8.1.1. Margaret Ochiltree; b. Aug. 11, 1907.

D.5.7.8.1.3. Sarah Harris Ochiltree; b. Sept. 15, 1911.

D.5.8. David Alexander Ochiltree; youngest son and child of Thomas and Jean Miller Ochiltree, was born in Rockbridge Co., Va., Apr. 17, 1812, and was about three weeks old at the time of his father's death, at his home, near the Natural Bridge. He married, Aug. 25, 1837, Jane Lecch, daughter of David and Margaret (Miller) Lecch, of Collierstown, Rockbridge Co. He owned, and lived on his father's farm, near the Natural Bridge, until 1859, when he sold it, intending to remove to Missouri. But on account of Mrs. Ochiltree's health, they remained in Rockbridge Co., buying the Miller property, five miles from the old home. Here they saw, and experienced to the utmost, all the horrors of the Civil war, as Virginia was a battleground for four years. Mr. Ochiltree's best horses were taken for the service, by the Confederate Government. One tenth of all his farm produce was taken to help support the army, and Hunter's Cavalry, of the Federal army, stripped him of the rest. His three young sons, one after another, lost their lives in the cause. The youngest son, being but 19 years of age, his father hired a substitute for him, paying an enormous sum. In a few weeks, those who had substitutes in the field, were ordered out. James joined the cavalry, in Sept., and was killed in a cavalry charge, in November. Their daughter, Mrs. Margaret Swartz, writes, "Now, they were all gone. I cannot keep back the tears, even after all the long years, when I remember our desolate home. My parents bowed their heads in silent submission. Only the Grace of God could have enabled them to bear up under such trials. Such wreck and ruin as was wrought to our country. The cry of anguish was heard on every hand. Almost every home was a house of mourning. My father, ever after, was a very silent man." Mr. Ochiltree was brought up in the Associate Reformed Presbyterian church, but on his marriage, united with the Presbyterian church. He was a member of High Bridge Presbyterian church for fifty years, and a ruling elder for the last eighteen years of his life. Mr. and Mrs. Ochiltree were earnest Christians. All of their children came into the church, in their early youth, and lived and died in the faith which they professed. Mrs. Ochiltree died Oct. 31, 1883, aged 73 years. Her gentleness, meekness and patience, her fidelity as a wife and mother, are gratefully remembered, by those who knew her best. She loved the church of her choice, the Kingdom of her Redeemer, and all his people. The work of her hands will be established, and her influence extended to her children's children. Her last illness was of short duration, but of such a nature as to deprive her of the power of communication with her family and friends; but her daily life had long illustrated her Christian faith. David Ochiltree died of pneumonia, Jan. 9, 1888, aged 76 years. Though blessed with a large degree of health and strength, until a short time before his death, he was a man of sorrows. During the Civil war, his heart was in deep sympathy with the South. After his three sons fell in the defense of the lost cause, his whole bearing seemed to say, "I was dumb, I opened not my mouth, because thou didst it." The 6 children of David and Jane Ochiltree were:

David A. Ochiltree

- D.5.8.1. Thomas Alexander Ochiltree.
- D.5.8.2. David Leech Ochiltree.
- D.5.8.3. William Henry Ochiltree.
- D.5.8.4. James Samuel Ochiltree.
- D.5.8.5. Margaret Jean Ochiltree.
- D.5.8.6. Rebecca Agnes Ochiltree.

D.5.8.1. Thomas Alexander Ochiltree; born M'ch 1, 1839; was a member of Co. E, 52nd Virginia, Regiment of the Confederate Army, being called out with the militia in 1862. While following Stonewall Jackson, on a long, forced march to the Valley of Virginia, he was stricken with fever, and died in the hospital at Lynchburg, July 24, 1862, aged 23 years, a Christian soldier. He was a young man of great energy, industry and perseverance; and though the clarion of war had sounded all around him, he had remained at home, doing his duty, as he saw it, the eldest of the family, his younger brother, David, having volunteered. However, when the call came for him, he went bravely forth to do and die. The loss of such a young man was no ordinary calamity, to his family and the community. He was a most consistent Christian. His Bible was his daily companion, at home and in the camp. In his last letter home, after the death of his younger brother, he wrote, "Mother, read the eighth chapter of Romans." We know from his life and faith that he passed from earth to Heaven.

D.5.8.2. David Leech Ochiltree; born Oct. 13, 1840; was a member of Co. E, 52nd Virginia Regiment in the Civil war. He contracted pneumonia, while on guard at Camp Allegheny Mts., and died in the hospital, at Lynchburg, Apr. 27, 1862, aged 21 years. "Tell mother I am going to be with Jesus," was his last message home. His family doted on him, fondly, but an Infinite Goodness took him to Heaven, in order to draw their hearts there, also. "The Judge of all the earth does right."

"Oh, could our earth dimmed vision see
Their spirits, from the sin-doom free,
We'd joy that they had gone before,
Where pain and sorrow are no more."

D.5.8.3. William Henry Ochiltree was born June 28, 1842. At the age of twelve years, he suffered intensely with neuralgia, which injured the optic nerve, rendering him practically blind. He could not see to read. He spent six years at the Institute for the Blind, Staunton, Va. He taught classical school for 5 years; attended Washington and Lee University, at Lexington, Va.; taught several years, then entered the Union Theological Seminary, in Prince Edward Co.; was licensed by Montgomery Presbytery in 1880; ordained in '81, a minister of the Pres. church; was, at the same time, installed pastor of New River Pres. church, which he served for several years, doing full pastoral work as well as preaching. With a small boy as guide, he traversed his field, on horseback or on foot; often fording New River, a dangerous stream in places. During the years spent in the Institute for the Blind, he exhibited that aptness in the acquirement of knowledge, which, with an extraordinary memory, made him so proficient in his studies, subsequently, that he became a well-finished scholar and preacher. While teaching, he was so familiar with the text books, he could, at once, detect an error in the recitation of a pupil. He gave instruction in Latin and French, as well as in English. Those who knew him best did not hesitate to advise him to enter the ministry, according to his desire. His proficiency in Hebrew was, under his circumstances, remarkable. He had, by the use of his raised letter Bible, committed a large portion of the sacred volume to memory. For the spread of the Gospel, he lived; a happy Christian character. Rev. William Ochiltree married, April 30, 1885, Miss Irene Miller (not related) of Cumberland Co., Va. He preached his last sermon while suffering from a cold; and pneumonia soon developed so rapidly, as to resist all the efforts of his physician; and he passed away, in the 48th year of his age, while actively engaged in the work of the ministry. He was laboring among people who had known him from his youth; and others who had been his pupils. He was with them in the Sabbath school and Bible classes, in prayer meeting, and in their homes, more and more, it seemed, endearing himself to them, by his sincere and blameless life, and his faithful and affectionate ministrations. A large and deeply afflicted congregation assembled at Broad Creek church, for the funeral services. Revs. P. B. Price, G. A. Long, and Calvin Staples were present, to testify to the estimation in which he was held, by his ministerial brethren, and to show their sense of the great loss, which the church had sustained. He was buried, Jan. 1890, at High Bridge church, with others of the family, gone before.

D.5.8.4.

James Samuel Ochiltree, youngest son of David and Jane (Leech) Ochiltree, was born Aug. 13, 1844, in Rockbridge Co., and followed his two older brothers, to a soldier's grave, at the age of 20 years. His father had hired a substitute for him, paying an enormous sum. After a few weeks, those who had substitutes in the field were ordered out. He joined the Cavalry, was killed in a charge, at Cedarville, six miles below Front Royal, in the Shenandoah Valley, Nov. 12, 1864, leaving another place desolate in this afflicted family. A beautiful letter, unfinished when he was called into battle, was received by his parents. Forgetful of his own suffering and privation, he tried to speak words of comfort to them, telling them not to be uneasy on his account, as he was in good health, that there was but little fighting then, and that they must not think the time long until he should come home; and then he added: "Oh, that God would take pity on us, and stop this dreadful war. But these things are coming to pass according to his own righteous will, and good purpose. It is my prayer that he may watch over you all at home. Pray for us, soldiers. Let us put our trust in Him, and hope that a better day is not far off." The testimony of his comrades was, that he was a good boy and a good soldier.

The Broken Band.

Lines written by Rebecca Ochiltree after the death of her three brothers:

"We are severed! We are severed!
Hushed the sound of joy and mirth.
We're a broken band and severed;
Gathered sadly 'round the hearth.

Three loved voices now we miss;
Three loved faces bright and gay;
Three less to join our social bliss;
Now where are they? Oh, where are they?

Gone home to the beautiful land,
To join in a chorus sweet,
With the angels, a happy band,
Worshippers at the Savior's feet.

We are severed! We are severed!
Tho' now the battle cry is o'er,
Soldiers weary, now at rest,
Dream of battle fields no more.

They are sleeping side by side,
Where the oak trees branches sway;
And us, the breezes seem to chide;
'You must not weep, for blest are they.'

Safe home in that beautiful land.
Then why should our hearts be riven?
Gone to join the angel band;
Only passed from earth to Heaven."

D.5.8.5.

Margaret Jean Ochiltree, now the only surviving child of David A., and Jane (Leech) Ochiltree, was born on the old Ochiltree homestead, near the Natural Bridge, July 10, 1847. A most terrific thunder storm was passing over the place at the time, no doubt, typical of the storms of life that would assail her in her journey thru' this world. She being the first girl to gladden that home, four brothers having preceded her, she was idolized by her parents, and made much of by her brothers. At the age of six she started to school. She was fond of books, and at the time could read in McGuffey's Third Reader. She was fond of sewing. Her father made for her a little stool, bought her a thimble, and at this same age, she pieced a very pretty quilt. At the age of nine years, she rode on horseback, to High Bridge church, her brothers accompanying her. And so life for her was a happy dream, until her twelfth year, when the call to arms resounded from the Gulf to Canada, and from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Oh, the horror of it! going out to fight, brother against brother, son against father! This meant leaving school; and to her young heart came much sorrow. After the farewells to her brothers, which brought the bitterest anguish, her mind turned to her father and mother, and the question came to her, how could she, a slender young girl, help those parents most? So to the corn-field she went, following the furrow made by her father's plow, dropping the corn, while listening to the distant boom of cannon, and praying as she worked, that God would send her brothers safely home. Thru' all these trying days, she still hoped the cloud of war had a silver lining. Once each week, she rode four miles, to Fancy Hill, for the mail, hoping against hope, that news of peace would come. One after another, her two brothers had died of fever; but she still hoped that her younger brother, her playmate, might be spared; but when a letter came saying that he had been killed, at Cedar Creek, while bravely defending his flag, her cup of sorrow was full. But youth can not pass its years in tears and repining. It is ever looking forward; and there were the broken-hearted father and mother, the dear younger sister, and the dear brother who had lost his sight—all needing comfort. The brother was then at home; the school building for the blind, having been taken for an army hospital. As much time as the sisters could spare from their work each day, they spent in studying, with their brother William as teacher; and they in turn read to him, from his text books, and Bible, a great part of which he committed to memory. So the time passed. She saw the smoke ascend from the Virginia military institute, at Lexington, and Gov. Letcher's house, ten miles distant, as Gen. Hunter came up the valley, burning as he came. She gave bread to some of his soldiers. When they passed on, very little was left, for any one to eat. However, that little was divided with the army of Gen. Early, who passed in pursuit of Gen. Hunter, two days later. One day, the news came that Gen. Robert E. Lee had surrendered, at Appomattox Court House. She saw her father and mother bow their heads in a silence which said "God's will be done." They had lost all and gained nothing. A few neighbor boys came back; but this young girl had no brother left to come. One seventeen year old boy, Joseph G. Swartz, came back, and as soon as schools and colleges opened, determined to get an education, and succeeded. In Jan. 1868, he entered the school of Rev. William H. Ochiltree, both as assistant teacher and student. In 1870, he entered Roanoke College, and soon became distinguished for his talent and application. He entered Washington and Lee University, graduating in June 1873, and afterwards turned his attention to teaching. On June 29, 1874, Margaret Ochiltree was married, by Rev. Philip B. Price, to Prof. Joseph Godfrey Swartz. Then, for thirteen years, her life was a most happy one. Prof. Swartz became universally known, in the profession, in Virginia, as an efficient and thorough educator, and was held in high esteem, as State Lecturer, by the Normal Schools of Charlottesville, Abingdon, Lexington, Harrisburg, and Salem. From 1876 to '79, he was vice principal of the graded schools of Lexington, and afterwards was elected principal, holding this position for four years, when he accepted a professorship, in the V. M. I. In 1885, he was elected principal of the H. S. at Fredericksburg. He was an able scholar, a profound Christian, and a successful instructor, able to teach six languages, and all the higher mathematics and sciences. He was the eldest son of Eli and Fannie Swartz, and, being of German extraction, he was endowed with that energy, independance of thought, and those powers of mind, which have placed Germany in the van of nations. In 1867, he professed his faith in Christ, and became a member of the High Bridge Presbyterian church. In this faith, he lived, labored, and died. Modest, although admired by all, possessed of a strong intellect, yet always seeking instruction, always striving for success, in any enterprise, in any position, he was as meek as a child. His health had been delicate, and his work was too great for his strength. On May 1, 1887, when the city of Fredericksburg worshiped, in the quiet of a Sabbath morning, lying down on the couch, his spirit was borne tenderly away, to the Savior, whom he loved. Three sons were born to Prof. and Mrs. Swartz. With them, she returned to the home of her parents. She entered the schoolroom, and, for eleven years, taught in the public schools of Rockbridge Co. Her sons are all honorable, industrious men, and members of the A. R. P. church. She has eight grandchildren. Her father, mother, brother William, and sister Rebecca, have all passed away, since the death of her husband; her father dying, as she read to him, at his request, the 14th chapter of St. John. Margaret (Ochiltree) Swartz is the last of her father's family. She says, "All are gone and I am left alone, but I am sure they will all be waiting for me at the "Beautiful Gate."

D.5.8.6. Rebecca Agnes Ochiltree, youngest child of David and Jane (Leech) Ochiltree was born Feb. 3, 1849. A beautiful girl, at the age of sixteen years, she became a semi-invalid. Her's was a most beautiful Christian character. She united with High Bridge church while young and lived a most consistent Christian life. Though pain was her almost constant companion, she was ever cheerful, and beloved by all who knew her; her father's comfort, after her mother's death. After the death of her sister's husband and her sister's return to the old home, she helped her rear her children. Her life was spent in loving thought for others. She died Aug. 11, 1905, and was laid to rest in the High Bridge cemetery.

Armagh is a small, inland county, in Ulster, in the Northern part of Ireland. Its area is 612½ square miles. The chief towns, are Armagh, Lurgan, Port a Down, and Newry. The population is 179,260, of whom 85,067 are Roman Catholics; 58,343 are Episcopalians, and 28,344 Presbyterians. The National schools had 33,693 pupils on the rolls, in 1875. Armagh, the capital of the county, is built of lime-stone. The Cathedral is of red sand-stone, and is cruciform, 184 by 119 feet, and is supposed to occupy the site of the one erected by Saint Patrick, in the 5th century. The population of Armagh is 7,866.

The Territorial distribution, under which Ulster formed a province, or at least, a distinct territory, is of very ancient origin. It formed one of the five ancient divisions of Ireland, and was the seat of the Hy-Nials, or O'Neils, as well as of lesser septs. Although various efforts were made by the English, to effect a permanent settlement, in the north, and northwest of Ireland, the success was but nominal, until the reign of Elizabeth, and of King James I, when the Plantation of Ulster was effected. In Ulster, the Celtic race, owing to the frequent infusion of a foreign element, is found in a much smaller proportion, than formerly.

Copy of Will of Michael Ochiltree, Sr., From the Records of Augusta Co.

In the name of God Amen I Michael Ochiltree of Augusta Co. and state of Virginia being in low state of health but of perfect memory and understanding of what I am about and what I am going to write thanks to God therefore calling to mind the mortality of my body and that it is appointed for all men to die I therefore make and appoint this my last will and testament. Principally and first of all I commit my soul to God who gave it and my body to the earth in be interred in a Christian like manner not doubting but that I will receive the same again by the mighty power of God and as to what worldly effects I have I dispose of them in the following form and manner. I leave and bequeath to my well beloved wife Mary Elliott other wise Ochiltree and movables and all debts due me by bonds notes or book accounts all money except three dollars which I leave as follows. To my son Michael Ochiltree I leave one dollar to my son-in-law Joseph Lowry one dollar. I nominate and appoint my son-in-law William Young and my well beloved wife Mary Elliott otherwise Ochiltree executors of this my last will and testament discriminating and making void all former wills and testaments and allowing this and no other to be my last will and testament. In witness thereof I have set my hand and seal this 20th day of December in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seven. Michael Ochiltree.

This will was probated in Augusta Co. Court, Feb. 17, 1813.

E

Michael Ochiltree, it is said, was born on the border of Scotland, in 1745, and went over into Armagh county, Ireland, in 1760; probably with his parents, as he was then but about fifteen years of age. This was the date

Rachel Ochiltree Young
Born 1781

at which the three brothers, Matthew, Michael, and Alexander, are said to have come from Armagh to America. Possibly, all had gone at the same time from Scotland to Ireland. Michael Ochiltree married, in Ireland, in 1767, Mary Elliott. Her grandfather had suffered imprisonment in Scotland, on account of his religious faith, and the family had emigrated to Ireland. In 1793, Michael and Mary Ochiltree, with their five children, all grown, the eldest having died in Ireland, sailed from Port Down, Ireland, for America, landing at Philadelphia. One account gives the place of birth of the two youngest children as Newry Down Co. So it seems evident that they had lived in that county for some time before leaving Ireland. The Captain of the vessel in which they crossed the ocean, losing his bearings, sailed out of his course for several weeks. Provisions ran low; but their signal of distress was finally seen, and they were saved. They went, almost immediately on landing, to Augusta County, Virginia, where Michael Ochiltree died, Feb. 10, 1815. Mary Ochiltree died ten years later, Dec. 15, 1825. Both are buried in the oldest cemetery in that section, near Staunton; their graves unmarked, as graves were, for the most part, at that day. Mary Ochiltree was a devoted Christian woman, kind and loving; her life full of good deeds for others. She predicted that her grandson, William Young, would preach the Gospel. Placing her hand on his brow, she said, "Don't you see the grace of God there? He will be a preacher." And when he became a Methodist preacher, to the dismay of his family and friends, Scotch-Irish Presbyterians, in those early days of Methodism, his aged grandmother gave him her blessing.

E.2.

Matthew Ochiltree, born in Armagh, Ireland, in 1770, eldest son of Michael and Mary (Elliott) Ochiltree, came, with his parents, to Augusta Co., Va., in 1793. A descendant of Michael Ochiltree, his brother, states that Matthew left Augusta County, and that neither Michael, nor his descendants, ever heard of him again. In the Chalkley papers, in items taken from Circuit Court records, is found the following: "Petition for road in Rockingham Co., 1793, from Matthias Amon's Mills, crossing North River at Collis' Ford near Jason Scotts, thence to Rockfish road near Peter Kiblinger's . . . road passes through lands of Matthias Ochiltree, Thomas Hanna, etc." Superior Court for district of Augusta, Bath, Rockbridge, and Rockingham; Deed 22, Feb. 1796, by Rosana Ochiltree to Matthias Amond, 10 $\frac{1}{4}$ Acres in Rockingham, on South River, recorded in Rockingham, 1796. It is said by descendants of Matthew Ochiltree's sisters, that he died comparatively early in life, leaving two daughters, Annie and Mary. These items from the records, would seem to indicate that he had married and settled in Rockingham Co., in 1793, the same year in which he came to America, and had died previous to, or in the year, 1796. An advertisement, inserted in a Harrisonburg, Rockingham Co., Va., paper, and ensuing correspondence, with Mrs. F. P. Showalter, of Port Republic, Rockingham Co., too late for thorough investigation, elicits the following:

"The old Thomas Hanna, and Ochiltree places are two, or two and one-half, miles from this place. One is now owned by Mr. Roadcap, and the other by Mr. Craun. Mr. James Patterson was appointed guardian of Annie Ochiltree, after the death of her first guardian, Mr. Ananias Davison. Mr. James Patterson bought the Ochiltree place of 112½ acres, from Mr. McAlister, who had owned it. Mr. W. C. Patterson bought it from his father, and owned it for years. The old brick house still stands, apparently, in good condition. Mr. L. D. Patterson finds no Ochiltree papers among the old papers, left by his father, Annie Ochiltree's guardian. No one can now be found who can give any information concerning Annie Ochiltree's parents, altho' Mrs. Maggie Showalter has made every effort in that direction. Her mother and sister, apparently, died soon after her father. Mrs. Annie Hawse, 72 years of age, was a daughter of Amos Scott. Her mother was a daughter of Thomas Hanna, whose wife was a Miss Murphey, and her mother was a first cousin of Annie Ochiltree, whose mother must have been Rosana Murphy, sister of Thomas Hanna's wife. Annie Ochiltree lived in the home of her cousin, Mrs. Amos Scott, until her cousin's death and continued in the home until her own death. She was loved for her pleasant disposition and was a welcome member of the home. Mrs. Hawse was named for her. On a stone in the cemetery near Port Republic is the inscription "Annie Ochiltree, died Feb. 14, 1866, aged 72 years, 6 months, and 28 days." On her death, a nephew came, who settled up her estate, but no one can be found who remembers his name, or from whence he came, or whether on the father's or mother's side. The children of Amos Scott and wife (nee Hanna), Annie Ochiltree's cousins, with whom she lived the most of her life, probably, were Reuben Scott, died in 1912, aged 72 years; Mrs. Annie (Scott) Hawes, aged 72 years; Res. Harrisonburg, Va.; Michael Scott, unmarried, aged 75 years; Res. Port Republic; George Scott, Cuba, Ill.; Mrs. Belle (Hanna) Keezler, wife of Senator George B. Keezler, of Keezletown, Va., is the last of the Hanna family, and lives a few miles from Port Republic. Mrs. Maggie (Scott) Showalter, daughter of Reuben Scott, and her husband, Frank P. Showalter, live with her mother, and care for her farm and business for her. Another daughter, Mrs. Georgia V. Maupin, lives at The Grottoes—a mile from the old Ochiltree place—where there are very beautiful caves which are visited by a great many tourists.

E.3.

Mary Ochiltree, born in Armagh, Ireland, in 1773, came with her parents, to America, in 1793. On landing, at Philadelphia, she was married to Mr. Clinton, whom she had known in Ireland, and who was a teacher in Pennsylvania. Her parents and family went on to Augusta County, Virginia, leaving her with her husband, and no word ever came to them of her again.

THE LOWRYS

The Lowrys, and Campbells, and the Todds to whom the Lowrys were related, and with whom they intermarried, were among the oldest families of the Valley of Virginia. The Lowrys came from Londonderry North Ireland, settling first in Pennsylvania. John Lowry was born in 1740, in that part of Augusta County which afterwards became Rock-bridge County. He married in 1768, Mary Campbell, of Frederick. They died in Virginia. To them were born 5 children.

E.4. Nancy Ochiltree was born in Ireland, in 1775, and came to America in 1793. Joseph Lowry was born in 1771, in Augusta Co., Va. He was the son of John and Mary (Campbell) Lowry. In the Chalkley Papers, under "Marriage Bonds," is found this item, taken from the Augusta County records: "Augusta County, 1798, Aug. 24; Joseph Lowry, and James Lowry, surety. Joseph Lowry, and Ann (Nancy) Ougheltree, of age, daughter of Michael Ougheltree, 1798, Aug. 28; Joseph Lowry and Ann Augheltree, married by Rev. Benjamin Irvine." (We find from many of these old records, that the names Nancy, Ann, and Agnes were used interchangeably). Nancy Ochiltree was born in Armagh, Ireland. This fact is attested by the quaint lettering, on the tattered remnants of a sampler which she made at a school for girls in Armagh, which has been handed down, and is now in the possession of her granddaughter, Mrs. Hattie Wilson Shinn. On this, these words are still legible: "Nancy Ochiltree, born in Armagh, Ireland, Feb. 2, 1775, about 8 o'clock at night." She came to America with her family in 1793. They were lost on the ocean for several weeks. Provisions ran low. Nancy Ochiltree, a plump, rosy-cheeked, young lassie, was jokingly told by the Captain: "If we have to eat each other, we will begin with you." Nancy Ochiltree was a good woman; very much of a lady, in manner, and very proud of her descent from Royalty, and of the family name of Stewart. Joseph and Nancy Lowry lived in Botetourt County, adjoining Rockbridge, and came with their family in 1816, to Scott Co., Ind., locating on a farm, forty miles south of the Bartholomew County line. Nancy Lowry died at Lexington, Scott County, Indiana, in 1845, aged 70 years. Joseph Lowry died in Scott county, in 1857, aged 86 years. He had been an invalid for years, from an injury received while building his house. He died on the way to a neighbors, and was not found until the next day. Mrs. Lowry, in her last days, was very much distressed that she could not hear from relatives, in Virginia, and Pennsylvania, and would exclaim: "Oh, if I could only hear from sister Mary"—the sister left in Pennsylvania with her husband, fifty-three years before. Mrs. Shinn says: "I have always understood that branches of both the Ochiltrees and Lowrys, came to America, at an earlier date than did ours." She also says: "My mother's sister, Rachel (Lowry) Dickson, of Davis County, Iowa, visited in my parents' home when I was 17 years old. It was then that I learned that my great grandfather, Michael Ochiltree, had been preceded to America by others of the family. Michael Ochiltree expected money from the Ochiltree estate in Ireland; but neither he, nor his daughters, Nancy Lowry, nor Rachel Young, ever received any from this source. Joseph and Nancy Lowry's children were 6 in number.

Anna Lowry Wilson

- E.4.2.1. John Jacob Dickson; son of Richard and Rachel (Lowry) Dickson, and grandson of Joseph and Nancy (Ochiltree) Lowry, was born in Lexington, Ind., Sept. 28, 1826. After working several years at the trade of cooper, he, and his mother, moved to Davis County, Ia., where he engaged in farming. He was very successful financially, and retired from farm life. He was a very highly respected citizen. He married June 14, 1855, Mary Eliza Parker, b. July 29, 1832. Mr. Dickson served in the ranks of the Union Army in the civil war. He contributed to the press for years, and later, collected his productions in one book, entitled, "A Farmer's Thoughts In Prose and Poetry." His style was excellent, original, and practical. The following was one of his latest poems.

The Union Soldier

The soldiers that met thee, with chivalrous pride,
Fell back in disorder, surrendered, or died.
The victories won, broke the chain of the slave,
And law, peace, and union, are over thy grave.

While Time's circling years to eternity roll,
The fame of thy deeds, will ennoble the soul,
And fair ones, with tokens from woodland and bowers,
Will come to thy grave, and drop tears, with the flowers.

The Confederate Soldier

In the faith of your fathers, you thought you were right.
O'erpowered by numbers, you fell in the fight.
Oh, 'tis not for the North to exult in your fall,
For the cause of the war, was the sin of us all.

But the day has now come, when the blue and the gray
Shake hands, in one garb, where they met in the fray.
Fair forms, from the North, will come down to your grave,
And drop tears, with the flowers, on the turf o'er the brave.

E.4.2.2. Judge William M. Dickson; son of Richard L., and Rachel (Lowry) Dickson; grandson of Joseph and Nancy (Ochiltree) Lowry; was born at Lexington, Ind., Sept. 19, 1827. On their father's side, also, John J. and William M. Dickson, were of Scotch-Irish Presbyterian stock. Their grandfather, Rev. Jacob Dickson, presided over one parish in Scotland, for over 50 years. They were connected on their mother's side, with the oldest families of Va., the Lowrys and the Campbells. Judge Dickson possessed, in the highest degree, that honest, fearless, determination of character, which has been the bone and sinew, of so many of our great men. Their father, Richard L. Dickson, was sent, in an official capacity, to the English Colonies, came to America, met and married Rachel Lowry, in 1825, near Madison, Ind.; afterwards settled on a farm, in Scott Co., Ind. Two sons were born to them. In 1835, Richard Dickson, the father, died. The family moved to Hanover, where there was a good school. John volunteered to learn the trade of cooper, while William attended college; first at Hanover, and afterwards at Miami University, Oxford, O. Here he swept out the recitation rooms, for his tuition, and cooked his own scanty meals. He was graduated from old Miami, in 1846. While teaching school in 1848, he studied law, was admitted to the practice, at Lexington, Ky., in 1848, and afterward attended Harvard Law School. He graduated at Harvard, in 1850. Without money, or a friend in the city, alone, with only a letter of introduction from his preceptor, Chief Justice Parker, to Judge Wright, he found himself in Cincinnati, Ohio. By tutoring in Judge Wright's family, teaching elsewhere, and as a space reporter, on the old Cincinnati Times, he managed to make a living. Oct. 18, 1852, he married Annie M. Parker, daughter of Dr. John Parker, of Lexington, Ky., and came again to Cincinnati. Altho' almost an entire stranger, he ran on the Independent ticket, for prosecuting attorney, of the police court. To the surprise of almost everyone, and most of all to himself, he was elected. He rapidly rose to the front rank of his profession. At the age of 31, he was appointed by Gov. Chase, Judge of the Common Pleas Court. On account of his youth, and younger appearance, he was bitterly opposed, by some of the older members of the bar. But by hard work, uniform courtesy to all, and just decisions, he left the bench for the practice of law, loved and respected by all. He was a Presidential Elector for Lincoln, when he was first elected. During the war, he was one of the confidential friends of Lincoln, Stanton, and Chase. He spent much of his time at Washington, D. C., and had much to do with framing the Emancipation Proclamation. While at Washington, he was tendered, by Gen. McClellan, the position of Assistant Judge Advocate General, with the rank of Lieut. Col. He spent some weeks at the front, but a certain distrust, of the men and methods employed, compelled him to decline. After the war, he took an active part in reconstruction. In 1866, in the prime of his manhood, at the age of 39, he was stricken down by sickness, followed by extreme nervous prostration, from which he never recovered. Foreign travel, and the best medical advice of this country, and of Europe, were tried in vain. Notwithstanding terrible physical suffering, the last 25 years of his life was spent in writing, and devotion to his family. He was always a hard student, and was translating Thier's History, from the French, at the time of his death. He constantly wrote for the magazines of the country, and the daily press; always on politics, and sociology. His well-known initials, "W. M. D." will long be remembered. Before he retired from the practice of law, his income was unusually large. His wealth, and noble character, obtained for him a high social position. He was one of the victims of the inclined plane disaster in Cincinnati, and died Oct. 15, 1889. 6 children.

- E.4.5. Anna Lowry, daughter of Joseph and Nancy (Ochiltree) Lowry, was born in Botetourt County, Virginia, Sept. 5, 1811; came with her parents, in 1818, when seven years old, to Jefferson County, Indiana. They afterwards settled on a farm near Lexington, Scott Co., Ind., where she was married, Oct. 3, 1833, to Thomas Brown Wilson, born Sept. 15, 1810, son of William and Margaret Wilson, his second cousin, a daughter of William and Elizabeth (Bruce) Wilson, of the line of Robert Bruce, of Scotland. Mr. Wilson was born in Washington Co., Pa., came to Scott Co., Ind., in 1818, and settled, after marriage, on a farm, near Lexington; later engaged in merchandizing. He was a kind neighbor and was noted for his habits of industry, and for his business integrity. His love of reading was a solace to him through all the labors and trials of his life. He was quite a musician in his day, playing beautiful Scotch airs on the flute and teaching the old-fashioned singing school in country school-houses. Mrs. Wilson, before her marriage, had united with the Methodist church, but as her husband was a Presbyterian, joined that church, which was of the faith of her parents. As a devoted Christian mother, and sympathetic friend, her life was full of good deeds and kind acts. Her children can truly "rise up and call her blessed." When a boy, Mr. Wilson manifested a talent for rhyming. His nephew, Blair Wilson, wrote to him in 1856, to send him some of those early attempts at poetry. He could not remember them but sent him the following:

"Those lines you want, I can't now quote,
For they have slipped my mind;
Those simple doggerel rhymes I wrote,
In days of Auld Lang Syne.
For many years have swiftly fled,
Since that delusive time;
When rhyming fancies filled my head,
In days of Auld Lang Syne.
Since life's realities I've tried,
Such follies I resign;
Those rhymes, in which I took such pride,
In days of Auld Lang Syne.
I often visit yet the spot,
Where boyhood's joys were mine;
And naught can from my memory blot,
The scenes of Auld Lang Syne.
My aged parents, living yet,
Were then in life's full prime;
Tho' altered now, I'll ne'er forget
Their looks, in Auld Lang Syne.

Your worthy sire, who now is not,
But long since passed from time,
Comes up in many a cherished tho't
Of days of Auld Lang Syne."

The issues in the election, in the fall of 1892, suggested the following lines to Mr. Wilson. He died in a couple of weeks after they were written:

"The good old days, when I was young,
Are much to be lamented.
For people lived so happy then,
And always were contented.

They had enough for present use,
And never strove for riches;
In summer, wore tow linen clothes,
In winter, buckskin breeches.

In wooden troughs, and other ways,
Beef hides were tanned to leather,
And made our shoes, for rainy days,
Or, for inclement weather.

We ate our meals with pewter spoons,
And paid but little taxes;
And cut down trees, to catch the coons;
With blacksmith's hand-made axes.

For meal, we punctured bits of tin;
On this the corn was grated;
We sifted it with sheep-skin sieves,
With holes well perforated.

Fat bucks and bears, we killed for meat;
And, too, we shot wild turkeys;
And some would even possum eat,
Like old-time, Southern, darkies.

For any kind of sweetening goods,
We did not pay the money;
For hollow trees, throughout the woods,
Were stored with luscious honey.

But little money had we then;
But each one was a defender,
Of sound finance; and coonskins, made
A lawful legal tender.

Politicians in those good old days,
Were one united faction;
For all the votes we ever cast,
Were for old General Jackson."

Judge Francis Wilson

Laura Wilson Wright

Mrs. Wilson died, Sept. 17, 1901, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Hattie Shinn, at Fort Scott, Kansas. Mr. Wilson, died at his daughter's home, on Jan. 5, 1893. Both are buried in Oak Grove cemetery, at that place. They were the parents of 7 children.

E.4.5.2. Francis Wilson taught school for about five years, after the age of fifteen years; but during a portion of this time, he attended Hanover college, Hanover, Indiana. In 1857, he went to Centralia, Illinois, where he taught school, surveyed, and began the study of law, Judge Bruce loaning him the books. He taught, and studied law at Paoli, Orange Co., Ind., for about two years and, in 1862, was admitted to practice, at the bar of that county; and in the same year, was appointed Provost Marshall, which office he held during the remainder of the civil war. While in Paoli, he formed a connection, in the practice of law, with Col. A. M. Black. In 1867, he located in Bedford, Ind., forming a partnership with Col. A. C. Voris; and afterward with Hon. Moses P. Dunn, which continued until he was elected Judge, in 1879. In early life, he was a Republican, and was an elector for Lincoln, but was a Democrat after 1872. As an evidence of the estimation in which he was held, it is only necessary to state, that the judicial district, over which he was called to preside, is not only a large one, but is Republican." From History of Orange, Lawrence, and Worthington counties, Ind. Published 1889, by Goodspeed Bro's and Co., Chicago, Ill. . .

"Three days ago, he held a complaint good for me, at Bloomington, and, today, before a higher tribunal, must plead his own cause. He was a grand man; one of the brightest lights, and closest thinkers of Indiana. He never betrayed a friend, or a client; and never sold an opinion."—Moses F. Dunn.

From Paoli, (Ind.) Weekly News, Apr. 20, 1885. . . "He was known throughout the state, as one of our ablest judges. Those habits of industry, promptness, integrity, and fidelity, which so strongly characterized his life, attracted public notice, and gained the fast friendship of many, who stood by him, in every vicissitude. There seemed to be no such thing as a knotty law point with him. His mind was always clear, and quick of perception. When on the bench, he knew no politics, no religion, no friends, no foe; all stood on equal footing, in his Court. He was the special champion, of the widow and orphan; and woe was the lot of the man, who attempted to trifle with their rights, in Judge Wilson's Court."

From Saturday Courier, Bloomington, Ind. "A meeting of the members of the Bar was held, to attend the funeral of Judge Wilson; to prepare resolutions, to drape the courtroom, and the Judge's desk and chair. Those who spoke at the memorial meeting were Major Mulkley, R. A. Fulk, John R. East, W. T. Browning, J. W. Buskirk, Rev. J. E. Brant, W. P. Rogers, and J. E. Henley."

Judge Wilson was born at Lexington, Ind., Feb. 16, 1836. He married, Oct. 24, 1861, Mary White, daughter of Dr. Cornelius White, of Paoli, Ind. One child was born to them.

E.4.5.3.

Harriett Wilson, daughter of Thomas Brown and Anna (Lowry) Wilson, was born Oct. 20, 1837, on a farm, near Hanover College, Jefferson Co., in the southern part of Indiana. At the age of eighteen years, she finished her education, at Hanover Academy; taught in the public schools of Lexington, and Austin, Scott Co.; later at Vinton, Ia.; was principal of the South Ward School, in Young America, now Kirkwood, Ill.; taught at Biggsville, Illinois; came to Fort Scott, Kansas, in 1871; taught in the Central School, and Margrave School. A more lucrative position offering in the Villisca, Iowa, schools, she returned to that state, and served five years as teacher, in the primary grade. In her calling as teacher, she was very successful, gaining both the love of her pupils, and the approbation of her patrons. She took a special interest in the reform of delinquent children. While employed at Villisca, the young teacher, who since childhood, had been apt in art, having received instruction under several noted artists of the day, spent her vacations in sketching from nature, and painting pictures and portraits. At the county fair at Villisca, she was awarded the first premium of twenty dollars for the finest display of pictures, in competition with older artists of skill, in oil landscapes, and floral pieces, as well as crayon, drawings, and portraits. She has also painted a complete set of China, after original designs, from Kansas flowers. The walls of her home are adorned with much of her handiwork, displaying great artistic ability. In 1881, she returned to Fort Scott, intending to teach; but on Oct. 11, 1882, she was married, to Mr. Abner Shinn. They resided at their beautiful country home "Cedar Crest Place," near the city, until his death, March 6, 1900. Mr. Shinn was born near Clarksburg, West Virginia, Nov. 1, 1820. He was in the grain and general commission business, in Chicago; later started the Fort Scott, Kansas, Nursery, which made him a competent fortune. He was one of the county's best citizens; a member of the Congregational church, an active advocate of the Prohibition Cause. After her husband's death, she sold the farm, and now resides in her town house, which is surrounded by masses of roses, peonies, flowering shrubs, and vines. Altho' seventy-nine years of age, she is, from necessity, a very busy woman; as property in which she has a life interest, requires much of her attention. She has been a member of the Presbyterian church since she was 12 years of age. She wrote the poem for the celebration of the semi-centennial of the First Presbyterian church, of Fort Scott, Kansas, in 1909. She is an honored member of the D. A. R., and the Order of the Eastern Star. Mrs. Shinn is possessed of those staunch, loyal, traits of character, that makes one a good neighbor. Her keen interest in affairs, fine memory, and great vitality, give her the appearance of a woman, in the prime of life. She states that she has had every good thing in life that she desired, except children. She has mothered and assisted children of others, and is now helping to maintain a boy in Yale College, a great, great, great grandson, of Michael and Mary (Elliot) Ochiltree. Mrs. Shinn is the great granddaughter of Elizabeth (Bruce) Wilson, through whom she traces her lineage back to Robert Bruce of Scotland.

Much of the foregoing history of the descendants of Michael and Mary (Elliott) Ochiltree, is from "A Tribute To Our Ancestors," published by Mrs. Hattie (Wilson) Shinn, in 1898.

We are, also, indebted to Hon. Clifford Thorne, of Washington, Ia., and to Dr. H. C. Young, of Bloomfield, Iowa, for much of the genealogy of the Youngs.

Much was, also, contributed by Mrs. Elizabeth (Young) Copeland, of Mt. Washington, Ohio.

The following record, of descendants of Michael Ochiltree, Jr., has been furnished by F. B., and J. C. Ochiltree, of Mt. Sidney, Augusta Co., Virginia, much of the data in the sketch, and copy of will, was from the Augusta County records.

- E.5. Michael Ochiltree, Jr., son of Michael and Mary (Elliott) Ochiltree was born in Ireland in 1778, came with his parents to Augusta Co., Va., in 1793, at the age of fifteen years. He married Apr. 2, 1806, his cousin, Peggy Young, Rev. William Wilson, officiating minister. He took up 104 acres of land in Augusta Co., which is still in the Ochiltree name, his great, great, grandson, J. C. Ochiltree, owning and living on it at this time. This land cost Michael Ochiltree $3.30 per acre. It is now worth $75.00 per acre. The old house, built by Michael Ochiltree, about 1807, stood until about twenty years ago. Four days before his death, Sept. 1, 1838, he made a non-cupative, or verbal, will, before witnesses, by which he left to his daughter, Margaret, one bedstead with its furniture, more, than he left to his other children. We have no record of Mrs. Ochiltree's death. They are buried near the old stone church near Mt. Sidney, Augusta Co. On May 20, 1843, John R. Ochiltree qualified as administrator of his father's estate. After paying all debts and expenses, he settled with his brother, Hamilton Ochiltree, guardian of Margaret, William and Alexander; and with Samuel Fanver and wife. Michael's 6 children were:

Rev. William Young

Margaret C. Young

William McKendree Young

THE YOUNGS

- A. William Young, Sen., came to America, from North Ireland. He had been a linen draper by trade. He crossed the ocean, on a sailing vessel, which was wrecked near land, and went to pieces. He, and a slave, clung to a spar and were washed ashore. Later on, he went back to Ireland, and returned, bringing a wife, a good Christian woman. They settled on a farm, eight miles from Staunton, where three generations of Youngs were born. Mrs. Young died there, in 1830; Mr. Young, some years later.
- A.1. Jane Young; m. A. Harrison, of Staunton.
 - A.2. Margaret Young; m. A. Anderson, Staunton.
 - A.3. William Young; m. Rachel Ochiltree.
 - A.4. James Young; m. Mary Burgess.
- A.3. William Young, Jr., was born at Staunton, Va., in 1780. The following, from "The Chalkley Papers," Vol. II, page 345, was taken from the marriage records of Augusta Co.; "1801, Nov. 7, William Young, Jr., and William Young, Sr., surety. William Young, Jr., and Rachel Ockeltree, daughter of Michael Ockeltree, Sr. (consent). Signed Michl Oughtintree, Sr. Rachel Ochiltree, fourth daughter of Michael and Mary Ochiltree, was born in Armagh, Armagh County, Ireland, in 1781, and came with her parents, to Augusta County, Virginia, in 1793. William and Rachel Young, came, with their children, to Columbus, Jefferson County, Indiana, in 1833. Here they lived, until his death, Jan. 30, 1838. He was buried in the old cemetery near the M. E. church, at that place. Mrs. Young went with her son to Bloomfield, Davis County, Iowa, where she died, at the home of her daughter, Elizabeth Maskel, in 1865. In this family there were 8 children.
- A.3.1. John Young; m. 1st, Margaret Spader; 2nd, Elizabeth Eckles.

A.3.3.

Rev. William Young, son of William and Rachel (Ochiltree) Young, was born near Staunton, Augusta County, Virginia, June 26, 1807. He was a great reader, and close student, and was brought up in the faith of the Scotch-Irish Presbyterians. He attended the Camp Meetings of the Methodists, at Jennings Branch, near his home, in Virginia, and united with that denomination, at 20 years of age. When this became known to his parents, they felt that not only their son, but the whole family was disgraced. The Methodists, in early days of this denomination, were called "ranterers," by the staid, conservative Scotch and Scotch-Irish Presbyterians. He studied for three years, and began his work as an "Exhorter." He went to Athens College, in 1826, paying his tuition by teaching, and soon had charge, as pastor, of a large circuit, embracing Charleston, Point Pleasant, Parkersburg, Va., and Marietta and Athens, Ohio, one of the hardest circuits in the Conference. Rev. Young was a man of more than ordinary ability; a forceful speaker, with a fine mellow voice, for singing, which proved very effective in revival services. While pastor of the M. E. church, of Lebanon, Ohio, he came near losing his life, by a bullet from a saloon keeper's gun. Dr. Young was appointed pastor of the Fourth street M. E. church, of Cincinnati, in a locality then known as "Brimstone Corner." That winter witnessed a great revival, the last year in that church, as the new one, Morris chapel, was erected in 1843; the pulpit of which, Dr. Young filled for two years. He filled pulpits in nearly every city in Ohio, at that time; was agent for the Cincinnati Female College, and Wesleyan University, Del. He faithfully served the M. E. church, for fifty-seven years. Long will the memory and influence of Dr. Young abide. He married, July 5, 1832, at Lancaster, Ohio, Margaret Claspel, of Mt. Washington, a suburb of Cincinnati, born in Lynchburg, Va. Mrs. Young died, leaving two children. Dr. Young married, in 1882, Nancy Paxton Branch, of Loveland, Ohio. Dr. Young died, in 1888, at Mt. Washington, in his 82nd year. The children of William and Margaret Young were:

A.3.3.2. William McKendree Young; druggist; b. Aug. 16, 1834, at Lancaster, Ohio.

A.3.3.1.

Elizabeth Rachel Young was born in Charleston, West Virginia, Apr. 13, 1833; m. June 25, 1850, at 17 years of age, to George W. Copeland, of Cincinnati, Ohio. Mrs. Copeland belongs to a musical family. At 80 years of age, with an old friend of 50 years past, she sang a duet, in the morning service of her church. Owing to a fall, six years ago, Mrs. Copeland has been obliged to use crutches, and also being hard of hearing, uses an ear trumpet; yet, she is a busy cheerful woman, at eighty-three years of age, optimistic, in the highest degree, and says, "yet I enjoy life, as God gives it to me, the only one left of my father's family." Mrs. Copeland writes a beautiful, interesting letter, breathing the greatest kindness of heart, and good-will to all; and has, of late years, written scores of letters, assisting in the compilation of several family histories. Mr. Copeland's father was of the Virginia family, of the name; and of the same stock as the firm of the Copeland ware manufacturers. Like many other Virginia names, it was, as Mrs. Copeland says, "adulterated", and came to be spelled "Copelen." An attempt was made to go back to the proper spelling, but business complications resulting, the idea was abandoned, and the name is spelled by many, "Copelen." A meeting of the Copeland's of Ohio, was called, as it was known that some branch of the family was interested in the "Anna K. Jens fortune." Ninety-five met, at the Grand Hotel, Cincinnati, and these had many different ways of spelling the name. The lineage was traced down, to two brothers, one settled in Virginia, the other in New York, who were found to be the real heirs. Mr. Copeland traveled, for twenty-five years, as adjuster for the Aetna Insurance Co. Mr. and Mrs. Copeland were the parents of 4 children.

Hon. Clifford Thorne

College, of Iowa, in 1912. He was fellow at Yale, in 1900-1901. He was admitted to the bar, in 1899. The American Law Review, to which he is a contributor, says of him: "He is President of the National Association of R. R. Commissioners, composed of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and all the state commissions, in the country, 48 in number. He was elected a member of the Iowa State Commission, in 1910; was re-elected in 1914, and has been Chairman of the Commission since 1912. He is the author of the Iowa Commerce Counsel Law, providing the public with an advocate, in R. R. cases, before State and Federal Commissions, and several other state laws." He filed a memorial with Secretary Garfield, and Congress, on behalf of Kansas Oil Producers, which caused the investigation of the Standard Oil Co., preceding its prosecution by the U. S. Government; was chairman of the Commission which filed briefs and arguments, in behalf of some seven or eight states, before the Supreme Court of the U. S., in the celebrated Minn. R. R. rate case. In a write-up of Mr. Thorne's accomplishments, in public services, too numerous to mention all, a leading Iowa paper says: "In all the history of this broad land, no man, since John Quincy Adams, after his presidential term, has had as much in his record of public service, to commend him, as has the Hon. Clifford Thorne." He is also a man of great intellectuality, and nobility of character.

Dear Brother:-

Having received your letter on the first, I intend to answer the questions you ask, in order. We have not bought any land, in consequence of the land sale being postponed, and there is no telling when this will come on. You ask about mills. The nearest mill is six miles from here. It is a saw and grist mill. The flouring mill that we go to is 25 miles away, and there are several more, about the same distance. On the Des Moines, in one county, there is 28 run of stone. The mill that we go to has 6 run, the best mill I ever saw. It is 5 stories high, and the man that owns this mill, fulls and cards, and is going to spin next summer, by water power. No more about mills. According to the age of the Co., it beats the world for machinery of all kinds. There will be salt made, within 30 miles of this place. They are digging now; have got water and made some salt, of first rate quality. This Co. is a great sheep country. There is going to be great business done in that line. I know of two small flocks of sheep; one of 1,400 and the other of 5,000; and a great many more are going into the business. They get from 50 to 60 cts. per lb. for raw wool, at Pittsburgh, Pa. We don't lose as much time going to mill in this Co., 25 miles, as in Indiana. We go one day, and come home the next. The mills are so plenty, we don't have to wait or stay but one night. We have a fine prospect for wheat. One of my neighbors is going to plant 500 acres of sod corn this year. They have a patent right for breaking prairie. Last year we only had sod to plant in; we chopped the corn in with axes, and had from 20 to 25 bu. per acre, of first rate corn. Wesley sold 100 bu. this year, raised in the same way. The winter has been fine, I hauled saw logs to the mill, from the 1st to 10th of Feb., over dusty roads. I am going to have a barn raising. I am going to build with round logs, 2 by 28 feet. I think I can save enough grain to build a house, after a while. Most people here build fine houses first, and get their grain out on the ground. I will change this about, and see how it will work; the barn first, and the house when I get able. I have a first rate mill seat, for a saw mill. It affords water two-fifths of the year. As to the town, there are 15 or 16 houses and a frame store house going up, 50 by 18 ft. The Court house is hewn logs; two large stores. The one that is building the frame store, is going to have a rouser. Goods are cheaper here than in Indiana. Game is plenty. Deer run from 15 to 20 in a gang. Tell James to write. Give my respects to Lytle and lady. Tell Ike to write. I think he would do well here at his trade. Some people are coming from Gosport by the name of Steele. Perhaps Bill could come with them next fall. Mother and all our family are well, and all send their love to you and James, and families. Fill up your next letter, and give us all the news, about all the folks. W. Bevis, George Curl, etc.

Wesley Young

Your brothers,
John Young.

THE MILLERS

To Mr. James Wilson Miller, formerly of Memphis, Scotland County, Missouri, now a resident of Harrison, Arkansas, is due, for the most part, this history and record of the Millers. Mr. Miller is a native of Rockbridge County, Virginia. He is a son of Samuel Miller, grandson of Samuel Miller, Sen., and great grandson of Henry Miller, who came from Londonderry, Ireland. He has been called the historian of his family; and, surely, the valuable assistance rendered in this history of his family, gives evidence that the title is not unmerited.

For him, it has been a labor of love, to gather for his descendants, and others of the family, the history and traditions of his family, and the genealogy of the succeeding generations, from the first who came to America; much of which has come down to him, through his father, and grandfather.

In referring to the families whose records are herein given, he says: "Many of the descendants of these representative families, left the home of their birth, in the beautiful valley of Virginia, where the most of them were brought up "in the nurture and admonition of the Lord," by their Presbyterian fathers and mothers, who endeavored to instill into them that "form of sound words," contained in the Westminster Catechism. They are now to be found, in nearly all of the western and northwestern states; as well as in Kentucky, Tennessee, the Carolinas, and Alabama." He further says: "Henry and Rebecca (Boggs) Miller, who came from Londonderry, brought with them a Family Bible. The record in it was copied into the Family Bible of Samuel Miller, my father, (grandson of Henry Miller) who succeeded his father, on the old Miller homestead, near the Natural Bridge. This Bible descended from father to son, until it came into possession of my son, Rev. S. G. Miller, D. D., of Philadelphia, (now deceased) who had it rebound.

But before I proceed further, with the record of our revered ancestors, I wish to bear testimony to their noble character, as Protestants, and Christians; and to the sufferings and privations they endured, in defense of freedom and Christian liberty. I will quote from McCauley's History of England, Vol. III."

"The Papist King of England, James II, had fled before the victorious arms of King William, of Holland, to North Ireland; where a persecution of the Scotch Irish Protestants, who had emigrated from Scotland, many years before, was commenced.

The Catholics, being superior in number, the Protestants were driven from their homes, in many towns and counties, of North Ireland. They fled to the partly walled Protestant town of Londonderry, which was situated on an arm of the sea. The forces under King James besieged the city in April 1689.

The number of men capable of bearing arms, within the walls, was 7,000; and the whole world could not have furnished 7,000 men, better qualified.

King James' fleet blockaded Lough Foyle, an arm of the sea, to prevent supplies being sent to the besieged. The siege, (Vol. III. p. 219), lasted one hundred and five days; and was the most memorable, in the history of the British Isles. They were asked to surrender to their sovereign, and be pardoned. They answered, "we have done nothing to require a pardon, and own no Sovereign, but King William and Queen Mary." (p. 183.)

During the siege, preaching and prayer occupied a large part of each day. Eighteen clergymen, and several non-conformist ministers, were within the walls. To understand with what determined courage the besieged repelled the furious assaults of the foe, even the women of Londonderry were amidst the thickest fire, serving out water and ammunition, to their husbands, sons, and brothers (p.p. 184-86). The number of inhabitants were more thinned by disease, than by the fire of the enemy. By the 8th of June, horseflesh was the only meat to be had. Another month passed. Dogs, fattened on the blood of the slain, who lay unburied around the town, were eaten. Hides were gnawed to appease the rage of hunger. There was scarcely a cellar in which a corpse was not decaying. Such was the extremity of distress, that the rats, who came to feast in those hideous dens, were eagerly hunted, and greedily devoured. Even in this dire extremity, the general cry was, "no surrender."

On the 13th of July, however, a piece of paper, sewed up in a cloth button, came to the old preacher Walker's hands. It was a letter, and from Kirke, who had been sent from England, with food for the garrison, and Londonderry, but had been kept back by the blockade in Lough Foyle, for weeks.

Among the merchant ships which had come to Lough Foyle, was the Mountjoy; and in it, its master, Micah Browning, a native of Londonderry, had brought from England, a large cargo of provisions. He volunteered to take the risk of running the blockade. Another ship, with a great quantity of meal from Scotland, commanded by Andrew Douglas, ventured to share the danger. They were escorted by a frigate of thirty-six guns, commanded by Capt. John Leek.

It was the 25th of July; the sun had set; the evening sermon in the Cathedral church was over; the heart-broken congregation had separated, when the sentinels in the tower saw the sails of three vessels, coming up the Foyle. Leek performed his duty with skill and spirit; exposed his frigate to cover the merchantmen, and used his guns, with great effect. The Mountjoy, took the lead, and struck the barricades, which gave way.

But from the shock, the ship rebounded, and sank in the mud. A yell of triumph arose from the barracks. The Irish Papists rushed to their boats, preparing to board the merchant ships, and they got a well directed broadside from the frigate, which threw them into disorder. In the meantime, the tide was running fast. The Mountjoy began to move, and soon passed through the broken stakes, and broken spars.

But her brave master was no more. A shot from one of the batteries struck him, and he died, one of the most enviable deaths, in sight of the city which was his birthplace, and his home, and which had just been saved by his courage, and self devotion, from the most frightful form of destruction.

So ended the siege. The garrison was reduced from 7,000 to 3,000 men. Londonderry rang in shouts of praise, at the deliverance. A letter was sent them, by the Protestant King, William, acknowledging, most affectionately, the debt he owed the brave and trusty citizens of his good city. King James withdrew his army, after the supplies came, (Vol. III, p. 220).

Copy of Will of Henry Miller, Sen.

In the name of God Amen.

I, Henry Miller of Rockbridge County and state of Virginia being in a declining state of health but of sound mind and memory and also considering the mortal state of man in this life do think it necessary to settle my temporary concerns in manner following, viz.

First I decree that my body may be decently buried at the discretion of my executors hereinafter named and further that all just claims against my estate may be settled and paid out of my estate. And first of all I give and bequeath to my well beloved wife Rebecca Miller and to my daughter Rebecca Miller jointly all and singly my household furniture of whatever kind without any reference to be theirs and at their disposal after my decease. And I do further give and bequeath to my said wife one bond for the sum of 27 pounds due me from my son John also $15.00 due me from William Gilmore also my young black mare and saddle and bridle also two of her choice of my stock of cattle. Also I do further order and direct that my said wife shall have and continue to have full possession of my house and plantation during her life unmolested, but preserving at the same time to my son Samuel Miller the privilege of enjoying the possession of the place where he now lives and of working all my clear land and clearing more as he may choose together with the profits of the meadow and orchard to wit: the two thirds, also the labor of my negro boy George when my said wife can spare him and for said privilege granted to my said son Samuel he is to deliver to my said wife the one third of the crop he raises thereof and also to haul and put conveniently and securely for her the same and also the remaining third of the meadow and orchard together with fire-wood hauled conveniently for her. Also such piece of ground as she may choose for a garden. And provided the said Samuel is indolent so that the share reserved for my said wife may not be sufficient for her support he is to make it sufficient for her support at his expense. I also give and bequeath to my said daughter Rebecca my young roan horse and her saddle and bridle with the next two of my cattle that she may choose and I further order and direct that the remainder of my movable property may be sold at public vendue, except so much of my cattle and hogs as will be winter meat for my family and of grain until the new crop comes, and all of my share of the crop that is in the ground I leave to support my family and the crop to be put in this fall I decree for the use of my family. And I also devise and bequeath to my said son Samuel Miller the plantation whereon I now live to him and his heirs forever provided he complies with requisition herein before and hereinafter mentioned. And first he is to pay each of his four sisters the sum of 50 pounds each in manner following viz: the sum of 12 pounds 10 shillings annually the first payment thereof to be made one year after my decease and to be paid annually until each of them receives the above said 50 pounds and also I leave to my wife in addition to what is herein before mentioned in the hands of my said son John and of William Gilmore as much of the money arising from the sale of the movable property that I have directed to be sold as will be sufficient to purchase a good young negro wench and I also give and bequeath to my son William Miller after my wife's death my negro fellow George also my brown coat and waist coat and one half of the net proceeds arising from the sale of my movable property directed to be sold as aforesaid if after answering purposes aforesaid any money remains and the other one half to my said son Samuel I also leave and bequeath to my nephew William McGlothen, my black coat, waist-coat and breeches. And, lastly I constitute and appoint my two sons Samuel and William Miller my sole executors of this my last will and testament for the purpose herein before mentioned and I do hereby revoke and disannul all and every other testament, ratifying and confirming this and no other to be my last will and testament in witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal this 21st day of August 1797.

Henry Miller

Signed, sealed, probated, pronounced and declared by Henry Miller as his last will and testament in presence of us

John Greenlee

Thomas Hardy

At a Court held for Rockbridge Co., Oct. 3, 1797, this writing publishing the last will and testament of Henry Miller deceased was produced in Court by Samuel and William Miller executors herein named and proved by the oath of John Greenlee and Thomas Hardy subscribing witnesses and ordered to be recorded, and on notice of said executors who made oath according to law certificate is granted them for obtaining probate thereof in due form they having with Hugh Barclay Jr. and James Beggs their securities, entered will and acknowledged bond in the sum of $10000.00 conditioned according to law.

Henry Miller was born in Londonderry, North Ireland, in 1726, thirty-seven years after the terrible siege, in which were his father and kindred; and in which, it is said, the Montgomerys, and Millers, distinguished themselves. He married, in Ireland, Rebecca Boggs, born in 1736. They came to Lancaster Co., Pa., in 1757; and in 1770, to Rockbridge Co., Va., then a part of Augusta Co. He bought, from the Greenlee Grant, made by the English Crown, about 400 acres of land, two and one half miles east of the Natural Bridge, and three miles north of James river; and built thereon a substantial dwelling, of hewn oak logs, which stands today, (1916), having been built about 140 years. He was largely instrumental in having built, on his place, the twelve cornered church, of which the first pastor was the Rev. William Baldrige. Henry Miller was a man of deep religious convictions. He sometimes walked ten miles, to attend religious worship, and hear the Gospel preached. Henry Miller d. in 1798. Rebecca (Boggs) Miller died in 1816. They reared a family of 7 children. Possibly there were others whose names are not given.

- A. John Miller; b. probably in Ireland, about 1756.
- B. William Miller; m. Elizabeth Lackey.
- C. Samuel Miller; m. Margaret Lackey.

John Miller; born probably in Ireland; came with his parents to Lancaster Co., Pa., afterward, to Rockbridge Co., Va., which was then a part of Augusta Co. He lived, and owned a store, on James river, at the mouth of Cedar Creek; grew wealthy, it is said, lived beyond his means, and lost his wealth. It is said, he drove a carriage, with a pair of fine horses, with silver mounted harness. In his later years, he went with his sons, to Kentucky. His wife's name is not known, nor much of his history. One small incident of him, as a youth, has been handed down, to the younger generations. When his father's house, in their new home, in Virginia, was being shingled, he took a hand with the carpenter, kept right along with him, reaching the comb of the roof, at the same time, and placing his hands on it, stood on his head, with his feet in the air. While more important facts, concerning him, have been lost, this little incident, of a youth, of one hundred and forty years ago, has been preserved. Names of but two of his children, the sons with whom he emigrated to Kentucky, at an early day, are known.

- A.1. James Miller.
- A.2. John Miller, Jr.

It is stated, that George Forrester, a resident of Scotland Co., Mo., who was acquainted with Millers in Kentucky, returned to that state, and married a Miss Miller. She was tho't to have been a descendant of John Miller. After a few years' residence in Missouri, she started to Kentucky on a visit, was caught in a snow storm before reaching the railroad station, which resulted in her illness, and death.

William Miller, Sen., b. in Lancaster Co., Pa., served in the Revolutionary Army; m. 1785, Elizabeth Lackey, daughter of Thomas and Agnes (Leech) Lackey, who had emigrated from Ireland, to Lancaster Co., Pa., thence to Rockbridge Co., Va. William Miller bought land from the Greenlee Grant, and settled on Broad Creek, three miles north of the old Miller homestead. He was a man of the highest integrity; was an elder in the Associate Reformed church. Mrs. Miller died Aug. 6, 1834. Mr. Miller died, Nov. 7, 1840; 8 children.

- B.7. Ichabod Miller; d. in infancy.
- B.8. Martha Miller; m. William Pressley.

- B.1. Henry Miller, Jr., b. Jan. 25, 1786, in Rockbridge Co., Va.; m. Feb. 15, 1816, Catharine Montgomery, b. Aug. 22, 1792, daughter of Robert and Martha (Crawford) Montgomery, of Rockbridge Co. Catharine Montgomery is mentioned in the will of her grandmother, Catharine Crawford, Mrs. Jane (Tardy) Hagans, of Manchester, Kan., (B.1.1.), grand daughter of Henry and Catharine Miller, pays them the following tribute: "My mother died before I was quite four years old; and I was at the home of my grandparents, very often, for several weeks at a time, until we came to Iowa, when I was thirteen years old. My recollections of them, and their dear old Virginia home, are very pleasant. Grandfather was an elder in the Broad Creek Associate Reformed Church, and the precepts of the Bible, formed the rule of his daily life. Hypocrisy, or sham, of any kind, he could not tolerate. He was a man of strong convictions, and held to that which he believed to be right. Industry, honesty, and all that was good and true, were shown forth in their home life. After grandfather was seventy years of age, he said that he could settle up his estate, better than an administrator. He sold their home for $7,000.00, their farming implements, stock and household furniture; paid all indebtedness, and came to Iowa, with their children, to what was, then, a new and sparsely settled country. It must have grieved them, to leave their dear old home in Virginia, where they had lived and labored for so many years. But I never heard a murmur or complaint, in reference to what they had left behind. Grandfather was a man of more than ordinary intelligence, and a well read man, for those days. The book-case in his Virginia home, was well filled, with good books. Grandmother was a most excellent housekeeper, looking well to the ways of her household. Their two sons, John A., and Nathan Miller, came, by wagon, to Iowa, in 1855; James, and Robert, in 1857. With William, and a son-in-law, Reid Burkes, and their youngest son Thompson Miller, Henry and Catharine Miller, came to Ringgold Co., Iowa, in 1859. They were taken to their Heavenly home, in tranquil peacefulness, as became their lives of devotion to their Saviour. I shall ever hold their memory in loving remembrance." The Millers settled in Ringgold Co., Ia., on beautiful, rich, rolling prairie, with timber, along the streams. They have prospered abundantly; have become a most numerous family connection, including grandchildren, great grandchildren, and great, great grandchildren, of Henry and Catharine (Montgomery) Miller. Catharine Miller died May 8, 1855. Henry Miller died March 25, 1865. They are buried in Rose Hill cemetery, at Redding, Ia. A beautiful granite shaft, erected by their children, marks their last resting place. There were eleven children in this family, all now deceased, the youngest, Thompson Miller, dying in 1914.

- B.1.7. James Alexander Miller; son of Henry, Jr., and Catharine (Montgomery) Miller; was born in Rockbridge Co., Va., Sept. 4, 1826. At the age of 21, in 1827, he began work on a farm in Va., at $7.00 per month. On Oct. 4, 1849, he married Susan E. Mackey, b. March 21, 1829, in Rockbridge Co.; daughter of James and Nancy Mackey, of Lexington. In the spring of 1850, he began farming. After one day's work, he was taken sick, with typhoid fever, which continued for 42 days, before a change for the better. After he was able to be up, he took a relapse, and when next he was able to be out, his neighbors were putting in their fall wheat. Thinking to improve his financial condition, he came to Iowa. In the fall of 1856, with wife and five small children, he made the trip by wagon; were on the way from Sept. 10th, to Nov. 7th; settled in Clinton Township, near the Missouri line; the next year entered land, across the line, in Worth Co., Mo. During the war, he was in the militia. In 1865, he bought a farm of 380 acres, in Ringgold Co., Ia., where he made his home, until his death, becoming the possessor, also, of a farm of 160 acres. He and his wife, were members of the United Presbyterian church, of Redding. Politically, he was a Republican, as were all of his sons and sons-in-law. He served the community in which he lived, as Township Trustee, Member of Board of Supervisors, Justice of the Peace, and was School Treasurer of Clinton Twp., for 35 years. He died Dec. 2, 1902, in the 86th year of his age. Mrs. Miller died Jan. 24, 1906, aged 80 years. Mrs. Miller was of the type of vigorous pioneer character, that is fast passing away. Her life was a continual service for her family, and community. A host of old time friends mourned her death, at which time all of her thirteen living children were with her. The funeral services were conducted by the Rev. Dr. Hamilton, of the United Presbyterian church, of which church Mrs. Miller had been a member, for over 50 years. Mr. and Mrs. Miller were the parents of 15 children.

B.1.8. John Addison Miller; son of Henry and Catharine Montgomery Miller; born Apr. 28, 1829, in Rockbridge Co.; married Aug. 28, 1851, his cousin,

James and Susan Miller

Mary Malinda Leech, daughter of John and Rebecca (Ochiltree) Leech. (See the Leeches). She was born June 5, 1832. They came, in 1854, from Rockbridge Co., to Morning Sun, Louisa Co., Ia. They went, by wagon, to Wheeling, West Va.; then by boat, to Burlington, Ia., where they were met, by their uncle, Henry Miller Ochiltree, Sen., and taken, by wagon, to Morning Sun, 23 miles distant. They lived for two years, on land leased from Mr. Ochiltree, and raised an immense crop of wheat. The oldest son, S. W. Miller, was born in Rockbridge Co. At Morning Sun, a daughter, Willie Ann, was born, died, and was buried. In 1855, they left Morning Sun, for Ringgold Co., Ia., stopping, for the winter, in Lucas Co., where an uncle, James Leech, was living. There the third child, James Leech Miller, was born, in 1856. In 1857, they went on to Ringgold Co., buying out a squatter, chiefly, to get possession of a house, in which to live. In 1858, Mr. Miller moved this cabin, to his own land. In 1860, twin daughters were born, who were named "Catharine Montgomery," and "Rebecca Ochiltree"; the former now Mrs. Charles Warren, of Kiona, Wash.; the latter, Mrs. Luther Milburn, of Boulder, Colo. In 1860, Mr. Miller enlisted, in the Federal Army. In 1861, after 6 months' service, he returned home, on a recruiting trip. He returned to his regiment, in Oct. 1862, and was killed, at the siege of Vicksburg, Dec. 29, 1862. A daughter, Mary Addie, now Mrs. J. B. Douglas, of Camlachie, Province of Ontario, Canada, was born, after her father's death, Nov. 12, 1862. In Feb. 1867, Mrs. Miller was married to Hezekiah Reed Burke, her brother-in-law, whose first wife was Mr. Miller's sister, Janet Miller. To them one child was b., Mch. 10, 1868. - B.1.11. Horatio Thompson Miller; youngest son and child of Henry and Catharine Montgomery Miller; was born in Rockbridge Co., Va., Mch. 6, 1836; came to Ringgold Co., Ia., in 1859, and settled on the farm which he held until his death. In Sept. 1859, he m. in Rockbridge Co., Miss Elizabeth Jane Zollman, oldest daughter of Henry and Elvira Zollman. She was born Sept. 1838, in Rockbridge Co. The same year they came, by wagon, to Ringgold Co., where with only a team, and a few utensils, with which to cook on a fire place, they began to make a home; and by their combined industry, and economy, acquired an abundance of this world's goods. They retired from farm life, as old age came on. They had earned rest by years of toil. They had always extended an open door of hospitality, to all friends. Mr. Miller was a successful farmer, and stock-raiser. He took pride and pleasure, in introducing into the country the very best stock. He was noted for his fair dealing, and practical honesty. He was brought up in the Associate Reformed Presbyterian church, in Va., and had good religious training, and he was wont to say that his business life was based on the 75th question, of the Shorter Catechism; which he had memorized in his youth, namely; "What is forbidden in the 8th commandment?" In all temperance matters, Mr. Miller was a stalwart, of the stalwarts. He was uncompromising in his opposition to the liquor traffic, in any form. In the memorable campaign for prohibition, in 1882, he was Vice Pres. of the county organization, and worked untiringly for the amendment. As a result, every township in the Co. was carried. He could never find in his heart, a sufficient reason for forgiving

the ignoble part of those who overthrew that amendment. He regarded that defeat, as the betrayal of the deepest interests of the people. He carried in his heart, a loving remembrance, of the old church of his fathers, in Va. When last visiting the old home, and church, he settled on the church an endowment of $1000.00 as a lasting evidence of gratitude. Of late years, he has been united with the M. E. church, at Redding, and has generously aided in its finances. In familiar talks, he always expressed his appreciation of the religion, and teachings of Christ. He d. Feb. 19, 1914, in his 78th year. He went down into the valley and shadow of death, trusting in the leadership of the Good Shepherd. He was buried in the Redding cemetery. Dr. Charles Zollman Miller, son of H. T. and Elizabeth (Zollman) Miller, was b. June 4, 1876; spent all his early life, in Ringgold Co. In June 1900, he was graduated from the Am. School of Osteopathy, at Kirksville, Mo., and located for practice, soon after, at Huntsville, Ala., where he remained until his death, which occurred Oct. 10, 1901, at Huntsville, after a six weeks' illness, with typhoid fever, in the 26th year of his age. "His death is sad, not only in the ending of a happy and worthy existence, or in the grief bro't to his relatives and friends, but in the bright hopes cut down. He was shortly to have returned to the north, and gone into partnership with his brother at Centerville. He was also to have been married, in the month in which his death occurred, to Miss Beatrice Harrison, an estimable young lady of Huntsville, a cousin of the late Pres. Harrison. Miss Harrison, and her sister, Mrs. Carrie Martin, and her bro'-in-law, P. R. Hunt, accompanied the remains to his home, at Redding, with his father, H. T. Miller, and his brother-in-law, R. J. Loutzenhiser, and his brother, Dr. Wm. B. Miller, of Centerville, who attended him in his last illness."

"Dr. Miller came of sturdy Scotch-Irish Pres. stock. He was robust in health, vigorous in intellect, full of the energy that compels success, and morally pure. He had long been spiritually earnest. When he became a Christian, he did so, fully, and performed all his Christian duties; leading the church prayer meeting, to the profit of older Christians. During four long weeks, he looked death in the face, and was not afraid. He put all aside, when God called him. At Kirksville, he was a never-failing attendant on church, and Sabbath school. Locating in Huntsville, he united with the Pres. church. His pastor paid high tribute to him, saying in part: "Since the day he came among us, he has conducted himself as a moral, clean, studious, manly, man. Tho' one thousand miles from home, he found no time to sow wild oats. Manhood was his birthright, and he did not sell it for a mess of pottage. A northern man by birth, he did not run against the prejudices of his southern neighbors. He was too manly for such pettiness. Nor did he make war upon the Old School physicians, some of whom were the most sincere mourners at his bier. What was the cause of the popular interest so marked in this young stranger? It was the recognition of the worth of character. We are a busy people but we have time to stand uncovered before a finished life."

Sept. 15, 1798; studied for the ministry, at the Theological Seminary, at Cannonsburg, Pa.; was teaching in Washington Coll., Lexington, Va., when he suffered a nervous break-down, which impaired his mind. He returned home, and lived at his father's, until the death of his father, who made provision for him, in his will. He then made his home, a part of the time, with his brother Henry, and a part of the time, with his brother James. He continued to study his Latin, Greek, Hebrew, and other books, that he had used, in preparing for the ministry. He was a fine looking man, with his gray locks, falling about his neck and shoulders, long white beard, intellectual face, and benign countenance. He had been a great student, and profound scholar, for his day and opportunities. Harmless, inoffensive, and reserved, he lived to be quite an old man. He was a member of the Associate Reformed church. He was never married. He died about 1876.

A Group of the Whiteman Family

William Pressley, first m. Mary Gilmore; dau. of Robert and Sina (Irwin) Gilmore. She died, and thro' a correspondence that she had kept up, with her cousin in Va., Martha Miller, Mr. Pressley became acquainted with her, and continued the correspondence. He made a visit to Va., and they were married, and came to Preble Co., O., to live. Mr. Pressley kept a store in Fair Haven; here their three children were born. When their children were grown, they removed to Monmouth, Ill. Mr. Pressley was in the mercantile business there, for a great many years; was very successful, financially, and by his will, left about $75,000.00 to Monmouth College, the City Library, and other benevolent objects, in Monmouth. He had a brother, a physician, in South Carolina, the native state of the Pressleys. His son lost his life in the Civil War; later his two daughters died, then his wife. Mr. Pressley, the last of his family, died after the Civil war; the exact date not at hand.

B.8.1.

Henry Pressley; b. in 1837, in Preble Co., O.; attended a commercial college, in Chicago; while there, he was converted, and by his Christian conversation, and deportment, had a great influence on his cousins, the children of Samuel Miller, whom he visited, in Memphis, Mo., resulting in four of the brothers and sisters confessing Christ, and uniting with the church. He went to Kansas, at that time almost in a state of revolution, on the slavery question. Returning home, he enlisted in the Union Army, and in the next spring, 1861, was in the battle of Pittsburg Landing; and at the siege of Vicksburg, he was killed, by the caving in of the earth, where they were excavating for a powder magazine. His remains were taken to his home in Monmouth for burial. Later, his two sisters died, then his mother.

C.

Samuel Miller, Sen., son of Henry and Rebecca Boggs Miller was born in Lancaster Co., Pa., Mch. 1, 1760; came with his parents, in 1770, to Rockbridge Co., Va.; married Jan. 1, 1787, Margaret Lackey, daughter of Thomas and Agnes (Leech) Lackey, who came from Londonderry to Lancaster Co., Pa., in 1748, and to Rockbridge, then a part of Augusta Co., in 1768, when Margaret Lackey was one year old, Samuel, and Margaret Lackey Miller, lived on the homestead of Henry Miller, his father, near the Natural Bridge. In their later years the old home passed into the hands of their son Samuel and wife, Janetta (Wilson) Miller, who cared for the parents until their death. Their house was always open to the numerous relatives who came from Timber Ridge, Kerr's Creek, Colliertown, and other parts of the county, to visit "Uncle Sam" and "Aunt Peggy". Samuel Miller died in 1848, ag'd 87 years. Margaret Miller died in 1854, also ag'd 87 years. They were the parents of 13 children.

- C.1.3.6. Wilberforce James Whiteman, second son of Samuel Miller, and Elizabeth (Reynolds) Whiteman, was born in Preble County, Ohio; came with his parents to Henderson Co., Ill.; has been a musician all his life. "He sang as the birds sang, and whistled his way through school." He studied music under the best teachers, at home and abroad. At 22 years of age, he was the teacher of music at Amity College, College Springs, Iowa, and there met Miss Alfreda Dallison, whose first teacher in music he was. They were married, at her home in Bedford, Iowa. Mr. Whiteman has been Supt. of music in the public schools of Denver, of which there are eight, for 27 years. He has been the Director of Music, in the Trinity M. E. church, Denver, for the past 17 years, leading the choir, of over 150 voices, which he has developed into one of the finest choirs in the country; one of the four chorus choirs in the United States, known beyond the boundaries of their own state—The Baptist Temple Choir of Brooklyn, New York, the famous Tabernacle Choir, of Salt Lake City, Utah, one composed of the Conservatory students, of Oberlin, Ohio, and the Trinity M. E. Church Choir, Denver, Colorado. As a conductor of Oratorios, Prof. Whiteman has a national reputation. It is a serious business of life with him, not a mere accomplishment. One of the secrets of his marvellous success, is his powerful magnetism, with his resolute sincerity. The Whiteman Institute of Music, in Denver, established by Prof. Whiteman is devoted to the education of supervisors of music, in the Denver schools. He has taught over 100,000 children, and young people; is instructing 1000 teachers, how to teach, and 33,000 pupils, how to read music, and to sing. In 1913, 10,000 persons in the vast auditorium, were thrilled by the chorus of 1000 students, of five High Schools, of Denver, accompanied by the thundering of five grand pianos, twice as many violins, drums, bassos, and 'cellos. Prof. Whiteman waved his baton, and, as an answer, came an outburst of 1000 voices, with absolute unity, with not a single false note, not a mistake, not a hesitation. His concert for the benefit of the poor, cleared over $100,000; and is only one of many of the kind. Mrs. Whiteman, Concert and Oratorio Contralto, has a voice of rare qualities, exquisitely pure, strong, and sympathetic; and, especially pleasing. Her modest, simple, and intelligent manner, demonstrates the true artist. She has sung with great success, in the leading eastern cities. Prof. Francis Fisher Powers, of New York, said of her singing, of Tosti's Serenade, "Scalchi, in the plenitude of her powers, never sang the Serenade, as Mrs. Whiteman sings it. She is one of the few great singers, who have an appreciation of words, as well as of notes, which is one reason why, no matter what she sings, whether it is "The Land o' The Leal," or "Little Boy Blue," or "He Was Despised," her audience follows her with entire appreciation." Mr. and Mrs. Whiteman have two children.

C.1.3.6.1. Ferne Elizabeth Whiteman; born 1886; married H. Paul Smith. Mrs. Smith is a vocal soloist, of note, has been the Contralto at the First Baptist church of Denver, for the past eight years; has charge of the vocal department, at the Colorado Women's College; has many flattering offers to go upon the operatic stage.

C.1.3.6.2. Paul Samuel Whiteman; born 1890; violin and viola soloist; teacher of viola; in the Symphony Orchestra, Broadway theatre; and Brown Palace Hotel, Denver, Colo.

C.1.7. Henry Miller Whiteman; third son of James and Rebecca (Miller) Whiteman (C.1.), was born in Preble Co., Ohio, Dec. 25, 1825; married Mch. 12, 1853, in O., Elizabeth McDill, of the same Co., daughter of David and Elizabeth (Foster) McDill. They came to Henderson Co., Ill. in Oct. 1853, making the trip from Ohio in wagons. They settled near Biggsville, where they have since resided, honored and esteemed by all. They united with the South Henderson United Pres. church soon after coming to the county, but transferred their membership to the Biggsville church, when it was organized, being charter members. Mr. Whiteman was elected an elder in the church, in 1866, and served faithfully as such, until called to the great church above, 33 years later. The McDills were, also, of Scotch-Irish descent, David McDill being descended from David McDill, a Revolutionary soldier. Mrs. Whiteman's mother, Elizabeth Foster, was a native of South Carolina. Mrs. Whiteman was b. Nov. 6, 1832, near Fair Haven, O., Preble Co., and d. June 7, 1914, at Biggsville, Ill. Mr. Whiteman was a staunch Republican; and by that party was elected, in 1880, to the Legislature, where he served his constituents faithfully and well. He was successful, in all of his business enterprises, and the possessor of large landed estates; and when the 1st National Bank was organized, in 1883, he was elected its President, holding that office the remainder of his life. Mr. Whiteman was one of the best liked men in the Co.; but in the community in which he lived, was his loss felt. Honorable, upright, considerate of others, and just to all, his place will be hard to fill. He was a loving and affectionate husband, and father. Eleven children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Whiteman, all of whom, save one, were living and with their father, at the time of his death. Mr. Whiteman was a thorough Christian gentleman; and consistent in all things; so much so, that his good influence was felt, not only in the community, but throughout the Co. The families of Samuel and Henry Miller Whiteman, and Rachel Jane Whiteman. Cochran, comprise the Ill., branch of the family. The sons and daughters of Samuel Whiteman, grew up and are scattered from New Jersey to Colorado. The other two families remaining in Ill., near Biggs-ville, now make up a large community. The eleven children of Henry M. and Elizabeth Whiteman are:

When grown, he engaged in farming, to some extent, but his chief interest and most successful business, has been raising fine horses. On Dec. 23, 1910, he married Margaret M., daughter of Robert and Mrs. Mary (Michener) McKinley. Mr. Whiteman has retired from active business, and is living in Biggsville, Ill.

C.1.7.2. David Albert Whiteman; born Henderson Co., Ill., Mch. 14, 1854. When a small boy, he lived a part of the time, with his grandparents, David and Elizabeth Whiteman. He attended the rural school, "Colona," and, later, Elliotts Business College, in Burlington, Ia. In Oct. 1885, he married Elizabeth Cameron, daughter of William and Sarah (Graham) Cameron, natives of Pa. Elizabeth Cameron was, at the time of her marriage, Supt. of Schools, of Henderson Co. She received her education at Monmouth College, and is a graduate of the Normal School, of Valparaiso, Ind. Mr. Whiteman in a life-long residence in Henderson Co., has been identified with its public affairs, and has come to be known throughout his home Co., and elsewhere, as a man of unimpeachable integrity, and probity. He has attained more than average success as a farmer; but has always been ready to serve his neighborhood and his country, in any capacity in which his services have been demanded. He served on the Agricultural Board of the Henderson Co. Fair, until that organization disbanded. He has several times been Pres. of the Farmer's Institute. He was a member of the first Board of Review, under Twp., organization. He was, for 16 years, a member of the Board of Education, of the Biggsville Twp., High School; was Clerk of the Board; was endorsed by the Progressives of the Fourteenth Congressional District, in conference at Monmouth, for candidate for the nomination for the Legislature, from his district. Of the many years he has been a member of the United Pres. church, he has served twenty-three as an elder. The children of this family are as follows:

C.4.

Henry Miller, son of Samuel, Sen., and Margaret (Lackey) Miller, b. Aug. 7, 1793, in Rockbridge Co., Va., m. in Va., in 1820, Jane Diehl. Her father lived on the Race. He was a soldier, of the war of 1812. Henry Miller was one of the noblest of men; full of the milk of human kindness; and, physically, the strongest of all the "kin"; unmatched, in trial of strength, as a young man in Va., in wrestling, foot-races, throwing the shoulder stone, and other amusements, common to that day. In character, he was honorable, just, kind, and generous. He had many friends. He was a member of the Associate Reformed church, of which Rev. Samuel Baldridge was pastor, in Clinton Co., Ind.; to which place he removed, in 1829, from Preble Co., O., to which place he had gone from Va., in 1827. Rev. Baldridge visited him in his last sickness, and wrote Mr. Miller's brother, of his peaceful death and trust in Jesus, his Saviour. Rev. Baldridge was a grandson of the Rev. William Baldridge, one of the early ministers, of Rockbridge Co. Jane Diehl was said to have been a handsome woman. Capt. Henry Miller bought the farm of her father, and lived on it, in the same house that the Diehl's had occupied, making improvements. The Diehls removed to Clinton Co., Ind. The children of Henry and Jane Diehl Miller lived in Ind., Ill., Ia., and Okla. Henry Miller died in 1858. Mrs. Miller died, in 1861. 7 children.

David Henry Miller; b. May 8, 1859; m. Dec. 16, 1886, Emma Jane Pierson. Res. San Juan, Texas. Mr. Miller had been up at his farm at Washington, Ia., which he had leased some years ago, to Mr. Beall, whose wife was a granddaughter of Henry Whiteman, of Biggsville, Ill. He did not know that she was his relative, until the receipt of a letter recently, from James W. Miller. He was much pleased, as he had found them to be worthy people and profitable care-takers of his large stock-farm, bringing in returns of thousands of dollars, yearly. The following is quoted from a letter received. "David H. is fine company; brimful of information, and business. He is one of the Alamo Land and Sugar Co., owning 84,000 acres of irrigated land, in the lower Rio Grande Valley of Texas—the Nile country of the United States." Mr. and Mrs. Miller have two children.

C.10. Samuel Miller, sixth son of Samuel Miller, Sen., and his wife, Margaret (Lackey) Miller, was born Apr. 6, 1805, on the old homestead of Henry Miller Sen., his grandfather. Janetia Wilson, third daughter of James and Deborah (Patterson) Wilson, was born Oct. 25, 1810, in Augusta Co. Her father bought a farm, adjoining the Miller farm, in Rockbridge Co., when she was three years of age; and Samuel Miller and Janetia Wilson, were schoolmates. They were married Sept. 4, 1834. He was of an active, hopeful, confident, temperament. His maxim thro' life was, "think you conquer and you conquer." In the cause of temperance, when a young man, he, with five others, signed a total abstinence pledge, and stayed by it, altho' there were six distilleries in operation within two and one-half miles of his home. From his mother, who sang well, he inherited a talent for music; and when a small boy, was generally well supplied with small coins, which had been tossed to him, to hear him sing. When some of the family needed change, they always felt sure that "Sam" had it. His opportunities, early in the last century, to acquire an education from books, was limited, and confined to reading, writing, arithmetic, and some geography. He qualified himself, by instruction in music for one term, under Mr. Chapin, a vocal teacher of note, who taught music in the Valley; and taught the winter singing schools, in different parts of the Co. For a number of years, he was entrusted with the funds, for the schooling of children of parents, too poor to pay tuition. When he became of age, to be enrolled in the militia, as he was a good horseman, he joined the cavalry. One day, during the company drill, on College Hill, one half mile from Lexington, two men rode on the grounds, trespassing, were rebuked and ordered off; repeating the offence, they were ordered to be put under guard, but were escaping, when Samuel Miller, and a comrade, were ordered to take them, "dead, or alive." Samuel Miller, riding his spirited horse "Jim," drew his sword dashed after them came up with them, captured them, and they were conducted to the guard house. He served seven years as a trooper of the militia, and received honorable discharge, with considerable knowledge of military tactics. About the time of his marriage, his three brothers had settled in Indiana, where he also had purchased land intending to make that his home. But his sisters, all married but one, wished him to remain and care for their parents, now quite old; which he did, buying out the other heirs to the farm, and greatly improving it. Samuel Miller took the greatest interest in the history of the family, and it is said it was doubtful if any of the family knew more of the family history; it being talked over by his parents, during their last years, in his home, with the relatives who visited them, and with himself. Many records of the family were made by him, and handed down to his son J. W. Miller, who inherited, in an unusual degree, this love of genealogical research, and interest in the lives and history of his ancestors and kindred. Samuel Miller bought up land warrants, from old soldiers, enough to enter, from the U. S. Gov't., 1,000 acres of land in Missouri, in 1852, and 320 acres, in Iowa, in 1854. He entered on no project in which he could not ask God's blessing. His father died in 1848, and his mother in 1854. He was now free to carry out his long-cherished plans, of making his future home in the rapidly developing great West; where he had already invested in improved land. In 1855, he sold the old homestead, and in Sept., with two well-fitted, two-horse vehicles, with his wife, five sons, and three daughters, and three other families, he started on the journey, of about one thousand miles. Traveling on the stage road, from the Valley, across the Allegheny Mts., by way of Lewisburg to the Kanawha Valley, they passed thro' the lands once owned by Gen. George Washington, and crossed the Ohio river at Point Pleasant. Here the great battle was fought between the Virginians from the Valley, from Augusta and the adjoining counties under command of Gen. Andrew Lewis, and the Indians from the Scioto Valley, Ohio, under the noted Chief Cornstalk, on Oct. 10, 1774. In S. E. Ohio, they saw the first railroad locomotive and train. From near Jamestown, Green Co., Ohio, they traveled on the National road to Richmond, Ind. Here they parted with the other three families, and proceeded to Wabash Co., Ind., to the land received from James Lackey, in part payment for the old homestead. They arrived there Oct. 10, 1855, having traveled about 500 miles. Mr. Miller, arranging matters for the winter, made his third trip to Mo., to have a house built, for occupancy in the spring. His oldest son, 20 years of age, taught the public school for the winter. At times, the thermometer stood at 28 degrees below zero. In 1856, they drove to Clinton Co., visiting a brother, Henry Miller, and family, and families of his brothers, John, and William Miller. Crossing western Ind., and the state of Ill., by way of Lafayette, Oxford, Lexington, and Peoria, to the Mississippi river, at Burlington, Ia., which was crossed on the ice, it being three feet thick, they traveled over a deep snow, through an open country, for 20 miles, without seeing a house. The horses floundered sometimes, in snow drifts, when the women would have to get out, to lighten the load, so that the horses could pull through. The next day, they again saw a rail-road and train, the first on that trip. From Burlington, they passed thro' eastern Ia., to Memphis, Mo., arriving there Mch. 20, 1856, with horses jaded, but with the Millers—parents, bouyant, cheerful, thankful to God, for the safe journey of one thousand miles. What about the eight children? Oh, they enjoyed it all the way; and could look back, and remember all the places where they stopped nights, from Virginia, to Missouri. On account of the rigorous winter, the parties who had engaged to build a house had done nothing. So a house was rented, and Mr. Miller, with his usual energy, began to gather material, the most of it brought ten miles. By May 1, he had a comfortable frame house, 65 acres of prairie broken, fenced and in crop, that spring and fall; and in four years, six 80 acre tracts fenced and the most of it in cultivation. There was then no barbed wire, but fencing was made from timber, brought from six to ten miles. Before Mr. Miller left Virginia he was called by some of the ultra-slavery men an abolitionist. He refused to accept a negro boy which his father-in-law wished to leave him as a legacy. He was progressive. On account of his ability and success, with a limited education in books, and his sterling qualities, he was called "one of nature's noblemen." On a former trip from Virginia, to Iowa, to enter Gov't land, he stopped at his brothers' in Indiana, went by steamboat, by way of Cairo, Illinois, to Burlington, Ia.; and by hack, to Morning Sun, Louisa Co., 23 miles distant to the home of his cousin from Rockbridge, Henry Miller Ochiltree, son of Capt. Thomas and Jean (Miller) Ochiltree, arriving after dark, Mr. Ochiltree, coming to the door, Mr. Miller asked if they would keep a stranger over night, and received the reply: "Come in, Cousin Sam, you can't fool me; I know your voice." They had not met for 15 years. In 1833, during a protracted meeting held in Rockbridge, by Rev. John Mark Fulton, of the Pres. church, Mr. Miller was converted, and united with High Bridge Pres. church. After his marriage he began having family worship, with singing a hymn or psalm, reading the scripture, and prayer. This he continued throughout his married life, until old age and the death of his wife, and the breaking up of his home. In 1835, he was elected Ruling Elder, in High Bridge church, serving in that capacity for 20 years, until his removal to Memphis, where he served the remainder of his life. His six sons, likewise, were elders. Mrs. Miller was a sincere, true, faithful, Christian wife and mother. The heart of her husband safely trusted in her; and he could say, "Many daughters have done virtuously, but thou excellest them all." A few days before her death, she told her husband that she was prepared to go, and was going to Jesus, her Savior. She was called home, Aug. 27, 1878; and Samuel Miller, Apr. 20, 1891. Their 10 children were:

Rebecca Boggs Miller, who came from Londonderry, Ireland. He came with his parents, from Rockbridge Co., in 1855, at seventeen years of age, to Clinton Co., Indiana, and to Memphis, Scotland Co., Mo., in 1856. He remained in Mo., until 1860, when he returned to Ind., and there married, Feb. 6, 1862. Mary Agnes Lackey, born Aug. 21, 1842, daughter of John and Mary Weir (Walker) Lackey, who went from Virginia to Ohio in 1829, and ten years later to Ind. John Lackey was a son of Thomas Lackey of Kerr's Creek. His mother was Martha, daughter of David and Margaret Miller Leech, son of John Leech, Sen. Mary Weir Walker, was the daughter of William and — (Weir) Walker of Rockbridge Co., near Weir's Cave. Mr. and Mrs. Miller removed from Ind., in 1878, to Memphis, Scotland Co., Mo., where they lived until 1896, when they again removed, to Harrison, Arkansas. Mrs. Mary Lackey, Mrs. Miller's mother, made her home with them, until her death, in 1878. Mrs. Miller died, Mch. 28, 1912. Mr. Miller resides in Harrison, Arkansas, now in his 79th year, taking a lively interest in all that transpires, in the Civil and religious life of the day; has recently visited his children in Idaho, Montana, Utah and Iowa. He is a Presbyterian in faith, the faith of his fathers. Mr. and Mrs. Miller, were the parents of 11 children, 9 of whom are living. The children of Mr. and Mrs. Miller were:

C.10.3.1.

Samuel Gillen Miller was born Mch. 8, 1863, in Wabash County, Indiana. He prepared for the ministry, at Westminster College, Fulton, Missouri, and at Southwestern Pres. University, Clarksville, Tennessee, and there married, June 12, 1887, Jane M. Price, daughter of Rev. Robert Price, D. D., Professor in the University, and his wife, Jane (Black) Price. He preached for 6 years, in Mississippi, and was for four years, pastor of the First Pres. church, in Little Rock, Arkansas. He then went to Philadelphia met John C. Martin, of New York City, a millionaire, and an elder in the Presbyterian church, who was interested in educating, or helping, the colored ministers of the South, to a better education. As Rev. Miller had been aiding colored ministers, in Bible Study, during his pastorate in the South, Mr. Martin engaged him to carry on the Bible Institute, and located him at Philadelphia. This work he continued for about five years, during which time over 100 colored ministers took the course in the Institute; some of them taking the degrees. After two years, J. C. Martin discontinued his aid, but Rev. Miller continued the work, by soliciting aid from friends of the cause, in eastern cities. On the 28 of Mch. 1912, his mother died at her home, in Harrison, Arkansas. He was notified, by telegram, and the funeral delayed for the arrival of him, and his brother

Frank, in Oregon. Word was received that Rev. Miller could not come, and later, a dispatch saying that Dr. Miller had died, Apr. 1, 1912, from hemorrhage of the brain, caused by the shock of hearing of his mother's death. Writing of this, his father says: "We consoled ourselves with the words of Job, 'The Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away. Blessed be the name of the Lord'. At his birth we gave him to the Lord, to use as his wisdom might direct." He united with the Presbyterian church of Memphis, Missouri, when about seventeen years of age. Later, by his own choice, he decided to honor the Lord, in the ministry of his Word. He had fine success in all of his work. Mrs. Miller and children live at Clarksville, Tennessee. The children of Rev. and Mrs. Miller were:

The Following by J. W. Miller Will Be Of Interest

In regard to the inquiry as to whether the Millers have brown eyes I will say that some of them have but it must be through the Lackeys. The descendants of James Miller, who was a brother of my great-grand-father Henry Miller, some of whom I remember, had black hair and blue eyes and my grandfather Samuel Miller whom I remember well, and his sister Jean (Miller) Ochiltree both had blue eyes. Their hair then white had been black. My grandmother Margaret Miller who was a daughter of Thomas Lackey Sen. had brown eyes and black hair which must have come from her father as her mother Agnes (Leech) Lackey had red hair and the Leeches had blue or gray eyes. Nathan Lackey Sen. half-brother of Thomas Lackey Sen., who emigrated to Ky. had, I have heard my father say, hair and beard as black as a raven and I judge black or dark brown eyes. My father Samuel Miller Jr. had hazel eyes. His two youngest sisters, Margaret Miller and Isabel McKnight had brown eyes. Most of the family had hazel eyes so if the descendants of William Ramsey had brown eyes it must have been thro the mother Elizabeth Lackey.

Mrs. Leila (Ramsey) Lemon who made the above inquiry, says, "The descendants of William Ramsey, Jr., and his wife, Rebecca (Miller) Ramsey, are the only brown-eyed Ramseys. Their daughters, my father's aunts, Betsey Hays and Jane Huston, were two of the prettiest old ladies, with snow-white hair and twinkling brown eyes. My own Aunt Rebecca Caskey looked just like them when she was growing old. My father, grandson of William and Rebecca Ramsey, had brown eyes. His three children have brown eyes, altho' my mother's people were blue and gray-eyed, and two of my three children have big brown eyes. Mrs. Lemon further says, "I am a Ramsey, Lackey, Miller, Taylor, Steele and a McQuinton, Gaston, McDill, Chestnut. (No pun intended.)" the war. On a fly-leaf, is written: "Taken prisoner March 2, 1865; arrived at Fort Delaware, March 12, 1865. Richmond was evacuated, by Gen. Lee, Apr. 3, 1865. Gen. Lee surrendered Apr. 9, 1865; I was released from prison, June 21, 1865. I reached Baltimore, June 22, arrived at Rappahannock, the 24th; from there via City Point, and Fortress Monroe, the 25; Petersburg and Fannville the 25; Lynchburg 27." There the record stops. In a letter, dated June 6, 1864, he writes: "I am now at Uncle David Ochiltree's, on our way to Pa. Cousin Thomas, and David, died the first year of the war, at the hospital. Aunt Becca Leech is still living, at the old place, with Lockey. They all went to the west. The Yankees burnt a great many houses, through Rockbridge." Mr. Wilson was a member of the M. E. Church, South, and a member of the official board of the church. He died Apr. 3, 1906. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson had 11 children.

Letter from David Lecch Ochiltree (D.5.8.2.), Rockbridge Co., Va., to his cousin, Thomas Ochiltree Wilson, in Bland Co., Va.

Rockbridge Co., Va., July 25, 1859.

Dear Cousin:

I embrace the present opportunity to write you a few lines to let you know how we are getting along. We are all well and hope that this will find you all enjoying the same great blessing of God. We have had a long dry summer but have a fine rain today. Wheat crops were good this year. Father has sold his farm to Mr. Wooden for $2,000.00 and expects to move west next Sept. a year. We do not give possession until then. Uncle John Lecch's farm will be sold the 29th of July with all the rest of the property. They have had the flux very bad this summer. Cousin Fannie and E. Betty have been very sick and Cousin Andrew's little boy died with it.

William H. came home from Staunton the 23d of June. He learned very fast the last ten months. He says he would have been glad to have seen you when you were here. He will go back to Staunton the 1st of next Sept. We received a letter from Cousin Fannie Ochiltree, last April, daughter of Uncle Thomas Ochiltree. She said that Uncle Thomas and his oldest son had started for Pike's Peak. He expects to be gone about three months but we have not heard from them since. I believe I have told you about all the news, so I bring my letter to a close by asking you to write soon. Excuse all mistakes in spelling and writing. Give my love to all the friends accepting a portion for yourself. Father and mother send their best love to you all.

David L. Ochiltree
to
Thomas O. Wilson

Rockbridge Co., Va., July 25, 1859.

Dear Cousin:

I seat myself once more to write you a few words to let you know that I am in the land of the living. I expect you think that I have forgotten you but I have not. You must excuse me for not writing sooner. I received a letter from Cousin James Miller son of Samuel Miller last week. They live in Scotland Co., Mo. Father wrote a letter to Uncle Henry a few weeks ago but has not got an answer yet. We expect to move out to the west when we do move if nothing happens. You must come and see us before we leave Rockbridge. Tell Uncle James and Aunt Elizabeth they must come and see us. Well I believe I must bid you a good bye. I remain your affectionate Cousin

Thomas A. Ochiltree.
Thomas O. Wilson

The two young men, writers of the above letters, sons of David and Jane (Leech) Ochiltree, as will have been seen, lost their lives in the Civil war, in Va., the move to the west having been abandoned. William H., referred to, was the blind brother, attending a school for the blind, who afterward became a minister of the Presbyterian church, (D.5.8.3.). The original of these letters, are in the possession of Miss Josie Alice Wilson, Bland, Va., daughter of Tho's O. Wilson.

The Forks of the James, or the Miller, church, two and one-half miles northeast of the Natural Bridge, was built with twelve corners; probably, it is said, for convenience in handling the logs; with the pulpit at one end, a fire-place at the side. The door was of pine, panelled, and long preserved, after the church had gone. Henry Miller, Sen., was largely instrumental in the building of this church, which was on his land. William Gilmore, son-in-law of Thomas Lackey, Sen., and Samuel Snodgrass, were elders. Other worshippers and members, were James Whiteman, son-in-law of Samuel Miller, Sen., and Billy Ramsey, son-in-law of Henry Miller; the latter, one of the carpenters who built the church, who afterward married Rebecca Miller; and John Crawford who moved to Missouri, at eighty-four years of age; the Paxtons, and Irvines. Rev. William Baldridge, of North Carolina, was ordained, and installed pastor, Aug. 1793, of this church, and, also, of one across the river, in Botetourt Co. The church was prosperous, and thronged with worshippers, from far and near, until a tide of emigration set in, about 1800, to the cheap and fertile lands of Ohio. The pastor resigned, Oct. 18, 1803, but continued as stated supply, in connection, also, with Timber Ridge A. R. church, until the summer of 1809. At this date, he resigned, and with a large caravan of his flock, joined those who had preceded them, to the rich Ohio Valley. The remnant continued with occasional supplies, and reappeared in Broad Creek church, in 1824. The old Miller grave yard, marks the spot of the old church, with the Blue Ridge a grand back ground. Henry Miller, Sen., and his wife, Rebecca (Boggs) Miller, lie buried there, and their son, Samuel Miller, and wife, Margaret (Lackey) Miller. Broad Creek church received the following persons, Apr. 23, and 24, 1824. Elizabeth Miller, Margaret Miller, Margaret Hamilton, Agnes Jackson, Jane Leyburn, from the A. R. church; John Shaffer, Eleanor Miller, James Miller, William Miller, Martha L. Miller, Susanna Rebecca Ginger, Rebecca Ochiltree. The present brick church was completed about 1849. Dr. William McIlwee was pastor from 1850 to 1860. Broad Creek church still holds for the maintenance of the Gospel, and an inspired Psalmody.

THE RAMSEYS

The name Ramsey—de Ramescie—is said to be of Norman origin; derived from the name of lands in Normandy. The Scotch name was originally spelled Ramsay. The Ramseys held several baronies in Scotland, before 1200; and, after that time, there were numerous Marquisates, Viscounties, and Lordships. A branch of the family emigrated to South Carolina, some time before the Revolutionary war. Dr. David Ramsay of this branch, married on Jan. 23, 1787, Martha Laurens, born in Charleston, in 1759; descended, on her father's side, from French Huguenots; and on her mother's side, from English ancestors. Memoirs of her life, in book form, were published in Lexington, Ky., in 1813, by David Ramsay, M. D. In the back of this book, are printed the lists of subscribers, from the different counties, and the larger towns, of Ky.; also, from Tennessee, and Indiana Territory.

Hopewell Church, Preble County, Ohio

Another branch of the family, which had emigrated to North Ireland, came to America, from county Derry; Ballycastle being their neighboring town. Of these there were four brothers, and a sister.

- A. William Ramsey (twin); m. 1, Elizabeth Lackey; 2, Martha Ochiltree.
- B. George Ramsey (twin); settled in Pa.
- C. Hugh Ramsey; went north; all trace of him lost.
- D. John Ramsey; settled in Va.; later in Hamilton Co., Ohio.
- E. Martha Ramsey; m. Mr. Brownfield; last heard of at Urbana, Ill.

William Ramsey was born in Scotland, in March, 1747; went with his parents to Co. Derry, North Ireland. He emigrated to the American Colonies, in 1768, when 21 years old. He settled in Lancaster Co., Pa. Others of the family came later. In 1771, he married Elizabeth Lackey, born in 1746; and for fourteen years lived in Pa. Possibly, she was a sister of Thomas Lackey, Sen., or of his half-brother, Nathan Lackey, who went, in a very early day, from Va., to Ky. William Ramsey served in the Revolutionary war, as Lieutenant, in the 2nd Battalion of Militia, of Lancaster Co., Pa., commanded by Col. Watson, 1777. In 1785, he removed his family to Rockbridge Co., Va.; settling near the Natural Bridge. Here Elizabeth Ramsey died, in 1789, aged 43 years. It is said, she was poisoned by a slave woman, whom she had promised to free, at her death. She left a family of six sons, and one daughter; all born in Pa. William Ramsey married Martha Ochiltree, daughter of James and Catharine Ochiltree, who came to Rockbridge Co., in 1783. (See The Ochiltrees). She was born in 1771, and was 24 years her husband's junior. They were married, Jan. 28, 1796, by Rev. Samuel Houston, of Rural Valley, Rockbridge Co. To them were born 4 sons and 3 daughters. In 1802, they, with their children and grand-children, emigrated to Woodford Co., Ky., where they had relatives, and where they remained for four years. In 1805, two of his sons, William, and Nathan, with their families, took up the journey to Preble Co., Ohio; settling in Israel Twp. In 1806, the parents, and the rest of the family, came, except Hugh, who came in 1807. The Ramseys became very numerous, in the Co.; a large settlement, composed wholly of this family, being known as "The Ramsey Settlement." William Ramsey entered 160 acres of land, in Sec. 14, Israel Twp. The old homestead is in the possession of one of his great grandsons. Adjoining this was the land of his sons; on the north, his son Hugh; on the south, Nathan; on the S. E., William; and east of William, John. On Sept. 6, 1802, as we find from Rockbridge Co., records, William Finley, executor of estate of Michael Ochiltree, sold to William Ramsey, 60 acres of a tract of land lying on the east side of Elk Creek, in Rockbridge Co.; and on June 4, 1804, William Ramsey and Martha, his wife, conveyed to one John Bagley, land in Rockbridge Co., on waters of Elk Creek, and stony Creek branches, of James river. The barn which William Ramsey built on his place in Preble Co., Ohio, still stands (1916), and contains the same logs which he placed in it. In threshing wheat from the mow, the neighbors assisting, dreaded the work, as it was hard to get the wheat out; but Nathan Ramsey, the grandson, said, "That is the way my grandfather built it, and I won't change it." He left the original part standing, "as it was in the beginning," altho' he added to, and built around, it. William, and Martha (Ochiltree) Ramsey, were members, presumably charter members, of the old Hopewell congregation. The church, and session house, (as shown on another page), is still standing, and was in use, until quite recently. But the old families are gone, and the old church, being in the country, the more modern churches in the surrounding towns, have taken the few remaining members. In this old churchyard, are buried generation after generation, of the old families of the community for miles around, since 1809. Here we find inscribed, "William Ramsey died in 1838, aged 91 years." "Martha Ramsey died in 1842, ag'd 71 years. Martha Ramsey died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William Patterson, near Camden, O. Descendants of her sons, George and David, live near Morning Sun and Fair Haven. One of her great-grandsons and his mother, now live on the old home place. William Ramsey had 14 children, and 87 grandchildren. All their children, also, are buried in Hopewell church yard.

- A.1. Dr. John Ramsey; m. Elizabeth Campbell.
- A.2. Nathan Ramsey; b. 1774, in Va.; came to Ohio in 1805; served in the war of 1812; died during the war; is buried in the Dr. John Ramsey family burying ground.
- A.3. William Ramsey, Jr.; m. Rebecca Miller.
- A.4. Hugh Ramsey; b. 1779; m. Francis Sheppard, in Va., in 1803; came to Preble Co., in 1807; is buried in Hopewell church-yard.
- A.5. James Ramsey; m. Mrs. Dinah McDonald, near Camden, Ohio; lived near the Ohio-Ind. line.
- A.6. Polly Ramsey; m. Mr. DeMoss, near Camden; moved to Logansport, Ind.
- A.7. Thomas Ramsey; m. 1, Sallie Beggs; 2, Polly Kirkham; removed to Ind.

- A.12. Nancy Ramsey; m. John McMechan.
- A.13. Martha Ramsey; m. Henry Marshall.
- A.14. David Ramsey; m. 1, Mary Marshall; 2, Mary Charlotte Gilmore.

- A.1. Dr. John Ramsey; eldest son of William, and Elizabeth (Lackey) Ramsey, was born in Lancaster County, Pa.; emigrated, with his parents, to Rockbridge Co., Va., and in 1806, to Preble Co., Ohio. Soon after settling in Ohio, he began the practice of medicine, in his neighborhood. He was the first physician and surgeon, in Israel Twp., Preble Co. He was highly esteemed, for his sound judgment, honest intentions, and devotion to his patients. Dr. Ramsey performed the first surgical operation, in the Twp., amputating the limb of William Allenwith. The instruments were crude, but the patient recovered, and hopped about for many years. Dr. Ramsey, altho' he never attended a medical college, was not a quack; but by private reading, close observation, and good, common-sense, he was able to serve his community, in his day, and generation. Dr. John Ramsey married Elizabeth Campbell of Virginia. They have a numerous posterity, widely scattered.

"Uncle David" Ramsey
Son of William and Martha Ochiltree Ramsey

Letter From William Ramsey, Jr., To Mrs. Jean Ochiltree, On the Death of His Wife, Mrs. Ochiltree's Sister

State of Ohio Preble County May 28, 1813

Dear Sister: I take this opportunity to inform you that we are well at present all of us that are living it has pleased the Lord to take from me my companion and helpmate which he gave me and to remove her from time to eternity and from this world and trouble to (I hope and trust) the full enjoyment of God and his holy angels and saints of the Most High who have entered into their rest unto all eternity singing Glory to God and the Lamb who has redeemed us and washed us in his blood. It has been the lot of you and I to be separated from our beloved companions in the prime of life but we must endeavor to say like Job, the Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away Blessed be the name of the Lord. My situation is truly grievous to be separated from one so near but I must endeavor to feel resigned to the will of God. I had a good journey home and felt happy to arrive at home until our trouble began and from that to the eighteenth of this instant I had a goodail of trouble and following which was the time of her departure. I was expecting to be called out upon a draft in a few days after Rebecca's death but I hope I will not be called on for some time from my family. Send me out a letter as soon as you can and let me know how you all are in that country now I do not know whether I ever will see that country again or not. James Ockeltree has not got land to suit him yet but is on rented land the prospects of our country in respect to the war is somewhat pleasing to what it was some time ago the savages and British have been obliged to flee before our armies of late and I hope that we will soon have peace within our borders once more then I wish all friends would move from that country, that is not very well fixed in land and has rising families as I think this country far superior to that I never liked this country so well as when I came into it again but alas what is all this world and the enjoyments thereof when we think of the glorious immortality that God has prepared for them that love him I have all my family together and intend to keep them together if I can as I hope I can make out the youngest is nine months old only but he is remarkably good and healthy. The reason that I deferred writing so long was that I did not want to write until Rebecca had got some better and was on the road to getting well for I thought you would be more uneasy to know that she was laboring under her complaint than not to know at all and I had not any encouragement to send you any good word since the first of March unless it was a few days and then it took the turn and from that on I lost all hope unto it carried her to her long home. I must stop my pen by concluding myself your ever loving brother unto death William Ramsey.

To

Jean Ochiltree.

The large double sheet of heavy paper, now brown with age, but still whole, and writing perfectly legible, was folded to form an envelope, and had been sealed with wax. On the face of it was written, Mrs. Jean Ochiltree, Rockbridge, Virginia, near the Natural Bridge. In the place where a stamp is usually placed, was written 25. In the other upper corner, Eaton, Ohio, 25, June 1813. The postage on a letter was then 25 cts. Very little money was in circulation and not many letters were written unless there was an opportunity to send them by private parties, going on horseback, or by wagon, or sometimes on foot.

- A.3. William Ramsey, Jr., b. in Lancaster Co., Pa., 1776; came with his parents, to Rockbridge Co., Va., in 1785. He was one of the carpenters, who built the house of Henry Miller, Sen.; after which he married the daughter, Rebecca, whose sister, Jean, was the wife of Thomas Ochiltree, brother of Martha (Ochiltree) Ramsey, his father's second wife. Rebecca Miller, was the daughter of Henry and Rebecca (Boggs) Miller, who came from Londonderry, Ireland. She was born in Rockbridge Co., Va. In 1802, with their little family, they started, on horseback, the only mode of travel, to Woodford Co., Ky., where they stopped for a time, probably with her brother John's family, and the family, perhaps, of Nathan Lackey. In Ky., Martha (Reid), the fourth child, was born, in July 1805. In the same year, they journeyed on, to Preble Co., O., being the first settlers in Israel Twp. Henry Miller, father of Rebecca Ramsey, had left her, by his will, his young roan horse, saddle, and bridle. It is suggested by a descendant, that it was, no doubt, that young roan horse that carried her over the Mts., to Ky., and to her new home in Ohio, with her babe on her lap. William Ramsey, was a mill-wright, by trade. He was a man of strong convictions, and one of the prominent men of his day, and locality. He served as Capt., in the war of 1812. He was a very loyal member of the Reformed Pres. church. Rebecca Ramsey d. in 1813, being but 36 years of age. Mr. Ramsey married Mary Haston, who d. May 30, 1850. He spent the later years of his life, near Cedarville, Green Co., O.; where he died May 30, 1861. He was buried in Beech Woods Cemetery, Israel Twp., Preble Co., O.; as was also his wife, Rebecca. 7 children.

William and Rebecca Miller Ramsey

Elizabeth Ramsey, eldest daughter of William and Rebecca (Miller) Ramsey, was born Dec. 25, 1798, in Rockbridge Co., Va.; removed, with her parents, in 1802, to Woodford Co., Ky., and in 1805, to Preble Co., Ohio; where she was married, Feb. 17, 1820, to William Hays, son of Robert and — Adams Hays. Mr. Hays died, Aug. 14, 1835, leaving a family of six children, the oldest son being not quite eleven years of age. Mrs. Hays reared her family, successfully, saw them all married, and settled in homes of their own. The last twenty-five years of her life were spent in the homes of her children, in Ohio, and Iowa; where "Grandmother" was always welcome. Her bright and gentle manner spread sunshine and cheer around her. She lived to be almost 93 years of age; dying at the home of her youngest son, Thomas Robartis, (Barty) Hays, at Morning Sun, Ia., Oct. 8, 1891. She was a member of the Reformed Pres. church. To William, and Elizabeth (Ramsey) Hays, were born six children.

She d. Apr. 4, 1851. To them were born, 9 children. Mr. Ramsey m. June 16, 1852, Margaret Jane McCollum, of Preble Co. They were the parents of 7 children. For over forty years, Thomas Ramsey lived on his farm, between Morning Sun and Fair Haven, on the Richmond and Hamilton turnpike, in sight of his father's last residence, in Preble Co. Here his sixteen children were born. In later years, as did also his father, he removed to Cedarville, Green Co., O., and lived on a farm, now owned by his son, Nathan. "Thomas L. Ramsey was too young, when his mother died, to remember her. He was reared in true pioneer fashion. But altho' his education, in the ordinary sense, was limited, moral education and culture, was not neglected. In those days, there was no lack of religious training, and development. The Bible was a text book; the Catechism, a study; and the quarterly examination, by the minister, an incentive to the study of both. There was no lack of the instilling of that knowledge "which maketh wise unto salvation"; and he grew up a firm believer in the Bible, as the Word of God; in the blessings of the Christian religion; and in the observance of the Sabbath. No pressure of work was so great, as to crowd out family worship; no weather so cold, or so hot, or so stormy, as to prevent the whole family from attending church. He looked upon spiritual blessings, as superior to material blessings. He died at Cedarville, O., Sept. 29, 1881, ag'd 69 years. His children were:

Joseph S. Ramsey

William T. Ramsey

Samuel M. Ramsey

THE GILMORES

The home of the Gilmores was Craigmiller Castle, Scotland. Before the siege of Londonderry, they went to North Ireland, and were in that siege. About 1730, James Gilmore came to America and settled in Pa. About 1737, with his wife, Martha (Dennison) Gilmore, and family, he came to what was then Augusta Co., but is now Rockbridge Co., Va. He owned a large plantation and several other large tracts of land, in Rockbridge Co., as did, also, his sons, Joseph and William Gilmore.

Last Will and Testament of James Gilmore

Recorded in Book I, p. 174, Records of Wills, Rockbridge Co., Va.
 In the Name of God Amen the 22nd of June and in the year of our Lord God one thousand seven hundred and eighty one I James Gilmore of the County of Rockbridge and State of Virginia being weak in body but of sound mind and memory thanks be to God for all his mercies to me therefore calling to mind the mortality of the body knowing it to be appointed once for all men to die, I do make and ordain this to be my last will and Testament that is to say principally and first of all I give and commend my soul into the hands of Almighty God from whence it derived its existence and my body to the earth from whence it came to be buried in a Christian like manner at the discretion of my executors hereafter named nothing doubting but at the General Resurrection I shall receive the same by the mighty power of God and as touching such worldly estate as it has pleased God to bless me with in this life I give devise and dispose of the same in the following manner and form and first of all it is my will and I do ordain all my just debts to be paid. I give and bequeath to my two sons Joseph and William Gilmore, the plantation I now live on containing two hundred eighty and five acres and three surveys adjoining to said tract to be equally divided between them in quantity and quality. I leave to my son Samuel Gilmore two surveys consisting of one hundred and twenty acres known by the name of Hutsons Springs fifty acres at ye Hais (Hays) Mountains at the head of Colliers Draught (Collier's Creek) I give to my son John Gilmore three hundred and fifty seven acres formerly the property of Benjamin Watson. I leave to my daughter Mary Foster ten pounds. I leave to my daughter Margaret Anderson and for the heirs of her body forever a negro woman named Sallie which sd. negro is now in their possession. I leave to Martha Hall a negro named Calap who is in their possession. I leave to my son James Gilmore one hundred pounds specie and disannul and make void all Bonds and accounts which I have against him. I leave and Bequeath the slaves that I am possessed of to be equally divided between my sons Samuel Joseph and William Gilmore; and all the other movable property to be equally divided between my beloved wife Martha Gilmore Samuel, Joseph, William, Agnes, Isabella and Eleanor. I do ordain that my beloved wife shall have her maintenance of the plantation I have bequeathed to my two sons Joseph and William Gilmore I say during her widowhood and to have her choice of a house and furniture bed and clothes over and above a child's part likewise a negro wench to attend her during her life time if she remains a widow. I do authorize and appoint my below mentioned Exrs. to transfer deeds to John and Samuel Gilmore for the above tracts of land likewise to give to John Gilmore one negro of those divided of said estate and I do constitute and appoint my two sons Joseph and William Gilmore to be my Exrs of this my last Will and Testament and I do hereby disannul Revoke and Disallow all and every Will or Wills or Testaments by me heretofore made Ratifying Allowing and Confirming this to be my last Will and Testament. In Witness whereof I have hereto set my hand and seal this day and year above written.

- I. Agnes Gilmore; m. — Hamilton.
- J. Eleanor Gilmore; no record.
- K. William Gilmore; b. 1760; m. Martha Lackey, b. 1761.

B.

Thomas Gilmore; m. Elizabeth —; settled on Kerr's Creek, in Augusta, now Rockbridge Co., Va. The families located there, at this time, were the Gilmores, Irwins, Hamiltons, Cunninghams, McKees, Logans, and others. The Indians made two raids on these settlers. Thomas Gilmore and his wife were both killed, in the first raid in 1763.

The Following is From Waddell's Annals of Augusta Co., Va:

The settlement on Kerr's Creek, was made by white people, soon after the grant of land to Borden, in 1736. They thought themselves safe, from the dangers of more exposed parts of the country. The smaller band of Indians made their descent on Kerr's Creek, in 1759 according to the record in the old Family Bible of the McKees. Their number was said to be twenty-seven, Robert Irvin having counted them, from a bluff near the road. From a point near by, the Indians had full view of the peaceful valley. Hastening down the mountain, they began their work of indiscriminate slaughter, murdering and scalping such of the families as did not manage to escape. They proceeded to the house of Thomas Gilmore. He and his wife were killed, the other members of the family escaping at this time. The family of Robert Hamilton came next, consisting of ten persons, one-half of whom were slain. The alarm having now spread through the neighborhood, the inhabitants were flying in every direction. The Indians departed, loaded with scalps and booty, but unincumbered by prisoners. From one cause, no doubt, the lives of some were saved. A number had gone that day to Timber Ridge, where services were conducted, by Rev. John Brown. During the intermission, between morning and evening sermons, some alarm was given; but such reports being frequently started without foundation, not much attention was paid to this. The people went into the church for the second sermon; when a messenger arrived, with the sad tidings from Kerr's Creek. All was, immediately, dismay and confusion. The congregation was dismissed and fled in every direction, which it was thought could afford them safety. The lamentable occurrence spread alarm throughout the Co. Some fled across the Blue Ridge. Measures of defence were immediately adopted, by the Co. Militia.

Another raid was made in 1763. Thomas Gilmore, Jr., son of Thomas Gilmore killed in the first raid, was killed in this one. His administrators qualified, Sept. 20, 1763. His wife Jennie was carried off, but afterwards returned home. The people had repaired the losses they had sustained in the first raid, as far as possible, when the Indians came, in the second raid, to the number of forty or fifty, but very cautiously. Their moccasin tracks were discovered in a cornfield and their camp seen from the top of a hill. The alarm was given; the people to the number of about one hundred, of both sexes and all ages, assembled at the house of Jonathan Cunningham, at the "Big Spring." They were packing their horses in haste, to leave for Timber Ridge, when the savages fell upon them. Mrs. Dale, hidden near, witnessed the awful tragedy. The terror stricken people ran in every direction, trying to hide; the Indians, each singling out his prey, pursued them round and round, thro' the weeds, with yells. The whites had but few arms and resistance was vain. The wife of Thomas Gilmore standing, with her three children, over the body of her husband, fought with desperation, the Indians who rushed up to scalp him. She and her son, John, and two daughters, were made prisoners. In the two incursions, from sixty to eighty white people were killed; in the second raid from twenty-five to thirty were carried into captivity, some never to return. Among the booty was a supply of whiskey; and in camp that night and next day, the savages were in a drunken frolic and could easily have been routed, had, as the prisoners hoped, a company been raised, and come to their relief. But the country was in a panic; those who might have gone in pursuit were hiding, in mountains and hollows, or had fled across the Blue Ridge. Organized effort was impossible. After crossing the Ohio, the Indians demanded that the captives should sing and it is said that Mrs. Gilmore struck up, with plaintive voice, the 137th Psalm, of Rouse's version, then in use in all the churches.

"On Babel's streams, we sat and wept;
When Zion we thought on;
In midst thereof, we hanged our harps
The willow trees thereon.
For there a song required they,
Who did us captive bring,
Our spoilers called for mirth; and said
A song of Zion sing."

(It will, no doubt, be of interest to take one's Bible, or Psalm book, and read the remainder of this Psalm.—Ed.)

The Indians then separated into several parties, dividing the prisoners amongst themselves. Mrs. Gilmore and her son, John, fell to one party, and her two daughters to another. The last ever heard of the latter was their cries, as they were torn from her. No intelligence was ever received, in regard to their fate. After some time, the mother and son were also parted, she being sold to French traders and the boy retained by the Shawnees. Finally he was redeemed and bro't back, by Jacob Warwick, to Jackson's river, where he remained till his mother's return, when they were united, at the old homestead. Mary Hamilton was also found and bro't back. She had a child in her arms when the attack was made. She hid the child in the weeds and found its bones there, when she returned."

- G. Joseph Gilmore, married Susanah Paxton. She died, and he married, Nov. 19, 1805, Milly Rowland, daughter of Thomas Rowland. They were married in Botetourt Co., Va., by John Holmes. Thomas Rowland was an Irishman. His wife was a Quakeress. He came with his brother James to America and was a Brigadier-General in the Revolutionary Army. It is said he had a dual with Gen. Lee, because Lee spoke contemptuously of Rowland's soldiers. A descendant wrote some years ago: "From what I know of the characteristics of the race, if any of them were in this country during the fight, I am perfectly sure they must have been in it." Thomas Rowland had eight sons and two daughters, Jesse, David, whose daughter married a Houston, Joel, Silas, Robert, a Colonel, William, Caleb, and Christopher, who died young. Milly, and Betsey, who married Robert Stewart, Feb. 10, 1810, Robert Logan, officiating.

G.1. Eliza Gilmore; m. — Holmes.

- K. William Gilmore; son of James and Martha Dennison Gilmore, who emigrated to America from Londonderry, Ireland, was born in Augusta, now Rockbridge Co., Va., in 1760. He married, June 12th, 1783, Martha Lackey, born in Lancaster Co., Pa., in 1761, dau. of Thomas and Agnes (Leech) Lackey, who also came from Londonderry. William and Martha (Lackey) Gilmore emigrated, to Preble Co., O., in 1818. He and his brother, Joseph, had jointly owned the old plantation, in Rockbridge Co., inherited from their father, James Gilmore, until 1816, when they divided it. The pioneers to Ohio crossed the Ohio river, near Cincinnati, passed up thro' Hamilton and Butler Counties, to Preble Co. Mrs. Gilmore died in Preble Co. Mr. Gilmore d. in 1836, ag'd 76 years, while on a visit to members of his family, in Putnam Co., Ind., and is buried in Greencastle cemetery. (See illustration.) On his monument are the words: "An elder in the Presbyterian church." Their 9 children were:

- K.1. Agnes Gilmore; b. May 9, 1784; m. Jonathan Paxton; b. 1777.

Thomas Gilmore; son of William and Martha Lackey Gilmore; was born in Rockbridge Co., Va., Nov. 20, 1792. He married in Rockbridge Co., May 29, 1815, (two months after Napoleon lost Waterloo) Margaret Leech, dau. of Thomas and Elizabeth (Crawford) Leech, born in Rockbridge Co., Nov. 6, 1795, during Washington's administration. They emigrated, with her father's family, to Livingston Co., Ky., in 1816. Here their four eldest children were born. In 1824, they removed to Preble Co., O., where five children were born, near Eaton. In 1836, they settled near Greencastle, Putnam Co., Ind.; there their youngest son was born, and there they lived and died. They were pioneers, in a new country. Thomas Gilmore had the first wagon in the township. They had the courage to break with the time honored custom of serving strong drink in the harvest field, and had the first harvest in that neighborhood without liquor. This led to the abolition of the custom in that section. Margaret Gilmore started the first temperance reform in her county. The boys of this family had to blaze their way to school thro' the pathless woods, by chopping the bark from the trees to mark their path. Nine sons grew to manhood not one of whom ever used liquor, in any form, nor profane language; and only two, out of the nine, smoked. They were an interesting family of boys, and men, strong in good habits, in good politics, and nearly all legislators in their states. Margaret Leech Gilmore was a woman of a particularly strong Christian character, deeply and genuinely spiritual. Her influence for good was marked in the community in which she lived. Thomas Gilmore, too, came naturally by his religious strength. On his father's tombstone is this chosen epitaph: "An elder in the Presbyterian church." It is a far cry from Craigmiller Castle, Scotland, the ancient ancestral home of the Gilmores, to a log-built puncheon-floored cabin, in the western wilderness, in Indiana, in early 1800. Just such homes as this, of "plain living, and high thinking," have bulwarked the nation. Clothing was home-spun, food home-grown. In 1849, the neighbors, from near and far, to the number of 200, had gathered at the Gilmore home, to see a young men's train start across the plains. Andrew and Nathan Gilmore, and seven sons of neighbors, made up the party. Nathan Gilmore, then 19 years of age, never saw his mother again. When news of her death came to him, in his California home, almost 20 years later, his children well remember their father's grief, which prostrated him for several hours. Margaret Gilmore d. Jan. 24, 1866. Thomas Gilmore d. Jan. 9, 1880. They are buried in the Greencastle cemetery, where three generations of Gilmores lie. Press notices at the time of the death of Margaret Gilmore, told of the pronounced deeply religious quality of her nature. The husband was equally devout. Is not the Greencastle hearthstone of the Gilmores suggestive of "the toil-worn cotter's fireside, and the lines of the ploughman poet?"

"From scenes like this, old Scotia's grandeur springs;
 That makes her loved at home, revered abroad;
 Princes and Lords are but the breath of kings;
 An honest man's the noblest work of God."

The twelve children of Thomas and Margaret Gilmore were:

THE HAWKINS

- A. Admiral, Sir John Hawkins, was born in Plymouth, Eng., about 1520. He died, at sea, Nov. 21, 1595. He was an Admiral, in the English navy, of which he was made Treasurer, and was adviser to Queen Elizabeth. He was the first Englishman, who transported negro slaves, from Africa, to Spanish America, about 1562. The first account of the Hawkins family, in America, was of four brothers, who emigrated from England to America, early in the 18th century. One of them, John Hawkins, had a son, Samuel Hawkins, who ran away from home, at the age of 16 years, and joined the American Revolution. After the war, he settled in Bourbon Co., Ky.; m. Elizabeth Christian Worthington. They had a large family of children.

- A.1. John J. Hawkins; b. 1789; m. Nancy Sellers. (See The Sellers.)
- A.2. Benjamin Worthington Hawkins; m. Ruth I. Sellers, b. in Bourbon Co., Ky., Jan. 7, 1793, daughter of Nathan Sellers (See The Sellers) and sister of Nancy (Sellers) Hawkins.
- A.2.1. Elizabeth Christian Hawkins; m. Thomas Leech Gilmore.

- K.5.2. Thomas Leech Gilmore; son of Thomas and Margaret (Leech) Gilmore, was b. in Livingston Co., Ky., Feb. 16, 1818; removed with his parents, to Preble Co., O., in 1825, and to Putnam Co., Ind., in 1836, to a farm about 6 mi. S. W. of Greencastle, where he m. May, 9, 1839, Elizabeth Christian Hawkins. He was reared on the farm. His education in books, was limited, as the whole country was new, and school advantages very meager. He was a pioneer, a farmer and stock dealer. He built his house of hewn logs, on a hill, at the foot of which, flowed the Walnut Fork of Eel River, which was better known, locally, as Big Walnut Creek. He sold this farm, and bo't another, on which was a brick house, to which they removed in 1852. He bo't hogs and drove them on foot to market, to Terre Haute, about 30 miles distant; also to Cincinnati, O. He made and repaired shoes for his own and his neighbors' families in that pioneer country, and cared for and cultivated his farm. He was a member of, and elder in, the "Ohio Church", the Presbyterian church, which was built in the neighborhood. His father, mother, brother, Andrew Hall Gilmore and wife, his brother-in-law, Thomas Leech and wife, Mary (Gilmore) Leech, and William Hall and wife, Martha (Leech) Hall, were all members of this little church. The last few years of his life, Mr. Gilmore's health was delicate, but his strong will, and energetic disposition, kept him going. He had contracted bronchitis from which he never recovered. He got his mail from Manhattan about two miles from his home. The mail was carried on the stage coach, which travelled along the National road, as there were no railroads in that part of the country. Volney D. Smith, who served as Post-Master, longer perhaps, than any other man in the state, if not in the United States, had a couch in his store for Thomas Gilmore to rest on, while awaiting the arrival of the stage. He said the Gilmores received more mail from the office than any others in the community. Thomas Gilmore died May 5, 1855, in the 38th year of his age. But such was his energy, he accomplished as much in his short life as many others in twice the number of years. He left a widow and eight children, to mourn his death. Elizabeth Gilmore, dau. of Benjamin W. and Ruth T. (Sellers) Hawkins, was b. in Eaton, Preble Co., O., Oct. 7, 1819. She was reared on a pioneer farm. Her education in schools was limited, as were school advantages in those days. Her text-books were the American Preceptor, and the Holy Bible, in which she was a model student and acquitted herself well. She united with the Presbyterian church early in life, and lived a consistent Christian life. She was left on the farm, by her husband's death, with eight young children, under 15 years of age. She m. Sept. 4, 1855, James Irving Gilmore, her husband's cousin, who had made his home with them. They were the parents of four children. (K.4.7.) The children of Thomas and Elizabeth Gilmore were:

- K.5.2.1. William Clay Gilmore; b. Apr. 8, 1840, in Wash. Twp., Putnam Co., Ind. He had a common school education; lived on the farm, in Putnam Co. He was the oldest of 8 brothers and sisters, and lost his father, Thos. Leech Gilmore, when he was but 15 years of age, Jan. 1st 1864, known all over the country as the cold New Years, 30 degrees below zero, he saw that the house of his cousin, William G. Hall, who lived on an adjoining farm, was on fire. He ran across the pasture, about half a mile, helped carry out the household goods, hitched the horses to the wagon, put into it a feather bed, put the women and children on it, covered them with another feather bed, and drove to his mother's home, saving the lives of the entire family of seven, altho' the hands of the mother and two elder daughters were so badly frozen, that their finger nails came off. On Dec. 25, 1867, he m. Mary Catharine Lander, of Hamrick Station, Putnam Co., and lived in a house on the home place, which he managed until it was sold; when he took as his interest the home in which he had lived. In 1879, with his bro.-in-law, Wellington Kelsey, he located near Beaver City, the Co. seat of Furnas Co., Nebr., where he took up a homestead and tree claim, located side by side, which gave him a farm of half a section of fine prairie land. He began improvements and the preparation of a home for his family who came the next year. In 1890, he removed to Mills Co., Ia., later to Glenwood, where he now lives. Mrs. Gilmore d. Dec. 4, 1900. Mary Jane Gilmore; born in Washington Twp., Putnam Co., Ind., Dec. 12, 1847; was married in Putnam Co., May 4, 1876. Mrs. Kelsey was a student in Russellville Academy, a member of the Pres. church, later of the Congregational church. In 1880, with their two little boys, Ralph and Freddie, they started in a "prairie schooner," for their new home in Nebraska, having located a quarter section of Gov't land near Beaver City, the Co. seat of Furnas Co.; secured homestead papers, and erected a sod house, in which they were happy, because it was home; in 1883, they removed to Manton, Wexford Co., Mich.; and in 1895, to Whittier, Calif., where Mr. Kelsey died, Jan. 9, 1905. May 4, 1897, on the 25, anniversary of their marriage, Mrs. Kelsey wrote, "He is the same kind, loving husband that he was twenty-five years ago, and my love for him is the same as then. Our five dear children are all at home, and we all sat down to supper together. We are proud of our family." The above speaks volumes. Their great desire for their children was, that they all might grow up pure-minded and honorable men and women. Mr. Kelsey was educated in the public schools of Brazil, Ind., and was a student in Bloomingdale College, at Rockville. He and his brother Isaac, were partners in a music store, in Brazil, Ind. He held the office of city assessor in Beaver City, Nebr., and also owned a small store. Mrs. Kelsey resides in Whittier, her daughter Mary, and grandson, Walter W. Kelsey, making their home with her.

- K.5.2.7. Andrew Alexander Gilmore; son of Thomas Leech and Elizabeth (Hawkins) Gilmore; b. in Putnam Co., Ind., Nov. 25, 1851; lived on the farm while a boy, and attended the district school; was a student in Indiana Asbury University, now DePauw University, at Greencastle, Ind. Later took a course in Mound City Commercial College, at St. Louis, Mo. He united when quite a young man, at Putnamville, Ind., with the Presbyterian church. He went to St. Louis, and other river towns, in the capacity of ag't, for a book firm. He had as a partner, in the business, for a time, a young man, Robert McIntyre, a brick-layer, who afterwards became the famous divine, and later, Bishop of the M. E. church. At this time he contracted a heavy cold, which developed into a severe case of bronchitis, and resulted in consumption of the lungs. He was taken sick at Hannibal, Mo., and placed himself under the treatment of a physician. He made arrangements to go to California, for the benefit that the mild climate would afford, but growing suddenly worse, his brother Clay went and took him to his mother's home, in Putnam Co., Ind., reaching there on Feb. 26, 1877. There under treatment of the physician, and cared for by his mother, he lingered, but gradually grew weaker, and on Aug. 22, 1877, he was called to leave this world of sin and sorrow, to go to a better land. He was to have been married to an estimable young lady. The epitaph on the stone above his grave, reads thus:

"I leave this world without a tear,
Save for the friends, I love so dear;
To heal their sorrow, Lord descend,
And to the friendless, be a friend."

- K.5.2.8. James Harvey Gilmore, was born in Washington Twp., Putnam Co., Ind., Feb. 17, 1854. His father died when he was 15 months old. He attended the district school, until he was 16 years old, acquitting himself well in his studies, working between terms on the farm. In Sept. 1870, he entered the Prep. Dept., of Asbury University, at Greencastle, Ind. He was a member of the class of 1876, the Centennial class, but attended only until the close of the 2nd term of the Junior year, Mch. 31, 1875. One of his instructors was Dr. John Clark Ridpath, author of Ridpath's Hist. of the U. S., Universal Hist. of the World, Life of Garfield, and other works. Rev. Thomas Bowman, D. D., was Pres. of the University, but in 1872, was elected Bishop of the M. E. church. James Gilmore worked in a coal mine, acted as book ag't, taught district school, and entered the Central Indiana Normal school, at Ladoga, from which he graduated in the Teacher's and Business Courses, Aug. 1, 1878. He taught a few terms of school in Putnam and Montgomery counties; went to California, May 1, 1879, making his home with his uncle, Nathan Gilmore; was employed during the summer, in the Sierra Nevada Mts., in the vicinity of Lake Tahoe, one of the most beautiful sheets of water on the globe. In the spring of 1885, he accompanied Hugh R. Hughes, of Angel's Camp, Calaveras Co., Calif., in a two horse buggy, on a lecturing tour of four and one-half months, in the N. E. part of the state. Mr. Hughes was a Grand Lecturer of the Grand Lodge of the Independent Order of Good Templars, of California. He was paralyzed, and could not walk, and was obliged to have some one travel with him, and assist and care for him. Mr. Gilmore later went on a lecture tour, covering several counties of the state of Nebraska, and organizing lodges, of the Independent Order of Good Templars. Later, he went to Colo., bo't a relinquishment on a quarter section of Gov't land, made improvements and final proof, and in due time rec'd a Gov't patent for the same. This claim was located about three miles from the corner-stone of Colo., Nebr., and Kansas, when the claim was taken, in Weld Co., Colo. When proof was made, it was in Washington Co.; as that Co. had been formed from Weld Co. Again, Washington Co. was divided, leaving the land in the new Co. of Yuma. James Gilmore, his bro'-in-law, Harry H. Hoyt, who lived at Haigler, Dundy Co., Nebr., started the next day after a big blizzard, on a land hunting expedition, in company with others. They went about 80 miles over the snow covered prairie, to the Southwest, into Elbert Co., in search of a homestead and tree claim. The snow was very deep, the weather very cold, and the trip, which occupied 10 days, was in the wilds of Colo. During most of the time, they did not see a habitation, or a human being. They found their claims and located them, under the snow. Jas. Gilmore built a sod house, sold his pre-emption for a team, wagon, and buggy, cultivated a part of the claim, and taught school again. In the meantime, Elbert Co., had been divided, and his land left in the new Co., which was named Kit Carson Co., in honor of the old Gov't Scout. He submitted his final proof on his homestead, which had been held for 7 years, which was rejected at the General Land Office, at Wash., D. C., on account of enforced absence from it, having been passed on by the local land office. He was given the choice of holding it another 5 years, or the right of appeal to the Sec. of the Interior, which appeal he took. The General Land office was sustained and Mr. Gilmore lost out; however, succeeding in securing a patent on his tree claim, which he traded for a patent right, which netted him no profit. The years from 1893, to 1895, were failures, so far as crops were concerned, in Kit Carson Co., Colo. He kept his tree claim, for 8 years, made his final proof, then went back to Ind., to find his "girl" whom he had not seen for six-teen years. He found her, his old friend, Miss Mattie Williams, at Elwood, Ind., where she had just completed her school-work for the year. On July 29th, of the next year, 1896, James H. Gilmore and Mattie Loomis Williams, were married at her home near Putnamville, Ind., where they had attended the same church and Sabbath school as children, and had both united with the Presbyterian church. He engaged in business in Greencastle until 1903, when they removed to Whittier, Los Angeles Co., Calif., where they have since made their home. In 1910, the Blackstone Mining and Milling Co., of Yavapai Co., Arizona, was organized, of which he is Sec. and Treas. with office at Whittier. Mrs. Gilmore was the dau. of Worthington B. and Lyda (Lapsley) Williams, of Putnam Co., Ind. She is a lineal descendant of Roger Williams, founder of Rhode Island; was b. Dec. 14, 1855. Her maternal grandfather, the Rev. Isaac Reed, was a pioneer Pres. minister. She graduated from the Ind. State Normal, at Terre Haute, in 1883. In 1884, went to Calif., taught in the city schools of Humbolt Co., for 9 years; in 1893, returned to Ind., taught in city schools of Elwood; took a course at DePauw University School of Music, on the piano, and in Harmony; was married to James H. Gilmore, in 1896, by Rev. Ezra William Fisk, a relative of her family, Ex.

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Gilmore

Pres. of Ind. Female College, of Greencastle. Oct. 23, 1901, a little son was born to them, but died at birth.

"His little form was perfect, and comely was his face;
He ope'd his eyes, not on this sinful world,
But in the glorious Heaven above,
Where Christ is God, and God is Love."

His little grave is under a pine tree, in the Williams family plot, in the beautiful Forest Hill Cemetery, overlooking the city of Greencastle. Mrs. Gilmore still gives instruction in music. She has spent 11 years in the school room, and 18 giving piano lessons. She and her husband, are members of the Plymouth Congregational church, of Whittier, where he is in business.

K.5.5.

John Gilmore, son of Thomas and Margaret (Leech) Gilmore, was born in Livingston Co., Ky., to which place his parents had emigrated, from Rockbridge Co., Va., in 1816. He was a grandson of Thomas and Elizabeth (Crawford) Leech, of Rockbridge Co. In 1824, when he was about two years of age, his parents removed from Ky., to Preble Co., O., from whence they removed in 1836, to Greencastle, Putnam Co., Ind. There were no public schools in Ind., at that day. He was placed under the tutelage of H. T. Wakefield, a graduate of one of the Eastern Colleges, who came from Ky., to Putnamville and opened a private school, from which he graduated, sufficiently advanced for entrance into the Junior class of Western Colleges. But after leaving this school, he and Prof. Batterson had charge of the Greencastle Seminary for several years, to which, under their management, a large number of the young men of the town and surrounding country were drawn. In those days, the Seminary was second only to Asbury University, as an institution of learning, in the Co. Subsequently, he opened a school in the country, which was attended by the young men and women of the neighborhood, and the surrounding counties. This school he successfully conducted, until the advent of the public school, in 1852; and many students were turned out fitted for entrance to College, or thoroughly equipped for any of the useful occupations of life. Mr. Gilmore was always a public spirited citizen, identified with every movement having for its purpose the up-lifting and betterment of the community in which he lived. In the early '40's, he was a pioneer in the Washington movement, and continued during his life an advocate of every cause that tended to promote temperance among the people. From 1856 to 1860, he served two terms as Co. Treas. He was again elected in 1868. From 1894 to 1902, he held the office of Treas. of the City of Greencastle. After that time, until disabled by illness and advancing years, he was in the Insurance business. No more widely and favorably known man, ever lived within the borders of the Co. He was a man of warm heart, kind, and progressive. He had a kind word for everyone, and was full of love for his fellow-men, full of civic pride, and public spirit. He had seen the city grow from infantile size, to its present magnificent proportions. He was bro't up in the Presbyterian faith, and unfalteringly adhered to the church of his early choice; and while never sectarian, he never forsook the faith of his fathers, as he understood it; believing that all who had not reached the age of accountability, were saved, and that while all had inherent tendencies to err, yet every human being had also longings, and aspirations, for God, the father of us all. To the teachings and exemplary life of a pious mother, and a Christian father, whose memory he revered, to the day of his death, and to the influence of a home where the Word of God was read and studied, and an altar erected to His daily worship, he often referred, as constituting the inspiration of his life. He died July 10, 1908, having just passed his 85th birthday, at his home in Greencastle. His life was long and useful; his death calm and peaceful. He had lived thro' the most eventful epoch in the world's, and the country's, history, and but a few weeks before his death, he spoke hopefully of the near approach of the time, when armies and navies would be no longer needed; when the intelligence of mankind, and the exercise of the Christian religion, would introduce a system of universal arbitration between nations, whereby universal peace would prevail throughout the world. Mr. Gilmore married, Oct. 8, 1847, Elvira I. Gilmore, his cousin, daughter of Dr. Eli Gilmore, of Fair Haven, Ohio, Preble Co. She died, Oct. 22, 1853, leaving three children. On July 29th, 1856, he married, in Greencastle, Elizabeth Woodruff. Had he lived a few days longer, they would have passed their 52 wedding anniversary. Mrs. Gilmore survives her husband. They were the parents of five children. The eight children of John Gilmore were:

Samuel Baldrige Gilmore; son of Thomas and Margaret (Leech) Gilmore; grandson of Thomas and Elizabeth (Crawford) Leech; was b. July 22, 1827, at Eaton, Preble Co., Ohio, to which place his parents had removed from Livingston Co., Ky., whence they had emigrated from the home of their birth, Rockbridge Co., Va. They again removed, to Putnam Co., Indiana, near Greencastle, in 1829, when Samuel Gilmore was 2 years of age. He received the educational advantages of the day, in that newly settled country; taught school for several years; was later a dry goods merchant, in Manhattan and Cloverdale, Ind. He was one of 9 brothers, who grew to noble, useful manhood, free from bad habits and with high purposes in life. He belonged to the new school Pres. church, until the churches were united; was an elder during his whole church life; was three times delegate to the Gen. Assembly, at Saratoga, Brooklyn, and Phila. On account of ill health, he made many changes of residence. He went to St. Paul, Minn., in 1856, remained a short time in the city, then took a claim in Rice Co. They left Minn., the same year. Had they remained in Rice Co., they would in all probability have been massacred by the Indians, principally the Sioux, who raided the Co., during the Civil war, taking advantage of the U. S. troops being engaged elsewhere. Mr. and Mrs. Gilmore lived for a time in Falls City, the Co. seat of Richardson Co., Nebr., one of the garden spots of the west, at that time; and from Falls City, Nebr., they removed to Hodgeman Co., Kans. Mr. Gilmore was elected from that Co., by the Republicans, to the legislature, the only one on the ticket that was elected, the Populists carrying the day. Jetmore was the Co. seat, and Kiddersville, Mr. Gilmore's P. O., since discontinued, was 22 miles distant from his home. On Nov. 17, 1852, Mr. Gilmore married, Mary Jane Thompson, b. in Nashville, Tenn., May 6, 1827, the dau. of John and Margaret (Nixon) Thompson, who was b. in the north of Ireland. John Thompson came to this country when 19 years of age. Margaret Nixon came, with her widowed mother, and brothers, when she was 13 years old, to Phila. They were in the wholesale dry goods business. John and Margaret Thompson moved to Nashville, Tenn. Mrs. Gilmore d. Jan. 23, 1872, in Effingham, Ill. Mr. Gilmore d. in East St. Louis, Ill., Feb. 17, 1914, ag'd 87 years. Their seven children were:

K.5.7.1. Kate Thompson Gilmore; b. in Cloverdale, Putnam Co., Ind., Oct. 17, 1853; m. Aug. 31, 1871, in Effingham, Ill., to Jasper Clay Bowen. He was in the flour business; later owned a flour mill, in Effingham. He died in Hodgeman Co., Kans., Apr. 29, 1887, of heart trouble, brought on by the after effects of a very severe prairie fire, in which they lost crop, livestock, and everything but their home. Mrs. Bowen was left, at the age of 34 years, with five girls, no money, and no business training; took up the profession of nursing, and raised her girls to good womanhood, training them, always, "in the way they should go." Mrs. Bowen's home is in Los Angeles.

- K.5.8. Andrew Hall Gilmore, son of Thomas and Margaret (Leech) Gilmore; and grandson of Thomas and Elizabeth (Crawford) Leech, of Rockbridge Co.,

Va., was b. near Eaton, Preble Co., O., Jan. 8, 1829, and came, with his parents, at seven years of age, in 1836, to Putnam Co., Ind., and lived at the little town of Putnamville. Here, with his eight brothers, he was reared to a worthy young-manhood, receiving the educational advantages to be found in a new country; but, better still, the moral and religious training of godly parents. The youngest, but two, of nine brothers, he, with his next youngest brother, and five other young men of the neighborhood, started, March 12, 1850, to the California gold fields. They were modern Argonauts, setting sail, in prairie schooners, out into distance and dangers, in quest of the Golden Fleece. An interesting event, was the start made from the Gilmore home, where two hundred neighbors and friends, from far and near, had gathered to see them off. The mother heart of Margaret Gilmore, went out to all those boys, with a sense of dangers to be met, more subtle than Indians; and as they gathered around her, for the last "good bye," she said, with a look of tenderness in her dark eyes, "Boys, you are to come home, able to look into my face, straight, and true, and say, 'It's all right, Mother Gilmore'." Fifty-six years later, in 1906, Andrew Gilmore, recalling, with emotion, her look and words, testified to their lasting influence, on the young men of the party. After a long, tedious journey, of six months, with ox teams, they arrived at their destination, in El Dorado Co., California, and located near the little town, known also, as "Mud Springs," five miles from Placerville, the Co. Seat, known far and near, as "Hang Town." In 1851, partners with Andrew and Nathan Gilmore in a mercantile Co., determined to follow the custom of selling liquor, as well as merchandise. They were quietly told "then you may count the Gilmore boys out." Thus, it came about, that one "dry" store was opened in "Hang Town," now Placerville. Andrew, with Aaron Lewis, left the Golden State, for the Hoosier State, home, and sweet-heart, leaving behind, his brother, Nathan, who had found a sweetheart, in California. Andrew Gilmore married Candace Knight, born in Franklin Co., Ind., March 30, 1860. Mrs. Gilmore died, and her children. Mr. Gilmore m. Sarah Jane Allen, b. in Franklin Co., Ind., Mch. 30, 1840. They lived in Putnam Co., for a short time, moved to Brownsville, Nemaha Co., Nebr., in 1868. He served in the legislature and was Co. Treas., for years; during which time his brother, Nathan, in California, and his brother, John, in Putnam Co., Ind., served in like capacities. His father, Thomas Gilmore, made his home with him, during the last years of his life. Mr. Gilmore died in South Auburn, Nebraska, Aug. 29, 1907. 4 children.

Nathan Gilmore, seventh son, and ninth child, of Thomas and Margaret

Nathan Gilmore

(Leech) Gilmore, was born Dec. 26, 1830, at Eaton, Preble Co., Ohio, to which place his parents had removed from Livingston Co., Kentucky, having emigrated thence, from Rockbridge Co., Va., in 1816. He went with his parents to Putnam Co., Indiana in 1836; grew to manhood on his father's farm; had the school advantages of the newly settled country. His daughter, Mrs. John Ramsey, of Freewater, Oregon, writes: "This branch of the Gilmores is the Ishmael of the family; descended from one who left the East, and its traditions, in the rush of the gold excitement, to be a pioneer in California, in the days of '49. Men carried no heir-looms across the plains, nor Family Bibles, with records. We have not so much as a battered silver spoon to link us with Virginia, or even Ohio, where my father, Nathan Gilmore, was born. But we know, in a general way, that the Gilmores came from Virginia, through Kentucky, to Ohio; and that Grandfather and Grandmother Gilmore lived, in a very early day, near Greencastle, Indiana, in a log cabin, with puncheon floors. Clothing was home-spun; food was home-grown. Just such log-built, puncheon-floored homes, of plain living, and high thinking, have bulwarked the nation. It was an event of such significance to that neighborhood of sixty-seven years ago, as we, in this day of rapid transit, and frequent long journeys, with every comfort and convenience, cannot realize, when Nathan Gilmore and his brother Andrew, and companions, set out on their long, perilous, journey to California; followed by a father's blessing, a mother's prayers, and the heart-felt good wishes of the entire community. Schools were dismissed for the day; all labor was suspended; a solemn silence pervaded, as if death had entered every home. My father, altho' but 19 years of age, when he went west, carried with him the family character, which was about the only thing he had worth taking with him; and the thing which many a young man left behind. Sterling honesty, absolute freedom from the ordinary bad habits, were his. His life was fine and inspiring. He never saw his mother again. His children well remember their father's grief, which prostrated him for several hours, strong man that he was, when almost twenty years later, news came of her death. Press notices of the death of Margaret Gilmore, spoke of the pronounced, deeply religious, quality of her nature. The husband was equally devout. Is not the Greencastle hearth-stone of the Gilmores suggestive of the toil-worn cotter's fireside, and the lines of the plowman poet?

"From scenes like this, old Scotia's grandeur springs,
That makes her loved at home, revered abroad.
Princes and Lords are but the breath of kings,
An honest man's the noblest work of God."

When Nathan Gilmore had been three long years without seeing the face of a good woman, in the whole time, he came one day upon a family of four young ladies, under the care of an elder brother, John Gray, who had been siezed with the gold fever, sold the roof from over their heads, in Hillsboro, Ill., and with the whole family, consisting of his four sisters, struck out for California. The eldest sister, Amanda Minerva, daughter of Thomas and Mary (Humphreys) Gray, was born in Kentucky, May 25, 1825. Her mother's ancestors were from Wales. Nathan Gilmore and Amanda Gray were married, May 23, 1853, at El Dorado; took a honeymoon trip of two miles, across the fields of poppies and mariposa lilies, to a house under great white oaks, their home. Mrs. Gilmore was a woman of great social charm. She had profited by the companionship, and the library, of her distinguished uncle, Charles Humphreys. She read, and sang, Scotch poetry, and ballads, delightfully. To the children who grew up around that hearthstone, these things make pleasant memories. Mrs. Gilmore died, at El Dorado, Oct. 18, 1881. Of their children, but three grew up, and but two survive. Nathan Gilmore's leading characteristics, in business life, were optimism, energy, and honesty; in private life, refinement, love of nature, patience under suffering, hatred of gossip. In later years, he suffered greatly from sciatica, and spinal trouble. He died on Easter Sunday, 1898. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. C. C. Pierce, who had conducted the services at the funerals of his wife and son. He was 68 years of age. He was buried in El Dorado beside his wife, and children, in sight of the snowy range he knew and love so well."

"Nathan Gilmore was best known by his ownership, and development, of a portion of the Lake Tahoe region in California, which he pioneered in the early 60's. He built trails, and roads, and stocked lakes with fish. Gilmore Lake is a lovely snow-fed sheet of water, on the brow of Mt. Tallac, 8,000 ft. above sea level, three fourths of a mile wide, almost circular. He built his home, on its shores. Most of the names on the Gov't maps were given to the lakes and peaks of this region, by Mr. and Mrs. Gilmore; such as Glen Alpine, Heather Lake, Angora Peak, Modjeska Falls, and many others. This beautiful region was about to fall into the hands of such unscrupulous manipulators as operate "within the law," and cause our land scandals. In this case, they operated so quietly, that discovery came almost too late. A group of able lawyers, and other leading men, mountain lovers, held anxious deliberations. It was Mr. Gilmore who proposed the steps, by which this was set aside. The Sierra Club of California, acted promptly. The influence of such men as Prof. Cornelius Beadly, of North Carolina, Warren Olney, John Muir, and others, was effective. Grover Cleveland finally signed the bill, which gave the great Tahoe Forest Reserve, to the people, forever. At the foot of Mt. Tallac, are mineral springs, known as the Gilmore Glen Alpine Springs. Here Mr. Gilmore erected buildings, suitable for a Mt. resort, for tourists seven miles from the Tallac house, on Lake Tahoe. He built a road from the Tallac house, skirting the east side of Fallen Leaf Lake, around the south of the lake, where it enters Glen Alpine and follows up the Canon, along the base of Mt. Tallac, until it reaches the Glen Alpine Springs. From there, he built a trail, winding round the grand Mt. itself, past Lake Gilmore, on up to the summit of Mt. Tallac, which rears its lofty head to an altitude of more than 10,000 ft. above the level of the sea. From Mt. Tallac, can be seen, from 15, to 20, Mt. lakes, chief of which, is Lake Tahoe, the "Gem of the Sierras." Here, Nathan Gilmore and family, spent their summers. Nathan Gilmore was a pioneer, and man of energy. His life should be written in the history of California, and will be. He had served as Co. Treas., Co. Assessor, and Tax Collector of El Dorado Co., and as a member of the state legislature. He was a member of the Presbyterian church, and of the Masonic order. The children of Nathan and Amanda (Gray) Gilmore were:

- K.5.9.1. Minnie Gilmore; b. 1856; d. in infancy.
- K.5.9.2. Elvira Gilmore; b. 1857; d. 1862, of scarlet fever.
- K.5.9.3. Susan Margaret Gilmore; m. George Pierce.

- K.5.9.4. Ida Gilmore; b. 1860; d. 1862, of scarlet fever.
 K.5.9.5. Evelyn Gilmore; m. John L. Ramsay.
 K.5.9.6. Nathan Gray Gilmore, Jr.

K.5.9.3. Susan M. Gilmore; b. Oct. 29, 1858, at El Dorado, California; graduated from California State Normal, at San Jose, in 1883; was a successful teacher; member of the Pres. church; m. Aug. 15, 1888, to George W. Pierce, son of George and Eunice Pierce, of New England ancestry. Mr. Pierce was a graduate of the University of California, of the class of 1876; a member of the legislature, in 1899. He is a farmer. They have a beautiful home, near Davis, Yolo Co. Mrs. Pierce was said by her father to resemble, in character, his mother, Margaret (Lecch) Gilmore. She is President of the W. C. T. U., of Davis. Edwin Markham, the poet, was Supt. of schools of El Dorado Co., in the 80's, and an old time friend of Mrs. Pierce. His wife, Anna Catharine Markham, was Mrs. Pierce's classmate, and dear friend, since Normal school days. On one occasion, when Supt. Markham called at the "little red school-house," where Susan Gilmore presided, he drew forth a print of Millet's "Man With the Hoe," spoke of the intense feeling with which he regarded the picture, and discussed the subject, with great interest. When, in after years, Mr. Markham's great poem, "The Man With the Hoe," appeared, Mrs. Pierce realized that it was the culmination of years of thought, on the subject. At the 1915 Panama-Pacific Exposition, in San Francisco, Mrs. Pierce, and her sister, Mrs. Ramsay, went to hear Mr. Markham read this poem, and others written by him, to crowds of his admirers, who so thronged him, it was almost impossible for them to get within hearing. Mr. and Mrs. Pierce have had 4 children.

 K.5.9.3.4. Dixwell Lloyd Pierce.

K.5.9.3.2. George Gardner Pierce; b. at Davis, California, Nov. 11, 1891; graduated from the University of California in 1915; m. Oct. 15, 1915, Harriett Brigden, of Berkley; occupation farming wheat and almonds.

K.5.9.3.4. Dixwell Lloyd Pierce; b. Apr. 11, 1897; student at C. U., class of 1917. He was named for a paternal ancestor, Dixwell, one of the regicide judges of Charles I., of England.

K.5.9.5. Evelyn Gilmore; b. Feb. 23, 1863; is a graduate of Placerville Academy, and the University of California, at Berkley; was a teacher in the Technical High School, Oakland, California, until her marriage, on Feb. 2, 1907, to John Lockwood Ramsay, b. July 23, 1848, son of Lockwood L., and Elizabeth (Fenton) Ramsay, of Andrew Co., Mo. Mrs. Ramsay is a member of the Congregational church, Ingle Chapel, of Freewater; Pres. of the Walla Walla Art Club, the Valley Aster Club, the Parent-Teachers' Association, and Secretary of the Congregational congregation. Mrs. Ramsay visited in 1906, for the first time, the Gilmore clan, in Greencastle, Indiana, Effingham, Illinois, East St. Louis, Auburn, Nebr., Madison and Glenwood, Ia. She found two survivors of the party with whom her father crossed the plains—Andrew Gilmore, his brother, and Aaron Lewis.

She was taken to the site of the old Gilmore home, near Greencastle, by her uncles, Samuel, John, and Judge S. F. Gilmore, her father's brothers, together with the two Margarets, daughters of Samuel and John Gilmore, respectively, and Julia Young, granddaughter of Judge Gilmore. In this quiet graveyard, were the graves of William Gilmore, b. 1760, his son, Thomas, and wife, Margaret (Leech) Gilmore, their son, Thomas Leech Gilmore, and other relatives. By their graves that day, stood children, grandchildren, great, and great, great, grandchildren. In the previous year, July 1905, to July 1906, Mrs. Ramsay had opportunity to visit the original ancestral localities, in Scotland, and Wales, as she spent that year in Great Britain, Germany, Switzerland, Italy, Austria and Sicily. But no date was known by which any family history could be traced. No evidence was found, unless enthusiasm for Scotland and its people was prima facie evidence, of our kinship. The people were "fair friendly." At the very border, a Mr. Peter Scott, cousin of Sir Walter Scott, with his wife, made good the traditions of Scotch hospitality, and that to a mere travelling acquaintance. Again Dr. and Mrs. Scott Brodie, of Wisham, near Glasgow, and the family of the Editor of the Glasgow Herald, showed the same fine spirit, of doing the honors of Scotland, as represented by one of her citizens, who chanced to make the western isles, tour with the tourists, around the isles of Mull, Staffa, and Iona. This is the land of William Black's novels; likewise, Mr. Herbert Lee's, whose old home was Aberfeldy, near Lock Tay, showed the same, most kindly, feeling, toward the Americans. News of the great San Francisco earthquake and fire, was received, Apr. 1905, at Florence, Italy, posted on the bulletin of Old Ponte Vichio, over the Arno. A large number of Californians were there, who mourned their city's fate.

An illustration on another page, shows Miss Gilmore seated in a boat, under the walls of the Castle of Chillon, so closely associated with the name of the poet Byron.

K.5.9.6. Nathan Gray Gilmore, son of Nathan and Amanda Gray Gilmore, was b. at El Dorado, Calif., May 22, 1865; attended the public schools, and was a student in the High School, at San Jose, Calif., at the time his sister, Susie, attended the State Normal school at that place. On May 22, 1882, he attempted to jump on a freight train, which was coming into the city, at noon. He went to the front end of the train, caught hold with his hands, but did not get a footing; he fell, and the entire train passed over his limbs. He died that night. His remains were taken to El Dorado, and laid beside those of his mother, in the El Dorado cemetery, May 26, 1882. He was 17 years of age.

K.5.12. Judge Sylvester F. Gilmore, youngest son and child of Thomas and Margaret Gilmore, was born in Putnam Co., Ind., Aug. 17, 1837; graduated from Hanover College, South Hanover, Ind.; also from the Law Dept. of Asbury, now De Pauw, University, Greencastle, Ind., in 1860; m. in Greencastle, Apr. 11, 1860, Julia A. Matkin. He served as a member of the 78th Ind. Vol's., from which, after a skirmish with a band of guerrillas, in Southern Ky., Sept. 3, 1862, the regiment was discharged. Since 1863, he has engaged in the practice of law in Effingham, Ill.; served as Co. Supt. of schools from 1869 to 1873, and as Judge of the Circuit Court from 1882 to 1894; also in the state legislature. Mr. and Mrs. Gilmore had four chil-

Judge Gilmore, the last remaining one of the 9 sons, and 12 children, of Thomas and Margaret Gilmore, in a letter written, Mch. 29, 1914, speaking of the death, on Feb. 20, 1914, of his brother Samuel B. Gilmore, last of his brothers, says: "As he lay, ready for burial, his countenance, peaceful, soft, silver locks upon his venerable head, soft beard falling over his bosom with silvery whiteness, he was the very picture, as we have seen them represented, of one of the patriarchs of the Bible. His death, though a triumphant one, filled me with sadness. I have never experienced quite such an utter loneliness. He was the last connecting link between myself and the original family, of twelve children, one of the happiest families that ever lived. As I stood by his open coffin, what a flood of memories rushed over me, unspeakable for sadness. I recollect a bright March morning, in 1850, sixty-four years ago, when the first break in our happy circle occurred, when "the boys" started from our old home, to cross the plains. Our dear mother never recovered from the grief of parting. She felt that she might never see her two sons again, in this life, and I believe that she never again closed her eyes in sleep, without breathing a prayer for them, and their safe return. For many years past, wherever I have happened to be, on Mch. 12, I have set the day apart, as a sort of memorial day in the history and life of our family; and I expect to so continue the custom, until the end. Altho' there is now no one of them left for me to write to, I shall keep it alone, in my home. I keep fresh in my memory, the recollection of that morning, and could relate every incident almost, down to the minutest detail. Today, the beech and sugar maple trees, are all that mark the spot, where that old house stood; even the great poplars, and black and white walnuts, have disappeared."

Letter written by Judge Sylvester Gilmore of Effingham, Ill., son of Thomas and Margaret (Leech) Gilmore, in the 79th year of his age, on the 61st anniversary of the death of his brother, Thomas Leech Gilmore. The letter was written to his niece, Mrs. Kate (Gilmore) Bowen, of Los Angeles, California.

Effingham, Ill.,
May 5, 1916.

My Dear Kate,

Just 61 years ago this evening, I stood by the bedside of my brother, Thomas, and witnessed that most mysterious, most inexplicable, and saddest, of all human tragedies, that takes place in this world, the death of one near and dear to us. On Saturday, May 5, 1855, my brother Thomas' wife, and all his children, your uncle Andrew, your Aunt Mary Leech, your grandfather (your grandmother not being able to come) and myself gathered around his bedside, witnessed his departure from our midst, into the great beyond, which, ever since the world began, men have called death, and which, they no more understand, now, than they did in the beginning. It is the same mystery; the same solemn fact, that we know awaits all the living; and each, by some strange fatuity, himself, or herself, is saying, "The others will precede me," and yet all know they may be the first called. Strange is it not?

Your Aunt Mary Leech had left her little Linda, who had been suffering from scarlet fever, at noon, when they were built up with the hope that her dear little girl was passing the crisis, and she rode down to see, and speak to, her brother Thomas, once more; for we all knew his days were numbered. He was in the very last stage of consumption. As soon as he died "Jimmie" Gilmore led her to the horse block, and helped her on her horse, opened the gate, and she sped away to her Linda, only to reach home to find her dying, in the arms of her father. On Sunday evening, when the sun was almost setting, two funeral processions entered the grave yard on the hill; one from your Aunt Mary's, and one from "across the creek," where probably 400 old neighbors had assembled, to show their respect for the dead, and their sympathy for the sorrowing living. I remember the awful silence, while the people were getting out of the vehicles, and moving with silent steps, toward the open graves. How the sighs of almost broken hearts were heard—hearts filled with pent up grief; but not as of those who sorrow without hope. And I can now almost hear the deep, full-toned, voice of the preacher, Rev. Fiske, as he read or quoted, "For we know that all things work together for good to them that love God; to them that are called according to his purpose." And again, "Who shall separate us from the love of Christ? Shall tribulation, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or peril, or sword?" . . . I am persuaded that neither death nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord." As he spoke these words, there in the woods, carpeted with green, the two coffin lids removed, the gentle breeze lifted the curls from the face of the beautiful child, and rustled the black locks from the bronzed forehead of the stalwart man. Your grandfather and grandmother, with the composure of the peaceful consolation of Holy Writ, your Aunt Elizabeth, with her fatherless children, with an expression of resignation, your Uncle Thomas, and Aunt Mary, trembling like reeds shaken by a rough breeze, as they looked upon the face of their dear little daughter, so soon to be shut away from their view for all time, and the sympathising friends and neighbors. I can see it all now.

Daniel Boone and wife, (a grand-nephew of the Kentucky pioneer)

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Hamrick, the Widow Torr, and her family, the Bence's, the Landes, and many others, whom I can't this moment recall, were there.

As the coffins were lowered into the graves, the sugar trees, beeches, and poplars, were all aglow with the last rays of the setting sun. The earth was dropped with care by those kind neighbors, so gently, that the sound might not rudely break upon the hearts that were already bleeding from grief.

Have you thought of it?—no father, no mother, no brother, no sister, no uncle, no aunt, but two cousins. I know of only one living person who started out in life with me. That is Adeline Landes. All the others belong to the succeeding generations. Out of a very large relationship, of uncles, aunts, or cousins, but two cousins remain. Robert Gilmore, and Joseph Gilmore. Robert, whom I saw about sixty days ago, resides at Bay Falls, Ill. And Joseph, belonging to the Ohio line, lives south of Richmond, Ind. He is about 84 years old and very feeble. Remember me to all the children, and friends out there. Write soon.

Your Uncle Ves.

To Mrs. Kate T. Bowen,
Los Angeles, Calif.

THE LACKEYS

The Lackeys took shipping from Londonderry, Ireland, and coming to America, settled in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, in 1748. Thomas Lackey, Sen., born 1728, married, in 1754, Agnes Leech, born 1730, elder sister of John Leech, Sen., with whom he came to America, at nine years of age. They were the only surviving members of a family of seven. (See The Leeches). Thomas and Agnes (Leech) Lackey came from Pennsylvania to Rockbridge County, Virginia, in 1768. Their home was two miles west of the Natural Bridge. The large outside chimney of the old house, still stands. Thomas Lackey was a wheelwright, by trade; and he made the large and small spinning-wheels, in use in those days. They are said by a descendant, who remembers having seen some made by him, to have been fine specimens of workmanship, having his initials carved in the wood. Thomas Lackey is said to have been a fine looking man, of fine physique, six feet tall, and to have resembled George Washington. He possessed ability as a scribe, and had the confidence of his fellow-citizens, who came to him to get writing done, in matters which required ability and judgment. He died at his home near High Bridge church, Sept. 1, 1801, aged 73 years. Agnes (Leech) Lackey died Sept. 23, 1814, aged 84 years. They were of the Scotch Presbyterian faith. Nathan Lackey, a half-brother of Thomas Lackey, settled in Kentucky. His children crossed the Ohio river, and settled in southeastern Illinois, near Vincennes, on the Wabash river, pioneers. One son went to Scotland County, Missouri, whose son, Nathan, has a family still livng there. They are members of the Cumberland Presbyterian church. The children of Thomas and Agnes Lackey were:

Dec. 12, 1807, Isabella Cunningham, dau. of James Cunningham, b. in Rockbridge Co., Nov. 20, 1787. They lived on Timber Ridge, Rockbridge Co., near the old stone church; and there, ten children were b. to them, the eleventh and youngest b. in Ohio. On Sept. 6, 1829, they left Va., for Greene Co., O. "He sold his farm to John Gibson, for ten dollars per acre. In those days, there were no banks or payment by cheque. The money was put in a dash churn, and lard poured over it, and in that way, it was taken in safety on the long journey to Ohio, in an old-fashioned Virginia schooner, drawn by four horses. Thomas, being one of the oldest sons, and a good driver, rode the wheel horse, and drove. An incident, of the journey has been handed down from sire to son. Crossing the mountains, they met a man riding a mule. When almost opposite the lead team, it began to bray. This frightened the team, and it turned short around, upsetting the wagon, and contents, including "the farm" in the churn. The journey was made in one month, and two days. Isaac Lackey purchased a farm in Greene Co., from a man by the name of Trader, for about $5.00 per acre. A part of this farm is still in the Lackey name, and would sell readily at present, (1916), for $150.00 per acre. The farm consisted of 120 acres, on which he built a two story log house, near Cedarville. Isaac Lackey was a member of and an elder in the Associate Reformed church, of which Rev. Andrew Herron, D. D., was pastor. He d. Sept. 30, 1850. Mrs. Lackey d. Nov. 30, 1872. They were buried in the old Caesar Creek cemetery, in New Jasper Twp., Greene Co., Ohio. Isaac Lackey's old homestead, in Rockbridge Co., Va., was bought from Col. John Gibson, about 1890, by James and Miller Lackey, grandsons of Nathan Lackey, and is again in the Lackey name.

A.4.1.1. Adaline Lackey; b. Apr. 2, 1843, at Cherry Grove, near Jametown, Ohio, and passed all her life in that locality. She was a member of the well-known Silver Creek Twp., family of that name. In 1860, at 17 years of age, she became a Catholic; in the same year, was m. in St. Brigid's church, Xenia, O., by Father Blake, to William Mangan. She was the mother of 17 children, 13 of whom are living, (1916). Her grandchildren number 51, and her great grandchildren, 9. Her husband d. in 1900. Her death was a great shock to her family and friends. No one in Jamestown or vicinity was better known, or more genuinely loved. She was mistress of that Christian art, of seeing only the virtues of others. She was never a willing listener, when the failings of her neighbors were discussed. She has left to her children a heritage of love, such as only a Christian mother can leave, and the memory of her virtues shall not fade with the years. She died, March 25, 1916.

THE LEECHES

John Leech; born April, 1739, in North Ireland; came, with his elder sister, Agnes, at nine years of age, from Londonderry, in 1748, to Lancaster Co., Pa. They were the only surviving members of a family of seven. Agnes Leech was born in 1730, and married Thomas Lackey. (See The Lackeys). John Leech married, in 1761, in Pa., in his 22 year, Martha McComb. They came to Rockbridge Co., Va., in 1778, settling near Collierstown, twelve miles from Lexington, where they lived and died. John Leech and wife were Scotch-Irish Presbyterians. He was an elder in Old Oxford church, Rockbridge Co. Their children were:

- A. Nathan Leech; b. Jan. 27, 1762; died young.
- B. David Leech; b. Jan. 5, 1764; m. Margaret Miller. (See The Millers).
- C. John Leech, Jr.; b. August 17, 1765; m. Ann Crawford.

- F. Agnes Leech; b. Nov. 25, 1771; m. 1, Andrew Scott, of Collierstown. 2, ——— McKee.
- G. Eleanor Leech; m. Michael Crawford.
- H. Martha Leech; m. her cousin, Thomas Lackey. (See The Lackeys).

Before going further, we would say, that, owing to the same names in the different generations, and failure on the part of some to supply full information, we do not feel at all satisfied with the record of either the Leech or Lackey families. Altho' a large number of these families will, most assuredly, gain much from these records, hitherto unknown to them, concerning their ancestors and family in general, these records do not meet our ideal, of completeness, or accuracy. As they, and that of the Millers, Gilmores, and Ramseys, and portions of the Ochiltrees, will again appear in the Crawford History, to follow this, very shortly, we hope that those of any of the families mentioned in this History, who may discover that the records of any family are inaccurate, or incomplete, will promptly forward to us, the correct or additional data, or information, genealogical or biographical as it is only from the families themselves or from public records that this can be obtained.—The Author.

- A.1. Ruth T. Sellers; m. Benjamin Worthington Hawkins. They had a daughter, Elizabeth Christian Hawkins, who m. Thomas Crawford Gilmore. (See The Gilmores, K.5.2.)

- A.2. Nancy Sellers; m. John J. Hawkins, b. 1789; moved to Preble Co., O., and from there, were pioneers in Jay Co., Ind. They were among the first settlers. Mr. Hawkins met with an accident, while hanging a deer which he had killed, which resulted in his death within a year, on Mch. 15, 1832, ag'd 42 years. He was the first white man buried in Jay Co., Indiana.

Nancy (Sellers) Hawkins' home was what was called a station on the "Underground Railroad." Slaves escaping from Ky., to Canada, were given shelter at her house. Her sons, Samuel, and B. W. Hawkins, carried the mail by turns, from Winchester to Ft. Wayne, by way of Deerfield, Hawkins' Cabin, New Corydon, and Thompson's Prairie. One evening, in the month of Feb. 1834, Samuel reached his mother's cabin on his return from Ft. Wayne, while a heavy snow was falling. It was already ten inches deep. While the family were enjoying themselves around the fire, a rap was heard at the door, and, on its being opened, eight negroes, six men and two women, presented themselves, and begged for a night's lodging. Their request was granted. They said they were going to work on the canal, which was being built at Fort Wayne. The next morning they started on their way, northward, and Samuel Hawkins went to Winchester, with his mail. There he learned that the fugitives were slaves, and there he met their pursuers, who asked him if he had "met" the slaves. He replied that he had not, which was, technically, true, but misleading to the manhunters. The reward for their apprehension was one thousand dollars, and he could have had it, by reporting what he knew. He said, if they would undertake that long, dangerous, journey, on foot, and thro' the deep snow, to gain their liberty, he could not find it in his heart to betray them, into bondage. When the pursuers were put on the wrong track, he returned, and found the negroes, and told them that their masters were after them, to run for their lives. One of the women, who was old and feeble, uttered a wild shriek, and fell in a swoon. The leader of the band said, "Look well to your priming boys," as they were heavily armed. Then turning to the young mail carrier he said, "Young man, our blood may be poured out like water, but none of us will be taken alive." Hawkins hastily relieved their fears, got off his horse, helped put the fainting woman on his saddle, aided her as far as his time would permit, and giving them directions, returned to his route, and never heard from them more.

Another similar anecdote, was told by B. W. Hawkins, Samuel's brother. In the fall of 1833, while he was carrying the mail, four negroes called at his mother's, to stay all night. They were finely dressed, and had plenty of money; said they were from Richmond, and going to Ft. Wayne, to work on the canal. The next morning, Benjamin started to Fort Wayne, and the negroes started, also. When he got there, he found the master of the fugitives waiting for him. When he found who the young man was, he treated him very kindly, kept him in his room at the hotel, told him he was his cousin, and asked him all about his family. The man was Dr. Campbell, proprietor of the celebrated Hot Springs, of Kentucky. He told the mail-carrier of his loss, that they were his musicians at the Springs, played for his guests during the season, and the rest of the year went where they pleased, and were allowed to keep what they made. He told Benjamin, that there was a reward of $800.00 for them, and he could have it, if he would apprehend them, and report to him. Benjamin said nothing. The next day, on his return, he found the negroes, and told them they were runaway slaves, which they denied. But he told them who they were, and where they belonged; that he did not believe in slavery, hoped they would get away, and offered to show them another road, which would take them around Fort Wayne, which he did. Seven years afterwards, his uncle, Bird Hawkins, was discussing the slavery question, with Benjamin's brother, Joseph, and told of the runaway musicians, how they reached Canada, joined the king's army, and wrote to their master, that they would not have left him, but that they were afraid that when he died they would be sold. Dr. Campbell went to Canada, found them, offered to sign their freedom papers, and pay them more wages, if they would return. He was arrested, for trying to persuade the king's soldiers to desert, the penalty of which was death. He sent to Kentucky for his lawyer, who finally got him clear, but it cost him $1,000.00. Benjamin heard the story, but never gave a hint that he knew anything about the case.

Extract from a letter written by Thomas Crawford Leech, of Paducah, Ky., son of James Crawford and Malinda Glenn Leech, to his cousin, W. B. F. Leech, of Rockbridge Co., Va.; son of John Steele and Drusilla Tate (Findley) Leech. Kindly furnished us by Mr. J. Houston Leech of Lexington, Va.

. . . "I see from my father's old Bible, that the above, (the children of Thomas and Elizabeth (Crawford) Leech), were my uncles and aunts. My grandfather, Thomas Leech, moved to Livingston Co., Ky., from Rockbridge Co., Va., when my father was a boy. I remember to have seen Uncle John, (of Broad Creek) at my father's house, when I was a small boy. He came on a visit from Rockbridge Co. My Aunt Margaret Leech, married Thomas Gilmore. They lived near Terre Haute, Indiana. My father married Miss Glenn, raised seven children, six boys and one girl; all dead except sister Martha, who is the wife of Joseph H. Fowler, and myself. My brother, William Leech, lived in Cape Girardeau, Mo. I have a wife and seven children. My grandfather, Thomas Leech, married Betsey Crawford, Aug. 1792, and Margaret Scott, in 1816.

Truly yours,

Thos. C. Leech."

- E. James Leech; son of John Leech, Sen., was born in Lancaster Co., Pa., Nov. 15, 1769. He came with his parents in 1778, to Rockbridge Co., Va.; there married Isabella Steele, b. Dec. 10, 1782. He became a prosperous farmer, owning a large tract of land, on North Buffalo Creek, Rockbridge Co.

One account received says that John Leech, Sen., and his sister, Agnes (Leech) Lackey were natives of Armagh Co., Ireland.

Copy of Will of James Leech, Sen.

In the name of God Amen I James Leech of Rockbridge Co., and State of Virginia being sick and weak in body but of sound mind and disposing memory for which I thank God and calling to mind the uncertainty of human life and being desirous to dispose of all such worldly estate as it has pleased God to bless me with, I give and bequeath the same in the manner following: that is to say First I desire that all my horses be sold except three known by the names Paul George and Leviathan for to be continued on the farm for the use of the family till my son John arrives till the age of 21 the others to be sold by my executors hereafter named after collecting my money and paying all my just debts and funeral expenses the Balance of the money be put to use till the contingencies of the family will require it also I give to my daughter Patsy Crawford one sorrel horse known by the name of Charley saddle and bridle two milch cows one yearling steer one feather Bead with its furniture one Beaurow, one Brass Cettle one dough chest and spinning wheel ten dollars worth of Coba (cupboard) furniture also I give and bequeath to my daughter Susanah one horse worth eighty dollars a good saddle and two cows worth twelve dollars each one good feather bead with its furniture one Beaurow ten dollars worth of kitchen furniture and ten dollars worth of Cobard furniture and one spinning Wheel to be paid to her when she arrives at the age of twenty-one or if she should marry before that age she is to be paid at that time also I give and bequeath to my daughter Nancy one horse worth eighty dollars a good saddle and two cows worth twelve dollars each, one good feather bead with its furniture one Beaurow ten dollars worth of kitchen furniture and ten of Cobard furniture and one spinning wheel to be paid to her in the manner before stated also I give and bequeath to my daughter Jane Steele one horse worth eighty dollars a good saddle and two cows worth twelve dollars each a good feather bead with its furniture one Beaurow ten dollars worth of kitchen furniture and ten of Cobard furniture and one spinning Wheel to be paid to her in the manner before stated. It is my wish that my son John continue on the farm till he is 21 years of age and that his labor goes to help to raise and to educate the younger children and as this will deprive him of learning a trade, to make him equal with his younger brothers whom I desire to be put to a trade as they arrive at the age of sixteen at the discretion of my executors I give and bequeath to my son John my negro man named Baylor but if he does not continue on the farm and endeavor to support the family, I wish that Baylor be sold and the price be divided equally among my sons John, David, Thomas, Harvey and William; in either of the above cases the labor of Baylor is for the support of the family until John is of the age of twenty-one; at which time I order that an appraisement of all the perishable part of the estate also after what is already bequeathed is taken out of the estate it is my will that the balance be equally divided among my sons. I also give and devise to my five sons the plantation I now live on to the use of them and their Heirs forever, to be equally divided amongst them. Also I direct that the land be sold when my youngest son arrives at the age of sixteen As I have a Clame in the lands of David Steele Deceased my will is it be sold as soon as convenient and the price thereof equally divided amongst all my children and lastly I do hereby constitute and appoint my friends James Hall and Thomas Scott executors of this my will and Testament hereby revoking all other former wills or testaments by me heretofore made In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and affixed my seal this seventh day of November one thousand eight hundred and twenty one.

This record is taken from the old Family Bible of John Steele Leech, of Rockbridge Co.

- E.1. Patsey Leech; eldest daughter and child of James and Isabella (Steele) Leech; was born Sept. 6, 1801, in Rockbridge Co., Va.; married June 28, 1821, her first cousin, James Crawford, Jr., son of Michael and Elenor (Leech) Crawford and grandson of James and Catharine (Howell) Crawford, of Rockbridge Co. For full genealogy and history see "The Crawfords," to be published shortly.
- E.4. John Steele Leech, eldest son of James and Isabella (Steele) Leech, was born in Rockbridge Co., Virginia, in 1806. He was a grandson of John and Martha (McComb) Leech, who came from Lancaster Co., Pa., in 1778, and from Londonderry, Ireland, in 1748. He married, in 1827, Drusilla Tate Finley, born Feb. 19, 1802. The following is furnished by Mr. J. Houston Leech, of Lexington, Virginia, a grandson. "Squire Leech owned slaves, but looked on a "nigger trader" as of low origin. He very rarely inflicted corporal punishment. If a negro was found sleeping, when he should be hoeing corn, he would, if he were an old negro, make him assume a comfortable position, supine, beneath some spreading beech, for an hour, while he would keep the flies off him, in full view of the other negroes. If he were a young negro, and was lazy, he would call in the other little nigs, and make them help to bury the culprit, all but his head. This was all done with apparent great seriousness, and no nigger dared laugh during the ceremony. These punishments were always good and wholesome, and did not need to be repeated. Old Uncle Sam was never for sale. $2000 had been offered for him, but not considered. Uncle Sam fell in love with, and married, Emily, who was owned by Aunt Eliza (Finley) Johnston; and as both the Leech and Johnston families were opposed to good negroes being sold, Sam and Emily lived in separate houses. Fortunately, however, only a small hill separated one farm from the other. Sam knew every tree and hog path between the two places. It would happen, occasionally, that Uncle Sam would return late; in which case, Squire Leech would hitch up, and drive six miles around, by way of Oxford church, and up South Buffalo, taking Sam along, and letting him spend the day with Emily. If Sam was driving, Emily was all smiles when she came out to "make her manners." But if Squire Leech was driving, and Sam was "acting the gentleman," Aunt Emily would say: "Marse John, what foh you bring dat fool niggah back here?" "I don't want to see him." "Take him on back and put him in the harvest-field, wha he ought to be." "I lose a whole lot valuable time foolin wid dat bow-legged niggah." "Tse gwine quit feedin him so high when he comes ovah heah." These, and many other, reminiscences, were told me by the old plantation negroes. They seem to have had big times. Once a year, in the fall, about fifteen wagons, owned by the Leeches, Crawfords, Wilsons, and Campbells, might have been seen, loaded down with farm products, bound for Howardsville, or Scottsville, in Luvana, and Nelson counties, where it was put on the flatboats, to be sent down to Richmond.

"Many a late roastin'-ear lived hard.
Many a chicken gave his last crow.
And when you hear that boatman's horn,
Be sure, your hog will go."

Richmond reached, the products sold, the country negroes were given a day or two of city life. Marse John had ridden down, by Charlottesville, and on the return trip, saw that no stray niggers were left behind. Each negro had some extra pocket-money, and a good sized jug of whiskey; and there were two barrels for Marse John, for sickness, and next year's harvest-time. Harvest-time was a big frolic. There were, sometimes, as many as forty cradles on a farm, the same day. Marse John led, on horseback, carrying refreshments. He was six feet, two and a half inches, tall, weighed 235 pounds, with not a pound of surplus flesh. He knew how to handle a cradle, and one time won a wager, by cutting eleven acres of rye, in one day, which threshed out 360 bushels. This was substantiated, by many reliable witnesses, in the Buffalo community. Deeds, contracts, wills, etc., were written by Squire John Leech, without charge. At the time of his death, he was eligible for the office of High Sheriff; having served the requisite length of time, as magistrate. He owned the farm of his father, James Leech, on Buffalo Creek." The children of John Steele and Drusilla Leech were:

- E.4.1. William Finley Bolivar Leech; m. Margaret Houston.
 E.4.2. Narcissa Eglantine Leech; m. Capt. James A. Strain.

- E.4.1. Bolivar F. Leech; son of Squire John Leech and his wife, Drusilla Tate (Finley) Leech, was born Mch. 27, 1837, in Rockbridge County, Virginia, near Old Oxford church; which is one and one half miles below the confluence of North and South Buffalo Creeks. He graduated from Washington College, Lexington; was three times a delegate to the State Legislature. He owned a fine farm of 600 acres on North Buffalo, the original home place of James and Catharine Crawford, which passed, through their son, Michael Crawford, to his sons, James, John, and Addison Crawford, who sold it on their removal to Greene Co., Ohio, in 1826, leaving none of this family, of the name in Rockbridge Co. He also owned 400 acres, one and one-half miles below the 600 acres, and 350 acres of mountain land, five miles west of his home place; 450 ft. more elevation. This tract was known as Smith's Flat, or Lang's Entry. He married Margaret Houston, dau. of John Davies and Martha (Wilson) Houston; and granddaughter of Rev. Samuel Houston, of Rural Valley, the noted divine and educator, and his wife, Margaret Walker; she was the great granddaughter of John and Sarah (Todd) Houston. Sarah Todd was a daughter of Andrew Todd, an early settler on Hays Creek and among the first members of Old Providence church. An interesting sketch of Andrew Todd's immediate ancestors is found in the National Enc. of Am. Biography, which traces them three generations back to the battle of Bothwell Bridge in Scotland, in 1670. Andrew Todd's son, Sarah (Todd) Houston's brother, Samuel Todd, High Sheriff, of Botetourt Co., 1791-92, was the father of Jane Todd, wife of Thomas Crawford, son of James Crawford, of North Buffalo, and brother of Michael Crawford, who married Eleanor Leech. B. F. Leech died Aug., 1907. 9 children.
- E.4.1.1. Ella Houston Leech; b. Nov. 19, 1860; m. Ernest Pyne. Res. Arlington, New Jersey.
- E.4.1.2. Finley Leech; died young.
- E.4.1.3. J. Houston Leech; b. May 29, 1864; graduated from Washington and Lee University; connected with the Dept. of Agriculture and Immigration; headquarters, Richmond, Va. Res. Lexington, Va.; m. Minnie Cabel Tutwiler, whose mother, Edmonia McClelland, was a niece of William Wirt Henry and grandniece of Patrick Henry. 2 children.
- E.4.1.3.1. Edmonia Preston Leech; b. 1894.
- E.4.1.3.2. Harry T. Leech.
- E.4.1.4. Roland Leech.
- E.4.1.5. Dr. Walter Stewart Leech; b. July 24, 1878; m. Jennie Truant; practiced his profession in Ashville, N. C., later located in Rosseau, Minn. 1 child.
- E.4.1.5.1. Gilbert Leech; died.
- E.4.1.6. Herbert B. Leech; b. Mch. 10, 1874; m. Florence Crane; res. Baltimore; 4 children.
- E.4.1.7. Charles B. Leech; b. Apr. 12, 1868; m. Hassie Leech. 5 children.
- E.4.1.8. Maggie Homer Leech; b. 1870; d. 1873.
- E.4.1.9. Infant child; died.

- E.6. David Leech, of Collierstown, son of James and Isabella Steele Leech, was born in 1809; m. in 1833, America Taylor, born in 1809, daughter of Mark and Martha (Amyx) Taylor, who lived on Short Hill, Rockbridge Co. Mrs. Leech was an aunt of Bishop William Taylor, of Africa. Mr. and Mrs. Leech removed, the year of their marriage, to Greene Co., Ohio. Mr. Leech died in 1874; Mrs. Leech died in 1875. 7 children.
- E.6.1. James M. Leech; b. 1834; d. 1858, unmarried.
 - E.6.2. Mary Francis Leech; b. 1836; d. 1862; she was a dwarf.
 - E.6.3. Margaret Isabella Leech; m. Henry Rothrock.
 - E.6.4. Thomas Franklin Leech; b. 1840; m. Mary Elenor Locke.
 - E.6.5. Martha Adaline Leech; m. Mr. Buchanan. She was b. 1842; d. 1868.
 - E.6.6. Alfred Preston Leech; b. 1848; m.
 - E.6.7. Hugh Rutherford Leech; b. 1850; m.; d. 1912, at Crawfordsville, Ind.
- E.6.3. Margaret Isabella Leech; b. 1838; m. 1860, Henry Rothrock. Their 4 children were:
- E.6.3.1. Martha Rothrock; b. 1861; m.; d. 1887.
 - E.6.3.2. Walter Rothrock; b. 1863; m.
 - E.6.3.3. Jessie Rothrock.
 - E.6.3.4. Ralph Rothrock.
- E.6.4. Dr. Thomas F. Leech, was born in 1840. He married on April 19, 1866, Mary Elenor Locke; lived in Crawfordsville, Ind.; later located at Downers Grove, a suburb of Chicago. 3 children.
- E.6.4.1. Ellerslie Wallace Leech; b. 1867; d. 1891; bachelor.
 - E.6.4.2. Charles Hugh Leech; b. 1869; m. in 1902, Inga Christopher-son; attorney-at-law Chicago. No children.
 - E.6.4.3. Alice Mabel Leech; b. 1876; unmarried.
- G. Elenor Leech; second daughter and seventh child of John, Sen., and Martha (McComb) Leech, was born Jan. 20, 1774, in Lancaster Co., Pa.; was married Oct. 12, 1797, in Rockbridge Co., Va., by Rev. Samuel Houston, of Rural Valley, to Michael Crawford, the younger of the two sons of James and Catharine (Howell) Crawford, of North Buffalo, Rockbridge Co. For full genealogy and history, and much of interest of the Crawford-Leeches, see "The Crawfords," to be published following this volume.

The following article which is of more than passing interest, taken from a Glasgow, Scotland, paper, has come to hand and will here be given a place:

Lenzie Officer's Experience on the Marquette

Dr. W. B. Ochiltree-Ferguson, son of the late Bailie John Ferguson, Benburt House, Lenzie, who holds the rank of Capt., in the New Zealand Medical Corps, writing home from Salonika, Greece, describes his experiences on the ill-fated troop ship, "Marquette," when she was torpedoed, in the Aegean Sea, on the 24, Oct. 1915, as follows:

"I have just arrived here, and I am writing at once, in case, you should see my name amongst the fatalities. I am perfectly fit and well, but we have had a bad time, as you may imagine, when I tell you that we were on the troopship, Marquette, from Alexandria to Salonika, when she was torpedoed. We were just off Kassandra Point, and our escort had left us thro' the night of the 23d. At nine A. M., we were on deck, no one having seen a periscope, or any sign of a submarine, when we were struck. The ship, instantly keeled over to port, and we saw that she had no chance of floating. Unfortunately, we had thirty-six nurses on board. We got them all tied up in their life belts—which were all stacked up beside their boats—and, as the boats were lowered to the promenade deck, they were put in. My job was, after assisting the starboard nurses, eighteen being on each side, to go down to the forward deck, and get my men on rafts. There were not sufficient boats for all hands. I had just helped the last nurse into the boat, and left, when I heard a shout, and, on looking round, saw that one rope from the davits had broken, and the whole boat of nurses was emptied into the sea.

Two nurses were crushed, and the rest were floating about. My friend, Capt. Harrison, however, was in charge, and I had to go forward to prevent disorder on the lower deck, which was being rapidly submerged. I got the men all on rafts, and they wanted me to go on the last one; but I elected to go on my own, so I wandered round the ship, and got a few stragglers over. I had them to leave the lower deck, which was now under water, and went up to the port side, where I found two people marooned, and the water up to the gunwale. There was a boat with two people in it, just a little astern of where I was, so I told them I would swim to it, and bring it along. I did not know it had no oars in it; so I walked into the sea and headed for it. But as I did so, the ship took such a list, that everything on deck, smoke rooms, etc., came loose and toppled over. I had to go like blazes, away from the ship to miss them, and they crushed the boat. As the ship now seemed like coming over, and catching me, I had to swim for the stern, all I could. I just cleared the rudder, as she went down. After the uproar in the water was quieted down, I swam over, and found that the two people had floated off, and were safe. By this time, all boats and rafts had drifted away, forming a wide circle of two or three miles in circumference. I swam for four hours before I got close up to the circle; and it was a most interesting sight; hundreds of people were bobbing about, floating on every kind of wreckage.

All the boats had been swamped, except two, one of which rowed away, to get into the line of steamers, and the other to get ashore, thirty miles distant; so we saw neither. All were just keeping their heads out of water. I now got alongside a submerged raft, with twelve on board, all up to the armpits in water. The boys asked me to get on, but there were too many; so I held on and rested, altho' I was not a bit tired. In about an hour, three had dropped forward on the raft and drowned, so I got on, as I was a trifle cramped in the legs. We floated about for three hours, before we saw one British, and two French gunboats, making for us. Previously, we had seen six steamers; but as they were trampships, they would have orders not to stop, lest they should share our fate.

Well, we were picked up, after nine hours in the water. We lost nearly two hundred, including ten nurses. We soon dried our clothing, and everyone made us most comfortable. By the way, we lost a Kirkintilloch boy—a Dr. Young, who was attached to the Royal Field Artillery. He knew the Browns, and some of the people whose names I remember. He had bad luck. He was picked up alive, but died from exhaustion. All his fellow-officers, spoke very highly of him; and he was very popular with the men. He was buried at Salonika.

I was none the worse for my ducking, and, as you know, I have always been a strong swimmer, and I was physically fit, so that I was able to take up my duties, as soon as I got dry clothes. I never felt that I was going under, altho' my reason told me that no one would survive the night, unless we were picked up. Altogether it was a tremendously interesting experience; just such an experience as one values.

This beautiful sketch, full of interest from many points of view, furnishing, as well, food for thought, is but one example of the literary ability to be found among those of the Ochiltree name and descent.

ANTONIO

He grew up among us, but he was never of us. We were ordinary Lowland Scottish children, such as may be seen any day, in hundreds of villages, over the country. Some of us were dark complexioned, others fair, and many of our number were quite pretty types. But our best looking child made a poor second to him. His beautifully modeled features, and oval face, of ivory tints, his shapely head, with its thick mass of wavy blue-black hair, and his lithe graceful figure, built upon so much more slender lines than any of ours, left our most handsome type a long way behind. Everything about him seemed to speak of racial difference. His dark eyes, with their thousand varying expressions, and his dazzling smile alone, were non-British, though of what race they were characteristic, I am not able to say. A budding ethnologist among us, at an early date, dubbed him "Antonio"; and the nickname must have expressed some general feeling, for "Antonio" he has remained ever since. And yet, who was he, and what was he? He bore an ordinary Scottish name. His father belonged to the city, some fifteen miles distant, and there, his forbears had lived for at least three generations. 'His mother was of our village, her people lie in our kirkyard, where you may trace their names on the stones, back for a hundred years. In all probability, they go further than that; but time has obliterated the record. Both his parents died early, (his grandmother bro't him up) but I remember them distinctly, and, altho in some obscure way, he had traits in common with both, to neither did he bear any striking resemblance. Neither had his classic regularity of features, nor general look of "foreign-ness." His mother was, certainly, dark of hair, and eyes, but it was not a darkness that overstepped the bounds of British pigmentation. So our "Antonio" remains something of a mystery—a white blackbird.

Perhaps the characteristics of some long gone ancestor, not of our race or clime, appeared again, in him. Perhaps we are all but spectres from the past. However it was, "Antonio" grew up with the rest of us, a Scottish boy; and that term includes many varieties. He played our games, shared our school tasks, and sang "Scots Wha Hae," if not quite so lustily, as some of us, at least as lustily as his softer, deeper voice permitted him to do.

School days over, most of us drifted into the city, where we found occupations more or less to our tastes, and settled down to the making of money, and a position for ourselves. Not so "Antonio." He tried many things, but remained long at none. He was intelligent and reliable, but the wanderlust was too strong in him. Money making, in itself, did not appear to attract him.

He told me once, when we met, after a few years' absence from our village, that he could not settle down; some restless feeling always drove him on. Shortly after that, I heard that he had gone to sea, and I thought of Hans Anderson's beautiful "Story From the Sand Dunes", of the lad, who, a lonely wanderer, one day in a strange land, arrived at the home of his ancestors, though himself quite unaware of the fact, and paused to look through the closed gates.

Would "Antonio" ever find the country of his kindred, and finding it would he know it? After he had been at sea for several years, we encountered each other again; but only for a few minutes. He was still the same "Antonio" of the quiet manner and the very pleasant smile. He promised to tell me some of his experiences, at our next meeting; but that promise is not to be redeemed.

In the paper here beside me, in the list of "a thousand sorrows, but the Empire's pledge and pride," I see his name. At the Dardanelles, he has fallen, one of Britain's hero sons; and yet, unless in the wider sense of the word, I wonder was our "Antonio" a Briton at all. Anyhow, he has been true to the land of his birth; and perhaps he has now found rest.

Dr. H. M. Ochiltree,
Haddam, Kan.

Dear Sir:-I am in receipt of your friendly letter, concerning our family; and in reply will say, that, as is usual, with Americans, have given the matter but little attention. My grandfather was Harrison Ochiltree, born about 1810, in Greenbrier Co., Va. As a young man, he came to Braxton Co., now W. Va., and lived near Flatwoods, in that county, until his death, at the close of the civil war. His wife was Miss Clutter, who lived to the great age of 103 years, dying but a few years ago. She also was a native of Greenbrier Co., now W. Va.

Harrison Ochiltree had two sons, Isaac Clutter Ochiltree, who was my father, a minister of the Methodist Protestant church, and was born Aug. 8, 1842. He died in 1897, aged 55 years. His whole life was spent in W. Va. He served in the Civil war 3 years and 5 months, in the 10, Va., Infantry. Of course, this was on the Union side. After the new state was formed, his regiment was known as the 10th W. Va. Father had 6 sons, and four daughters. Two of us are M. E. preachers, myself, a member of the St. Louis Conference, and James M., a member of the California Conference.

Father's brother is Joseph Ochiltree. He is a farmer, and resides near the place of his birth, in Braxton Co., W. Va.

As Greenbrier Co., and Rockbridge Co., are near each other, it is highly probable that you and I are scions of the same stock. I would be glad to meet you, and hope some time to have that pleasure. I have heard of a small town in Kansas, not far, I think, from Olathe, named Ochiltree. Have not learned after whom it was named.

I am interested in knowing of Mrs. Railey's projected book, and shall write her soon. A few years ago I had a communication from Mr. David D. "Oughletree," who stated that the Ochiltree family was founded in this country, in 1745, by three brothers, "Robert," who settled in New Jersey, "Malcolm Hugh," who settled in N. C. From him, the Texas Ochiltrees, of whom Col. Tom was one, are descended. From all I can learn, the remaining brother settled in Virginia. His name was Wallace Ochiltree, and from him the Virginia Ochiltrees are most likely descended. Of course, there may have been other emigrations, as people of the name are rather numerous in the Scotch Highlands. I forgot to say that Mr. Daniel Ougheltree, gave his address as San Diego, Calif. I think he has had compiled a complete genealogical table, from the records in Scotland, and in New Jersey and N. C. I will be delighted to hear from you, further.

Yours truly,

C. H. Ocheltree.

Drexel, Mo., Feb. 12, 1916

It has been impossible to find anyone anywhere who could give the ancestry of this line any farther back than Harrison Ochiltree, mentioned in the letter of Rev. Ochiltree. Several partial addresses of members of this branch have been given which we give below. Letters written to some West Va., addresses given, have been returned, "unclaimed." Harrison Ochiltree, b. 1810, had a brother, Crawford Ochiltree, d. in Lewis Co., W. Va., 1872; a sister, Nancy, who m. George Williams. Other references given by Rev. Ochiltree for information are, Mrs. Susan R. Madden, Ve-gan, W. Va.; Joseph H. Ochiltree, Clarksburg, Harrison Co., W. Va.; William H. Ochiltree, Reading, Pa.; Mrs. Sallie J. Wolf, Detroit, Mich. Rev. James M. Ochiltree, Florin, Calif.; Mrs. Ella F. Small-ridge and Mrs. Mary Cain, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Judson S. Weston, Lewis Co., W. Va.; Dyerly D. Blythe, Calif.; Joseph O. Ochiltree, Ben's Run, W. Va., Pleasants Co.; Daniel Ougheltree, 1065 12th St., San Diego, Calif., said to have been a Minnesota man. There were at one time Ochiltree Flats in both Minneapolis, Minn., and Denver, Colo. A letter to the latter address bro't the reply from the present owner that the property had changed hands so often he could not "give its genealogy."

Some portions of the Valley of Virginia, had been seen, from the top of the Blue Ridge, by Europeans, in 1710. In 1716, it was first entered by white men, under Governor Spotswood, claimed for the British Crown, and made a part of Essex County, with the western border undefined. Spotsylvania was formed from Essex and other counties, in 1720; and Orange from Spotsylvania, in 1734, including all of the country west of the Blue Ridge. In 1738, the county of Augusta was established.

Augusta county extended from the lakes to the border of Tennessee, and from the Blue Ridge to the Mississippi; and included nearly all of West Virginia, the states of Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, and part of Western Pennsylvania.

Fleeing from religious persecution in Ireland, the Scotch-Irish of Ulster crossed the Atlantic in sailing vessels, landed in Pennsylvania; some settling in the western part of the state, others going southward to Tennessee, Kentucky, the Carolinas and Georgia. Others crossed the Blue Ridge, to the beautiful "Valley of Virginia." "They came," says Waddell, "on foot or on horseback, bringing with them, through the wilderness, to the wilderness, the little they could thus transport, principally tools and implements of labor, and seed corn, from the older settlements of Pennsylvania. They set to work to clear and cultivate the land. During the first twelve or fifteen years, the dwellings were hardly better furnished than the wigwams of the Indians. There were no tables, chairs, knives, forks, glass or chinaware, nor many things now found in the humblest homes. The mention of "cart wheels and tire" in an inventory of 1746, is the first intimation of a wheel vehicle in the settlement. But horses and cattle were numerous, and "the big ha' Bible was found in nearly every cabin."

The inventories of personal estates as found on the old records do not vary much, the most trifling article, as a glass bottle, or old clothing, being appraised.

The county of Rockbridge, taken from Augusta, in 1777, was so named from the huge natural bridge in the county. The first settlers were almost wholly Scotch-Irish Presbyterians with a very few original Scotch. After a dwelling house, the church and school house were erected. The ministers were all educated up to the highest standard of the best Universities of Europe. Most, if not all, were also teachers of classical or common schools.

After the Revolutionary war, and again, after the war of 1812, emigrants from the Valley, in colonies, took up the long, dangerous, journey, to the newer countries, of Kentucky, Tennessee, Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois. About the year 1749, the Greenbrier country was first visited. It was prospected in 1751, by Col. Lewis. The first permanent settlement on this stream was made in 1769, the first settlers having been exterminated by the Indians, who also raided the country in later years.

The following record of descendants of James and Elizabeth (Lowry) Stansberry came too late for publication, in its proper place, on page 132, but is here given. An attempt is also here made to reconcile the different statements, furnished by the two families, as to the marriage of the cousins, John Lowry (E.4.1.), and John Young, (E.3.1. p. 145).

We place, before its many readers, this volume, with its merits, of which we are sure it must have some, and its faults, of which we are equally sure, it must have some. We are reminded that nothing in this life is perfect; and it is a well known fact, that, from the very nature of the work, and the indifference of many, in regard to knowledge of their ancestors, this is especially true of Genealogical Family Histories; even with the most thorough work, and painstaking efforts.

A great many individualities enter into the finished work of a volume of this character, each, inevitably, leaving on it their impress. With reference to all, the author included, we may, perhaps, apply the following lines:

“Judge not.
The workings of his heart and brain,
Thou canst not see.
What seems, to thy dim eyes a stain,
May only be
A scar, from some well won battlefield,
Where thou wouldst only faint, and yield.”

We feel that, while leaving much to be desired, much, very much, has been accomplished for the families herein represented, by the compiling and publication of this volume.

The Author.

These supplemental pages give fuller record than is given on pages 144, 243, and 245 of descendants of Margaret (Ochiltree) Flory, granddaughter of Michael, Sen., and Mary (Elliott) Ochiltree, Margaret (Ramsey) Reid, grand-daughter of William Ramsey, Jr., (Capt. The statement is made that Rev. W. R. Gray is said to resemble his great grand-father, William Ramsey, Sen. This should have been William Ramsey, Jr.

It is also stated that William Ramsey, Jr., helped build the Miller church and the home of Henry Miller, Sen., and shortly after, married his daughter, Rebecca. This could not have been true of the church, nor of the original home, as both were built before his time. He probably built, or helped build, an additional room, or rooms, to the original house.
